Five Killed, Many Hurt As Italian Riots Spread

Leftist Assault On Government of De Gasperi Leaps Across Country

Rome, Nov. 15 (AP).—Riotous fighting swept the southern Italian city of Cerignola tonight, with at least five persons reported killed and many wounded, and a sudden transportation strike tied up Rome for a short time.

The leftist assault on Premier Alcide de Gasperi's government leaped from city to city on a nation-wide scale.

Reinforcements of armored cars, police and troops were rushed to Cerignola, near Foggia, where demonstrators were said to have gained control of the main square.

The Interior Ministry said it had received word that the mob had attacked the police barracks there with machineguns and hand grenades. The assistant police chief was gravely wounded and three carabinieri and a police agent were slightly wounded.

Numerous Dead Reported

There are "numerous dead" in the city, the Rome newspaper Momentosera reported. It added that the roads into Cerignola were blocked and telegraph and telephone lines were cut. A general strike also gripped Cerignola.

Dispatches from the city said the milling demonstrators attacked the headquarters of De Gasperi's Christian Democratic Party and wrecked the offices of the Democracy of Labor and of the University Association.

Il Giornale d'Italia said the five known dead in Cerignola brought to at least 10 the number of persons killed in Italian political disorders in a week.

By nightfall the reinforced police were reported making some headway toward restoring order.

The province of Lecce, south of Puglia in the heel of the Italian boot, also was experiencing a strike of peasants, diggers and tobacco workers. Several arrests were made.

In Rome, the labor confederation subsequently announced that the transportation strike would end at midnight.

Caused by Former Prisoners

[The New York Herald Tribune News Service reported that a convention of former prisoners of Russia was the initial cause of Rome's transportation strike.

[The Italian veterans are considered among Italy's foremost anti-Communists, so police were ready for trouble. About 200 persons, including mothers and widows were in the group. After the convention opened 1000 young men, most of them members of the French Raid Russian Camp, Discover Arms

Paris, Nov. 15 (U.P.).—The Surete Nationale, France's FBI, backed by 2000 troops using at least four tanks, raided a Russian repatriation camp outside Paris and seized two boxes of arms, it was announced today.

Unofficial reports said the boxes contained 17 heavy machine guns.

The size of the force massed yesterday against the camp, which the Russian Embassy insisted contained only 58 persons, indicated the French government was jittery over Communist directed violence in Marseille and other French ports as well as in Italy.

In Marseille, troops raided several Communist-dominated union centers and arrested 82 persons, of whom six were held for trial on charges of leading the riots and strikes which have paralyzed the port for four days.

Reports from Marseille said that 80,000 dockworkers, seamen and other strikers still were staying away from their jobs and that tons of food were rotting in the port. The strikes have spread to Sete and Nice, these reports said.

Newspaper accounts said Russian leaders at the camp acknowledged ownership of the seized arms and said they were needed by the camp guards.

An Interior Ministry communique said four Russians in the camp had not been registered in

Secularism Blamed for World Ills

By Murrey Marder
Post Reporter

Secularism—"the exclusion of God from daily life"—is termed the greatest hindrance to world reconstruction, in the annual statement of the Catholic hierarchy of America.

The statement, released for publication today following a three-day meeting here of the Catholic bishops of the United States, declared that secularism is undermining orderly action of individuals, family life, economics and world affairs.

Members of the administrative board of the National Catholic Welfare Conference, including the four American cardinals, signed the statement.

"Secularism, or the practical exclusion of God from human thinking and living," they stated, "is at the root of the world's travail today. It was the fertile soil in which such social monstrosities as Fascism, Nazism and Communism could germinate and grow.

"During our lives it (secularism) has been the bridge between a decaying devotion to Christian culture and the revolutionary forces which have brought on what is perhaps the gravest crisis in all history," said the Catholic leaders.

In the individual, they said, secularism blinds man to his responsibility to God, taking account of no law above man-made law.

This outlook, the statement said, is increasing daily. "Without a deep-felt conviction of what sin is, human law and human conven-

U. N. to Hold '48 Assembly In Europe

Wonders of Paris, U. S. Election Color 32-to-17 Decision

By Robert Bruskin
Post Reporter

Flushing Meadows, N. Y., Nov. 15.—The United Nations today decided to hold next year's General Assembly in Europe for reasons, mostly off the record, ranging from presidential elections in the United States to the wonders of "Pig Ally" in Paris.

With American and Soviet support, the Assembly approved a French-Swedish proposal to assemble the 1948 meeting somewhere in Europe by a vote of 32 to 17.

They defeated, by 27 to 16, an effort by Cuba to have the country selected pay the extra costs, which are estimated to be one million dollars.

Although the city is to be selected by a committee of nine, delegates felt certain that it would be held in Paris rather than Geneva, where the U. N. has the League of Nations building available. The French, aided by a delegation from its Chamber of Commerce, have been lobbying for the prestige they expect to accompany an Assembly. The United States was reliably reported to have promised its support more than a year ago.

Exchange Is an Angle

Reasons given formally were the availability of European exchange to most countries and the difficulties of obtaining American dollars for delegation expenses. Several said it would bring U. N. more European interest and furnish some financial aid.

Formal opposition, from England, China and Australia, stressed the extra cost, which must still be approved in the U. N. budget by a two-thirds vote.

Yet Sir Hartley Shawcross of Britain declared that "perhaps it

Tough Talk in West

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

Denver, Colo., Nov. 15.—The fight for the Republican Presidential nomination in 1948 is getting rough.

Harold E. Stassen, one of three avowed GOP candidates, hauled off today here in the Rockies, and taunted Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York as an evasive politician, who waits until the eleventh hour and then gives a "me too" answer.

He didn't name Dewey; he didn't have to. Franklin D. Roosevelt, in a 1944 campaign speech at Philadelphia, plastered the "me too' label on Dewey, his Republican rival for the Presidency, over and over again. This was after Dewey had indorsed the Wagner Act, social security and other New Deal reforms, but insisted he could administer them better.

Stassen Takes Off Gloves

Stassen, here on a 12-State delegate hunt, took the gloves off in a speech before the Colorado Republican Central Committee in the Shirley-Savoy Hotel.

He started by praising the "frank and forthright" declaration made Thursday by Gov. Earl Warren of California in announcing his candidacy for the Republican presidential nomination. Then, in language which Governor Dewey is not likely to forgive or forget in a hurry, the Minnesotan said:

"It is my view that the Republican Party will have a brighter chance of ultimate victory in November of 1948 if all of its leaders are straightforward and honest with the American people. This will also result in a brighter prospect for a hard-hitting Republican platform in 1948 and the inauguration of a successful Republican administration in 1949.

Cites Past Victories

"The significant Republican victories of history have resulted from forthright outspoken campaigns, such as those of Abraham Lincoln and Theodore Roosevelt.

"There is nothing in America's political history to recommend an evasive policy followed at an eleventh hour by a 'me, too,' answer."

Stassen gives himself no more than a "fighting chance" for the Republican presidential nomination. Nevertheless, in his speech today he acted with the confidence

Police Beat Off Crowd Raiding Mosley Meeting

London, Nov. 15 (AP).—Police, swinging clubs, beat back demonstrators who attempted to force entrance to a meeting tonight where Sir Oswald Mosley was making his first political speech since he was jailed for supporting Hitler.

Sir Oswald, speaking at a "winter sales conference" sponsored by Mosley Publications, Ltd., which he heads, said "America faces Russian Communism across the prostrate body of this country in a struggle to preserve the remnants of Western civilization."

The former head of British Fascists urged Europe to unite, and said "it is in the interest of the world for a power to arise which can render hopeless the Russian design for the subjection of Europe to oriental Communism."

Two persons were arrested.

Cloudy Day Due to Follow Sleet (Or Was it Snow?) Here

Was it sleet or was it snow that fell on Washington's fringes yesterday morning?

Some suburbanites insisted they saw traces of snow on rooftops when they arose. One go-to-bed-late resident of Silver Spring even declared it was there when he got up at noon.

But the Weather Bureau said there was no snow—only sleet. The sleet, said the Weather Bureau, fell on Greater Washington about 5 to 8 a. m., then faded to a cshill drizzle.

The Weather Bureau said the drizzle might last until early today and would then be followed by mostly cloudy weather. A few sunbeams may break through today, though, and the mercury will straggle up to about 50 in the afternoon.

Yesterday's low temperature was 37 at 11:40 a. m. and the high was 43 at 1:34 a. m.

The sleet and drizzle greatly curtailed operations at National Airport and resulted in a number of flight cancellations.

The control tower at the airport said the overcast had lowered to about 400 feet by 6 p. m., which would prohibit any landings but would permit takeoffs.

The storm conditions existed in a wide section of the country. A late fall storm brought snow, slush and rain from the Carolinas through the Ohio and Mississippi Valleys to the Great Lakes.

The local forecaster said the drab weather which hit Washington yesterday morning came up from the Southwest and spread north of Washington. He said there was a brisk snowfall in parts of Pennsylvania and New York State. Two inches of snow were reported at Harrisburg and Philipsburg, Pa.

In the Midwest, 30 Iowa communities were cut off from telephone service as snow up to 5 inches was recorded at Fort Dodge.

Mrs. Lois Guerrieri says good-by to daughter Lois, 5, before leaving Washington yesterday for New York City

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—Getting to London for a royal function has its difficulties.

I forgot the invitation!

Standing by at National Airport for a 7:30 departure this morning, all the last-minute confusion of leaving piled up on me with the realization that back home—on my dresser—was the invitation.

Hectic!

Due in New York before noon in order to get a passport and visa, I saw all my thrilling hopes almost buried. The plane left without me.

Quick calls to the State Department, to the British Embassy brought arrangements for issuance of a passport and visa in Washington. More frantic telephoning, taxi riding on slick streets and through lowering fog.

My husband came rushing with the invitations and the proof that I was born—a telegram from my mother had to serve for a birth certificate.

Only through the kind and thoughtful efforts of the State Department's Ruth Shipley was I able to make it. I think she established a record for passport issuance.

While I filled out the necessary forms, a friend was doing my last-minute shopping. To find you are going to Europe and have only eight hours to get ready is not my idea of a way to be calm and collected.

I DIDN'T sleep a wink last night. I sewed on my things until at least 3 o'clock in the morning.

The children were sleeping when I left. I was up, dressed and ready to go in 15 minutes—once more thankful that I never use makeup because it takes so much time.

By five minutes to spare, I made the noon train to New York after fears that all planes might be grounded by the fog.

I'd left my bag at the airport!

This excitement was almost too much for me, but another quick

Princess Elizabeth and Philip May Visit U. S. Next Spring

London, Nov. 15 (U.P.).—Princess Elizabeth and Lieut. Philip Mountbatten have agreed provisionally to visit Canada and probably the United States next spring, a source close to Buckingham Palace disclosed tonight.

The royal couple, to be married Thursday at Westminster Abbey, would postpone a North American visit only in the case of prospective motherhood for the princess when it came time to start the trip, these sources indicated.

Arrangements for the visit to Canada were completed last week by Canadian Prime Minister William L. Mackenzie King. It is expected that Mackenzie King, now on the continent, will hold further discussions at Buckingham Palace when he returns for the wedding.

Informants acquainted in palace circles said it was taken for granted that the princess and her prince consort would also visit the United States if they went to Canada.

President Truman invited Princess Elizabeth and her bridegroom to visit the United States shortly after their engagement was announced last spring. An invitation to visit Canada was received at the same time.

The princess traveled abroad for the first time last spring when she toured South Africa with the royal family. In Capetown she said she hoped to visit other British Commonwealth nations.

Announcement of the proposed visit was made as the royal couple unveiled their official wedding cake—a snow-white beauty 9 feet tall and 500 pounds in weight that was three months in the making.

The four tiers of the masterpiece, seasoned with 5½ pints of rum, brandy and curacao, were assembled at a preview sanctioned by the princess while policemen stood guard to make sure that no one dipped a finger in the frosting.

The preview was staged in the royal baking factory, where the cake was mixed 12 weeks ago by F. E. Schur, one of the five best-known master bakers in the world. Wednesday it will be taken down again and transported by truck—again under guard—to Buckingham Palace.

Philip will slice the cake for guests at Buckingham Palace following the Westminster Abbey ceremonies Thursday. One slice, however, will be cut out before Philip carves. This slice contanis seven lucky silver charms baked into the cake—a bachelor button, wedding ring, thimble, donkey, three-penny bit, wishbone and horseshoe.

Schur said the cake was the masterpiece of his baking career. He mixed it 12 weeks ago, baked it for 10 hours and then left it 5 weeks to mature. Decorations took five more weeks of his time. The secret mixture used in the cake, he said, makes it improve with age for six months.

The official cake is only one of the 12 accepted by Elizabeth. The other 11 will be distributed to charity organizations on the day of the wedding. All ingredients for the cake were gifts from the girl guides of Australia and thus no drain on Britain's own thin food supplies.

Congress Returning For Session

President Putting Finishing Touches On Message to Be Delivered Tomorrow

Members of Congress began arriving in Washington yesterday for the special session tomorrow to solve the conflicting demands of aid to Europe and price reduction at home.

In an effort to save vital time, committees already have been working on the issues to be met, though no member could be found willing to predict confidently that action would be completed before the regular session in January. Predictions were plentiful, however, that debate would be lengthy, and it would not be possible to prevent injection of irrelevancies into the discussions.

One issue which threatened to delay, if not prevent accomplishment of the session's purpose disappeared when the Republican leadership decided not to bring up reduction of income taxes this year.

Truman to Speak

Tomorrow's session, which will convene at noon, will be addressed by President Truman at 1:30 p. m. in the House chamber. Accompanied by members of his Cabinet, the President will present a message in person to a Republican Congress for the third time.

At the White House yesterday it was reported Mr. Truman received no visitors, but spent the day polishing up his message.

What it might contain was, of course, speculative only. On the basis of the President's past utterances, it was felt he would not seek enforced rationing or price controls, but would ask for allocation, at the source, of foods and scarce materials, return of credit controls, and tightened export controls.

Stopgap Aid to Europe

In the matter of stopgap aid to Europe, pending adoption of some form of the Marshall Plan, Secretary of State Marshall already has presented to committees his bill for 597 million dollars of emergency aid. He stressed the emergency angle, and asked for action by the end of the month, an assignment many Congressmen regarded as improbable of fulfillment.

Necessary legislation cannot be introduced until Congress actually is in session. Then it must go to committees for consideration and possible amendment before it can reach the floor for debate.

Both the Senate Foreign Relations Committee and the House Foreign Affairs Committee have started hearings, and Chairman Eaton (R., N. J.), of the House Committee, said he hoped to get the bill to the floor by Wednesday.

Taxis With Radios To Receive Police Emergency Alarms

Washington taxicab companies with radio service will broadcast Police Department emergency lookouts to their drivers starting tomorrow.

Three companies, Combined Cab Service, Veterans Cabs and Yellow Cabs have 186 radio-equipped cabs to receive lookouts on the streets now, Major Robert J. Barrett, police superintendent, said. Messages will include lookouts for persons wanted for murder, robbery, rape, and hit-and-run accidents involving personal injury, Barrett said.

Hackers who furnish police with information leading to the arrest and conviction of criminals will receive rewards, Barrett said.

Barrett said he also has asked cab drivers, particularly when discharging women passengers late at night, to stand by until their passengers safely reach the doors of their homes.

Hoover Tells Loyalty Test Role of FBI

By Bert Andrews

A description of the role played by the Federal Bureau of Investigation in making security and loyalty checks of Government employes was obtained yesterday by the New York Herald Tribune from J. Edgar Hoover, director of the bureau.

It is an account which is of unusual significance because of the fears of many Government employes that a "witch hunt" is on—fears that had become so widespread that President Truman saw fit Friday to assure loyal employes that such is not the case.

It is of importance, also, because of the complexity of the tasks that will confront members of the new Loyalty Review Board appointed by the President when they come to consider cases involving Federal workers.

Hoover's comprehensive story of the FBI's place in the whole security and loyalty picture came in the form of answers to 17 questions that were evolved as the result of a letter written to Hoover last Monday by this reporter.

The letter was sent in an effort to get at the truth behind the thousand and one rumors that have been flying around Washington since seven State Department employes were fired without ever being informed of the charges against them.

Here is the letter to Hoover which led him to give his answers yesterday:

Congress Unit Would Tie Aid To Taking DPs

U. S. Urged to Accept Refugees as Example To Other Countries

By Marshall Andrews
Post Reporter

Early admission of "significant numbers" of displaced persons from Europe was urged by a congressional committee yesterday as promising a "decisive effect" on other countries.

The three members of the committee informally told reporters they would seek to attach to any foreign aid legislation a provision requiring the receiving nation to accept a "fair share" of the million homeless persons still in DP camps.

Members of the House Foreign Affairs Subcommittee which made the report were Representatives Fulton (R., Pa.), chairman, and Javits (R., N. Y.) and Chelf (D., Ky.). The subcommittee was appointed to inspect DP camps and the facilities provided and methods employed by the International Relief Organization for handling them.

To Pay Resettlement Costs

At the same time, the preparatory commission for the IRO announced it would in the future pay resettlement costs of eligible refugees not now receiving care and maintenance. Heretofore, the commission's financial contributions to resettlement were limited to refugees being maintained by it.

The Fulton Subcommittee reported that, in general, it had found operation of DP camps satisfactory, but deplored the delay in arriving at a long-range solution of the problem. Among specific recommendations it offered were that:

1. An international conference establish quotas among its member nations for reception of DPs and conditions for resettlement, set a deadline for qualifying for IRO aid by individuals, and consider a permanent plan for care of "the hard core of displaced per-

This Chest Agency Has World Of Meaning for Deaf Child

A sound, perhaps just a tone of voice, perhaps the word "Mama."

The child hears it. You can tell he has heard it because of the way he holds his head so intently.

Perhaps he will repeat the sound. If he does, he is on the way to learning how to live in his own private world—a world where all sounds will be at least fainter than they are to most people, and where many sounds will not be heard at all.

For this child is one of the unnumbered thousands who is either born without full hearing, or, who because of a childhood illness, becomes "hard of hearing."

In less enlightened times, such a child might have been stoned to death for no other crime than deafness.

Now there is acceptance of the fact that children can be born deaf—and that there is no stigma to [illegible]—or that because of the effects of such simple diseases as measles and chickenpox a child may lose partially or completely his hearing.

And there are organizations which do something about this condition of being hard-of-hearing. For most of those people, care and proper training can mean the difference between a world in which there is only silence and a world approaching normal proportions.

So frequently it happens. A parent, distressed at what seems alternately apathy and restlessness on the part of a child, will come to the sad conclusion that the child is deaf.

And so the worried parent goes to the Washington Society for the Hard of Hearing, a Community Chest agency, and asks for help. That parent has a long, hard road ahead. He must learn lip reading, the importance of hearing health, how to correct speech for the child

Meyers Loan Effort Called Attempted Extortion

Attorney McCarthy Airs His Belief; Contract Inquiry Veers From Hughes

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

Charges that Maj. Gen. Bennett E. Meyers had been guilty of "attempted extortion and blackmail" in his wartime dealings with Howard Hughes, West Coast aviation genius, were aired yesterday before the Senate War Investigating Committee.

Chairman Homer Ferguson (R., Mich.) said the subcommittee had concluded its inquiry into Hughes' war contracts and would return tomorrow to general Army Air Force procurement matters.

The multimillionaire airman will take off some time today, weather permitting, to fly back to his California home. His hour of departure was uncertain last night.

Neil S. McCarthy, noted Los Angeles attorney and onetime Hughes' executive, told the committee he now believed that the efforts of the wartime Army Air Force procurement officer to borrow $200,000 from Hughes in 1944 constituted "attempted extortion."

Produces No Fireworks

Four days ago Meyers had loudly denounced as "damnable, unadulterated lies" previous testimony of McCarthy and Hughes that he had sought a job and tried to borrow $200,000 from Hughes. He had demanded that he be confronted by McCarthy on the witness stand.

The committee obliged by calling McCarthy, but the "confrontation" resulted in no fireworks from Meyers. In questions submitted by Smith Brookhart, his attorney, Meyers attempted to show that his wife was present throughout his conversations with McCarthy. She was present part of the time, McCarthy said.

McCarthy said that if he had believed in June, 1944, that Meyers was "trying to blackmail Howard Hughes" he would have reported it to the proper authorities.

But, said McCarthy, evidence developed by the committee in the last day or two seemed to indicate that it wouldn't have done any good if he had.

First Changes in 1945

The committee has been hearing testimony from sweating Army "brass" that they received a complaint of Meyers' dealings as far back as 1945 and failed to investigate it.

Pressed by Ferguson to explain why he had not considered the loan request "attempted extortion" when it was made, McCarthy replied:

"As a lawyer, Senator, you know as well as I do that a criminal intent must be shown in attempted extortion."

At the time, McCarthy said, he did not believe Meyers had "a criminal intent," because the procurement general said he had taken the matter up with his superiors, even with Gen. H. H. (Hap) Arnold, commanding Air Force general, and been assured it would be perfectly all right.

Incidentally, McCarthy flung in, Meyers said he had made similar deals with other people, but he

Boston, Nov. 15 (U.P.).—Andrei Y. Vishinsky, deputy foreign minister of the Soviet Union, said today that the "progressive forces of American society" should raise their voice in the press and social organizations "against the propaganda in the U. S. A. for another war."

Vishinsky made the suggestion in a letter to the Massachusetts branch of the United Nations Association whose director, M. Bernard Fox, had asked for concrete suggestions for developing a firm trend toward peace.

Vishinsky said it was important to "stand firm against calumnies and spreading of hatred about all other nations and countries, and to instill respect and friendly feelings for the country, where the power is in the hands of workers and peasant, and where they build a new life."

Wisconsin Starts MacArthur Drive

President of Group Declares He Has Reason to Think General Will Accept

Milwaukee, Nov. 15 (U.P.).—Gen. Douglas MacArthur, in a letter read to admirers opening a MacArthur-for President campaign, said today that Americans should be restored to their traditional voice in political and economic decisions.

The letter did not say whether MacArthur would become a candidate for the Republican presidential nomination. But his supporters, who began their national campaign today in this, MacArthur's home town, said they were sure he would be available.

Lansing Hoyt, president of the Wisconsin MacArthur-for-President Club, said:

"We have reason to believe Douglas MacArthur will accept the presidential nomination when it is offered to him, otherwise we would not be engaged in this great cause."

The campaign was opened at a conference attended by delegates from 11 States. The meeting was held in the Plankington Hotel, which MacArthur lists as his legal residence.

The general's letter was addressed to Joseph Choate, Los Angeles lawyer and chairman of the California MacArthur-for-President Club. Dated September 10, it replied to a letter from Choate to MacArthur, in which the lawyer had said:

"You will have no choice in the matter, but by conscription and acclamation you will be the choice of the Republican Party as candidate for the White House."

In his reply, MacArthur thanked Choate for his "fine letter." He continued:

"I fully agree with yo uthat the issues facing our country, and indeed the entire civilized world, are perplexing and grave, but they are by no means insuperable.

"I believe that when we reorient ourselves to the course which in the past brought us to national strength and political greatness; when we draw closer to those simple concepts which sought the maxims of personal liberty in the raising of individual dignity, and when we again understand, as did Lincoln, the fundamental soundness of the people's own wisdom and judgment, and once more restore the people's voice to the orbit of political and economic discussion and decision—then we shall begin to reshape our civilization the better to serve the wellbeing of our own people and to meet the vital tests of world leadership which lie ahead.

"It is undeniable that leadership which fails to meet the vital test of domestic issues cannot hope to command a following in its assault upon the broader world issues. The need, of course, is not in the concentration of greater power in the controls of state, but in the reservation of much more power in the people as intended by the constitutional mandates, more leadership and less direction."

Hoyt said the group would not name a national chairman until next month, to give more MacArthur backers an opportunity to announce their position officially.

Registered delegates to the conference were George E. Lach and William N. Donohu, Minneapolis, Minn.; Mrs. Mary E. Kenny, Lincoln, Nebr.; L. M. Lewis, Chicago; Dr. W. L. Johns, East Chicago, Ind.; Willard A. Bartlett, Muncie, Ind.; W. Hobart Morgan, Hopewell, Ohio; James A. Grazier, Reading, Pa.; Jay Fred Switzer, Brooklyn, N. wasn't sure whether it was with war contractors or not.

He now believed that Meyers did have that "criminal intent," McCarthy said, "because of his desperately false statements here, trying to justify himself," by saying that McCarthy and Hughes had tried to force a $250,000 loan on him.

"I simply have the facts now that he testified falsely here, which would indicate that he knew all the time that what he asked was wrong," McCarthy declared.

The Los Angeles attorney said that of course he knew, and Hughes knew, it would have been a corrupt act if they had loaned Meyers money, or had given him an advance on a postwar job, which McCarthy said Meyers asked.

That is why both a loan and any "deal" for a postwar job were turned down, McCarthy said.

McCarthy said when Meyers insisted he had made similar deals with others, he had advised the general to report the matter immediately to his superiors.

He said he warned the Army officer that some day there would be an investigation and the story would be brought to light.

"When the war is over this thing will stigmatize you. You take my word for it," McCarthy said he warned Meyers.

A little later Hughes himself took the stand.

Wanted to Sum Up

The scrappy flier wanted to sum up for his own side.

General Meyers, Hughes said, might be confused in his mind about who made the loan proposition but there never was any confusion about the fact that Hughes turned it down.

They both, he pointed out, had always agreed on the fact he had refused the loan.

Hughes cited Meyers' testimony that it was McCarthy who had offered the loan, and Hughes who had refused it.

"Now I certainly don't think Mr. McCarthy would toss around $250,000 of his client's money without the client first telling him to do it.

"And it is very difficult for me to understand why I would tell McCarthy to make General Meyers the offer of a loan and then turn around and call General Meyers on the telephone and flatly refuse to make the loan.

"If I didn't want to loan money to General Meyers, and if I called him on the telephone and flatly refused to loan him money, then why n the world would I have told McCarthy to offer any such loan in the first place."

"The answer is very obvious. McCarthy never offered General Meyers a loan."

Hughes said that in Ferguson's line of questioning there had been an "implied challenge" of statements that his war contracts were not tainted with fraud.

"What better proof could there be that there was no corruption—what better proof than the fact that I turned down General Meyers' loan proposition?

"If I had wanted to obtain the XF-11 contract by corrupt means, wouldn't I have loaned him the money?

"There was practically no chance of losing the money if I had loaned it to him, and I would have assured the XF-11 contract going through.

"Instead of that, I turned down his loan proposition and I thought I was writing the death warrant for the XF-11 airplane when I did it.

"Now, what better proof could you have that there was no fraud or corruption in the XF-11 deal?"

He called upon Ferguson to withdraw "the implied challenge."

Ferguson quickly assured Hughes that neither he nor any other member of the subcommittee had reached any conclusions in the case.

The committee report on the matter will speak for itself, he said.

The fighting flier also complained because, he said, "the public was kept in the dark" for a day or two as to whether he or General Meyers was telling the truth about the attempted loans when the committee had "all sorts of evidence in its files about Meyers' relations with other contractors which would have shown very clearly who was telling the truth."

Irked By Headlines

Irked because Meyers' charge of "liar" against him had been headlined from coast to coast, Hughes said he thought the committee should have disclosed all the evidence against Meyers at once.

Ferguson said it was simply impossible to put all the evidence in the record on one day, and there was much, much more to come concerning General Meyers.

"I accept your explanation," Hughes said tersely.

Hughes has maintained from the start that he was the one airplane manufacturer who was "kicked around" by the procurement "brass" at Wright Field during the war. Meyers was second ranking procurement offcer in the AAF and one-time commanding officer at Wright Field. Hughes testified last week he once thought he'd won Meyers' friendship during the war, but had discovered since hearing committee evidence that maybe he hadn't.

Now Out of Spotlight

The committee long since had turned its attention away from Hughes, his flying boat — the world's largest airplane—and the photo-reconnaissance airplane, to some of the activities of Meyers and other procurement officers.

One of the most striking indications of the general shift of interest occurred as the flier, still playing a winning hand so far as his contracts are concerned, stepped from the witness stand after giving his last testimony to the committee, and the hearings were recessed.

Newspaper correspondents, among whom Hughes has long been an obvious favorite, started to surge toward the flier mainly to say "goodbye."

But word spread that General Meyers was holding a press conference.

Turn in Their Tracks

To a man, reporters turned in their tracks and flocked about the general, leaving Hughes to walk from the hearing room alone.

It was the last final indication that the Hughes hearings have become the Meyers hearings or perhaps the Army Air Force hearings.

Meyers wanted to say that he agreed with the testimony volunteered yesterday by former Lieut. Gen. Ira C. Eaker, AAF, now employed by Hughes Tool Co. as a consultant.

Meyers had brought Eaker's name into the hearings by saying he had bought stock in his own name for Eaker.

Eaker testified differently and Meyers told reporters that he was certain Eaker was correct.

McCarthy, white-haired, florid-faced attorney, who is also noted for his polo playing, tangled severa ltimes with Ferguson.

He told the committee sharply that he had told Representatives in the first place when they had interv ewed him that they would never find Hughes guilty of any froud or corruption.

of a candidate who is an odds-on favorite.

"If I win that nomination," he said, " it will be my hope that the vice presidential nominee selected by the convention is an able Republican, leader of the New England or Middle Atlantic area (New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania), who, in a broad sense, has the same philosophy of governmental policy, domestic and foreign, and who understands the importance to the West of agriculture in total national decisions."

Charlie O'Brien, a Puckish political reporter for the Denver Post, interpreted Stassen's reference to New York as a hint that he might be willing to consider Dewey for the No. 2 place on the ticket.

Stassen's "me, too" blast against Dewey was a supplement to a speech he had prepared for today's luncheon. He dictated it yesterday aboard his chartered plane when flying to Denver from Lincoln, Nebr., then copies were rolled off on the mimeograph machine which the plane carries.

What was behind the statement? Why should Stassen risk giving the Democrats ammunition against a man who is the titular leader of the Republican Party, who is widely regarded as the No. 1 contender in the current GOP race, and who may very well leave the Philadelphia national convention in June as the Republican standard bearer for '48?

To begin with, Stassen is genuinely annoyed by Dewey's failure to speak out on the Taft-Hartley bill and other issues of the day. He began to needle Dewey months ago, and went so far as to say that he would not be a vice presidential nominee on a ticket headed by Dewey.

His reference today to eleventh-hour "me too" answers evidently was a crack at Dewey's belated indorsement of the Marshall Plan.

Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio, who is the third avowed candidate in the Republican race, feels as Stassen does about Dewey's "strategy of silence." Taft was particularly angry with Dewey because of the New Yorker's failure to back up the record of the Republican-dominated Eightieth Congress in its first session.

Other foes of Dewey have complained that he waits for the Gallup Poll before taking a stand on issues.

Governor Dewey so far has not announced his candidacy, and apparently hopes that he can continue to go along without an announcement, as he did so successfully in '44.

This is another thing that must irk Stassen. In the foreword to his book, "Where I Stand," he said he doubted that "Coyness or clever evasion are accepted as qualities of leadership by the American people." And today, in his luncheon speech, he said that "the West will not be won by evading issues or by a condescending attitude."

Finally, Stassen and Taft both know that Dewey is the man they must beat in 1948. For unless the New Yorker can be headed off, neither of them will have a chance Granting all these things, today's development still was an extraordinary. The country is accustomed to seeing brawls in the Democratic Party, but a donnybrook in the GOP is something of a novelty.

Stassen has been given a friendly reception here in Denver. Whether he has picked up any of the 15 delegates that Colorado will have at the Philadelphia convention is something else. Dewey and Taft seem to be the leaders.

This evening Stassen flew over the mountains to address a rally at Grand Junction, and was to return to Denver late tonight. Tomorrow morning he will go to church, take a hike, and then fly to Amarillo, Tex.

AEC Imposes Controls on Atomic Export

By The Associated Press

The United States is imposing new controls to govern the export of equipment which might be used in atomic energy experiments.

The Atomic Energy Commission, which has been relying on the export licensing authority of the Department of Commerce and the State Department, is supplementing them with its own regulations.

A license from the Atomic Energy Commission will be required for the export of any equipment capable of producing any fissionable material, cyclotrons designed for "atom smashing" and similar devices.

Licenses also will be required for the export of such items as radiation detection equipment, high vacuum apparatus and other items which might be used in the basic atomic experimental mechanisms.

The commission's new regulation, effective next Thursday, also will embody a general license governing the manufacture, production, transfer and acquisition of atomic or related equipment within this country.

In passing upon any application for the export of specific apparatus, the commission said it would be guided by these standards:

Assuring the common defense and security; assuring an adequate supply of facilities for the production of fissionable material in this country; preventing the use of such facilities in a manner inconsistent with the national welfare, and effectuating the policies and purposes of the Atomic Energy Act of 1946.

King Mihai's Status Draws Speculation

Now in London, Young Monarch Is Peasants' Hero

Bucharest, Romania, Nov. 15 (AP). There is much speculation about the status of young King Mihai here in Romania, where h ewears the dignity of monarch and the Communists govern his people.

Now in London for the wedding of Princess Elizabeth, King Mihai is the only monarch enthroned in the Russian zone of influence.

Do the Russians like him? That is a question frequently asked here. He wears the high Soviet decoration, the Order of Victory, and at a recent Russian Embassy reception he was the center of attraction.

He is one of the few Romanians ever to get an exit and reentry visa since thewar for his trip, accompanied by his mother.

He is young and under the limitations of a constitutional monarch, but he has fought many a delaying action against the present Communist-dominated government—and sometimes he has won.

One of his victories forced inclusion of all parties in the Romanian government until elections could be held.

Fair-haired, 26 and dimple-cheeked, he is a heroic figure—almost a legendary one of youth and bravery—in the eyes of the Romanian peasantry. His popularity is not that of an ordinary politician, and would be difficult to destroy.

Given wise and impartial advisers he might succeed in keeping himself above the political turmoil.

He appears popular, too, with many members of the present government. Recently deputies cheered him wildly in parliament.

King Mihai Arrives In London for Wedding

London, Nov. 15 (AP).—Bachelor King Mihai of Romania flew into London today—among the first of the royal guests for Princess Elizabeth's wedding next week, but a diplomatic and romantic puzzle in his own right.

The monarch arrived in his own small two-engined plane with Queen Helen, his mother, and the Duchess of Aosta, the former Princess Irene of Greece.

Mihai piloted the plane part of the way on its flight from Geneva, Switzerland, but a Romanian air force officer was at the controls when it landed.

'Vices' Debated

Campus Split Over Dancing And Smoking

Westerville, Ohio, Nov. 15 (U.P.).—Education at century-old Otterbein College took a back seat today as students split on whether dancing and smoking should be allowed on the campus or these "vices" be practiced in "two-bit beer joints."

The rift between the students at Westerville—home of the Anti-Saloon League—appeared when ministerial students circulated a resolution to ban smoking in the "Otter-Barn," new student union building nearing completion. At the same time, some students declared dancing also should be banned in the new building.

The college is an affiliate of the Evangelical-United Brethren Church holds smoking and dancing among the worst of vices.

Overlok Infractions

Otterbein officials have overlooked some infractions and President J. Gordon Howard believes the controversy stems from the differences of adults within the church itself.

"Bith sides should try to live together happily," he said.

Douglas Gordon, a veteran and theological student, said the college attitude was driving students into "two-bit beer joints."

Point to Handbook

"I told college officials about the beer joints," Gordon said, "but they said, 'Ottenbein students don't drink, it says so in the handbook."

Gordon said one recreation building on the campus "gathers dust" because dancing and smoking are not allowed and that the new building would be a "flop" unless smoking and dancing were allowed.

Man's Disappearance From Ferry Unsolved

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 15 (AP).—Anne Arundel County police said tonight there were no developments in the case of F. T. Murray of Baltimore, who disappeared last night from the Chesapeake Bay ferry Gov. Herbert R. O'Conor.

George Phillips, assistant general manager of the State-owned ferry system, said Murray's son Frank, also of Baltimore, reported his father had left home supposedly to go to a movie in Baltimore, and had not mentioned a ferry trip.

"IT'S HECTIC!" says Mrs. Lois Guerrieri as she packed yesterday to leave for New York on the first leg of her trip to London to attend the Princess Elizabeth's wedding reception. First thing Mrs. Guerrieri did was to forget her invitation telephone call brought promises the bag would get to New York before I leave in the morning.

I sat there on the train looking at my children's pictures in The Washington Post.

I could cry. But why? We will all miss each other for a few days which will not hurt any of us. They were restless in their sleep when I left. It seems funny to see people on the train reading about my trip. I wonder if any of them recognized me?

THE kiddies must be in the movies about this time. We cancelled music lessons so they could go.

I had a real lesson in Americanism on the way up.

Headed thousands of miles away from the United States, it made me feel a little sad just to think of leaving it—and more so after hearing America's glory told by a foreigner.

He was a Persian, an assistant professor at the University of Tehran who had been in Washington to see the city and visit the White House.

When he heard my story he brightened . . . "Only in America could such a wonderful thing happen to people."

He asked for my autograph! Then I asked him to write in my book. Its inscription was in Persian—but he gave me a literal translation—an excerpt from a Persian poem . . .

"May the bird of happiness attend this traveler on a journey far from home."

I almost cried again.

5 Guerrieris 'Keep House', Let Mother Go to Royal Party

By Charles E. Davis, Jr.
Post Reporter

Except for two damp noses, everything was running smothly yesterday in the Guerrieri household at 1724 S st. se.

Louis Guerrieri propped an atlas in front of 3-year-old Mary as he tried to explain that her mother was flying to England to attend Princess Elizabeth's pre-wedding party at St. James' Palace Tuesday afternoon.

Mary sniffled and agreed that England loked 'awful far."

The older children—Richard, 12, Cormella, 8, and Lois, 6—looked on tolerantly.

They knew that mother had made a dress as a wedding gift for Princess Elizabeth, sent it off to England and in return had received a royal thank you and an invitation to the Tuesday afternoon party.

And that The Washington Post was sending her to London to attend the party and cable back her experiences.

In the absence of the 32-year-old wife and mother, her husband, 42-year-old specifications writer with the District Engineering Department, and the four children kept the household on even keel.

Mary (she'll be 4 on Christmas Day) and Lois had slight colds yesterday, but their father was administering medicine. "Their temperatures were down tonight," he reported.

Because of the younger children's colds, their father canceled plans to take them to the movies.

The older children knew that their mother was expected back next Friday or Saturday. Even so, they kept asking their father how long she would be gone. They missed her.

So did Mr. Guerrieri.

"I wonder if I'll get a chance to talk to her—oh, I suppose she'll be too busy," he remarked to a reporter.

He has taken a leave of absence from his job for the coming week so he can take care of the house.

"My work's all caught up," he said.

Father Guerrieri was given a helping hand yesterday by his wife's sister-in-law, Mrs. Rosalie Smith, of 2018 14th st. sw., who spent most of the day at the house.

Twelve-year-old Richard went out and did the weekend grocery shopping while his father stayed home to watch the other children.

He helped his father cook dinner last night. Quite a dinner it was. Lamb chops for ailing Mary and Lois. Round steak for the rest. Then there was pineapple juice, broccoli, potatoes and baked applies for dessert.

"Richard . . . he's a fine cook," complimented his father. "He cooks excellent cakes. He's even made them for the teachers at Kramer Junior High School."

Who was to do the dishes?

"My job," said Guerrieri.

And who'll get the kids to bed?

"My job," echoed the father.

He explained that Richard would watch the younger children while he washed the dishes and would help get the younger children tucked in bed.

"We all pitch in cleaning the house, though, even little Mary," declared Guerrieri. "She likes to polish the furniture."

They all want to have the house spotless (just like mother left it) when she gets back from her flying trip to England.

U. S. to Track Branded Seals

By The Associated Press

United States scientists have branded 20,000 seal pups at Alaska's Pribilof Islands and they are following them out past the Aleutians to determine whether they migrate into Japanese or Soviet waters.

Lest the Government tread upon international toes, however, the scientists have been ordered to halt their westward journey at the International Date Line. Where the seals go beyond that point will remain a matter of conjecture.

The Fish and Wildlife Service disclosed this yesterday in a statement which said that the tagging of the 1947 crop of fur seal pups, first step in an intensive study of seal migration routes and food habits, has been completed.

The pups were marked with metal tags attached to their flippers. Their fur coats become prime at the age of 3 years, and thus they are part of the group doomed to be killed for the market in 1950.

Except for the three summer months spent at Pribilof Islanls during the breeding season, the three million fur seals of the North Pacific are pelagic, or sea-going, animals, their movements largely unknown.

"We want to find out whether the entire herd goes down the Canadian-United States coast or whether it splits, part of it traveling westward into Soviet and Japanese waters," Dr. Gustav A. Swanson, chief of the agency's Division of Wildlife Research, said.

Pastors Hit GI Unit Clubs In Germany as 'Rotten Dives'

By The Associated Press

The small clubs operated by American soldiers in occupied Germany were condemned by two touring clergymen today as "breeding spots of immortality" and "rotten dives."

The first description came from the Rev. August M. Hintz of the First Baptist Church in Sioux Falls, S. D.; the second was supplied by Dr. Stewart Robinson, pastor of the Second Presbyterian Church of Elizabeth, N. J., and vice chairman of the General Commission on Chaplains.

The comments were contained in their reports to the Army on a 35-day tour of the occupied zones by a group of 14 American clergymen. Five other members of the group had reported previously.

Dr. Robinson said the clubs "should either have close supervision or be closed." He noted these small company unit clubs have nothing to do with the "excellently run" canteens operated by the Army Special Services and the Red Cross.

"They (the small unit clubs) are undoubtedly fruitful sources for the spread of disease and represent a curious revenge on the part of the vaniquished over the victors," Dr. Robinson declared.

Hintz said careful study should be made of the problem of GI marriages with German girls.

"Also," he wrote, "I feel that very special investigation ought to be made of the cases where the girls wish to marry American Negroes. Although I believe the Negro troops should have the same liberties as white troops, I am sure many very difficult problems are likely to arise if the Negro comes to America with a German bride, problems that will make it very difficult for them ever to have a peaceful, happy home here."

The Army Department sends copies of each clergymen's report to the occupation zone commands concerned, an Army spokesman said.

New Clews Reported In Siam King's Death

Official Declares Ananda Was Killed; Several Arrested

Bangkok, Siam, Nov. 15 (U.P.).—The violent death of young King Ananda Mahidol 17 months ago was a political assassination and several persons have been arrested by military police for questioning, a government spokesman declared today.

The spokesman, Pin Chunhawan, deputy supreme commander of the armed forces under the week-old reform government, said that new evidence has been uncovered which may lead to a solution of the mystery surrounding the 20-year-old King's death in June, 1946.

Pin Chunhawan gave no details of the new evidence, nor did he disclose the identity or number of those arrested.

Found Dead in Palace

Young Ananda was found dead in his bedroom at Barompinian Palace. A 20-man medical board in a formal report said death was caused by a bullet in the forehed from a gun held about 7½ inches away.

Less than a week after the king's death a medical board, which included an American, two British and one British Indian physician, said the king's death was due either to suicide or assassination. While no final verdict was possible, the report said, "the position of the body pointed to assassination."

Brother Is Abroad

Ananda was succeeded by Prince Phumiphon Aduldet, his brother, who was declared king under a regency while still a minor. Phumiphon, now studying in Switzerland, will reach his majority on December 5 and has been asked by the reform government to return to Siam. Previously he did not plan to return until next March.

Pin Chunhawan said also that the bloodless coup last Sunday by Siam military forces under Field Marshal Luang Phibun Songgram was staged to prevent revolutionary forces from seizing control of the country and installing a republican form of government in this traditional monarchy.

Pre-Storm Lull: Winter Drive Seen Aim of China Reds

Peiping, Nov. 15 (AP).—Chinese Communists today were believed plotting new blows in North China as a strategic forerunner for a winter offensive in Manchuria, where they now are stalled.

Government air reconnaissance spotted Communist columns moving toward Taiyuan, capital of Shansi province, and making seeming preparations to assault Paoting, capital of Hopeh province to the east.

Any full dress assault on either might be designed to draw off government divisions from Manchuria.

The withdrawal of government troops from North China to meet the now-finished falp drive of the Communists in Manchuria gave the Reds their big chance in Hopeh Province.

It is estimated six government divisions were syphoned from Hopeh, and with its defenses sapped, the Communists promptly fell upon Shihkiachwang, 172 miles southwest of Peiping, and captured it.

With that big government base apparently firmly in hand, the Communists conquerors now are moving along the railway leading to Taiyuan, which is about 100 airline miles west of Shihkiachwang.

Simultaneously, the Communists are active in the region around Paoting, 80 miles northeast of Shihkiachwang.

Red Cell in State Department Balked China Plan, Judd Says

By The Associated Press

Representative Judd (R., Minn.) said yesterday that a "red cell" in the State Department doomed Secretary of State Marshall's 1946 mission to China before Marshall set out. He added that it successfully blocked President Roosevelt's policy of supporting the Chinese Central Government.

"Never was a soldier sent out on such an impossible mission as General Marshall undertook, tricked by people who are home," Judd testified before the House Foreign Affairs Committee.

He told reporters later that by "those who are at home" he meant "a red cell in the State Department."

In a plea for immediate military and economic help for China, Judd told the committee that the "red cell's trick" was engineered in so wording a statement by President Truman on United States policy toward China that Marshall's mission was defeated at the outset.

The Minnesota lawmaker, a former medical missionary to China, showed reporters a copy of the President's statement, issued on December 15, 1945, just before Marshall left for China, in which Judd had underlined Mr. Truman's words:

"As China moves to peace and unity, the United States Government would be prepared to assist the (Chinese) national government in every reasonable way."

Judd told newsmen:

"Those were General Marshall's instructions—that the United States would help Gen. Chiang Kai-shek's government only if Chiang Kai-shek was able to restore peace and unity. That was the tip-off to the Communists that all they hadto do to prevent the Chinese government from receiving American aid was to upset peace and unity."

Formosans Under China Rule Seen Drifting to Communism

By Spencer Davis

Tainan, Formosa, Nov. 15 (AP).—Strategic Formosa, exploited by Japan for 50 years, chafes today under restored Chinese sovereignty, and some informed opinion sees a drift toward communism.

This much I learned in a fast trp to this 225-mile-long island off the South China coast, which dominates air and shipping lanes from North China, Japan and Korea to the rich lands and islands to the south.

The six million Formosans are dispirited and sullen since an abortive uprising last February was crushed by Chinese military police.

Several hundred of them died and an unknown number of Formosans later were executed in what is known here as "the incident."

(John W. Powell, an American, slipped into Formosa last March and wrote in his China Weekly Review in Shanghai that 5000 Formosans lost their lives in "the incident.")

Long Under Jap Rule

The fortunes of war-wrenched Formosa from the Chinese Empire in 1895 for two generations of absolute Japanese rule, then in 1945 handed it back to China's military administrators as a province.

Postwar looting by Chinese soldiers, wholesale arrests of political suspects who have never returned from prison, sharp trading by Shanghai and Nanking "carpetbaggers," indifference of civil officials, all these have reduced these people of Chinese ancestry to disillusionment and despair.

Some informed sources say the sole reason Formosa has not been a scene of renewed violence and bloodshed since February is a lack of arms.

Formosa is a ripe field for propaganda, and that is where observers see a drift toward communism. Chinese military administrators say there has been a sharp intensification of Communist propaganda recently.

Soviet films depicting the armed might of Russia and its great expanse of territory are shown in theaters in Tainan and elsewhere.

Russian Propaganda

Hesitation at provoking an incident with Russia is declared to be the reason why Chinese authorities allowed the films to be shown.

Among foreigners now in Taipei (Taihoku) the capital in northern Formosa, are a number of Russians from Shanghai.

The decision of the United States to train a Chinese division in Formosa produced a mixed reaction among Formosans. Some feel the United States officers and men will be given a rousing welcome, but they resent any additional Chinese soldiers coming here.

A 34-year-old graduate of a Tainan school said there was fear the decision to train Chinese soldiers in Formosa might mean conscription of Formosans to fight the Chinese Communists.

He asked that if the United States could not administer Formosa directly, it at least intercede in Nanking on behalf of the Formosan people.

British Deny They'll Strip Palestine of Its Capital

By Don Cook

London, Nov. 15.—The Foreign Office confirmed tonight that Palestine government surpluses will be used to liquidate certain administrative costs, such as the Cyprus illegal immigrant camps, but denied that when Britain evacuates the country any capital will be removed.

"It is highly doubtful that there will be any surpluses when evacuation has been completed," the spokesman said, "it is more likely that there will be a deficit which this country will have to make up."

The spokesman said that Palestine will not bear the cost of evacuating British trops. The operation, which is to be carried out by August of next year, will be charged to the regular United Kingdom military and naval appropriations. The Foreign Office comments were made in discussing a dispatch from the New York Herald Tribune's Jerusalem correspondent outlining reported plans for the financial side of the liquadation o fthe British mandate.

Most of the present paper surpluses in the Palestine treasury will go for pensions for civil servants of the Palestine government.

Asked about the Jerusalem report that Palestine bonds were to be transferre to London, the spokesman said the bonds already were pledged against pounds sterling and that their disposition was a Palestine government matter. The spokesman id not know whether terrorist property damage charges would be levied against balances, and had no information either on reports that Britain would sell its Haifa waterfront properties instead of turning them over to the Palestine government.

Palestine Tightens Security Regulations

Jerusalem, Nov. 15 (AP).—Security regulations were tightened in Palestine tonight as the screaming of sirens, heavy shooting and the exploding of pamphlet and banner bombs added to the jitters of the Holy Land. No casualties were reported.

Jewish sources in Tel Aviv said two ships carrying 1350 illegal immigrants were off the coast seeking a chance to land.

Communist-supervised Transport Workers Union, attempted to break into the hall.

[In line with their orders to put down riot, 200 policemen charged the demonstrators, clubbing them mercilessly. The demonstrators fled but wthin a few minutes began stopping buses as a protest against the "unjustified brutality" of the police. Then the Communist-directed Rome Federation of Labor, officially called out bus drivers.

[Minister of the Interior Mario Scelba said that one difficulty faced by the government is that lies are being used deliberately to incite rioters.

[The transit workers were told that they were going to a gathering of the Italian Social Movement, Scelba said. The I.S.M. is a new party which boldly espouses many Fascist doctrines.—Editor's note.]

Robert Lucifero, a Liberal deputy, declared in the Assembly that the transportation strike was an example of the leftist attacks on De Gasperi's middle-of-the-road government.

Leftist-controlled labor elements also struck at nonsympathetic sections of the press.

Printers refused to put out today's edition of the Liberal (conservative) Party organ Risorgimento Liberale because its director rejected an ultimatum to publish in its entirety a resolution of the Typographical Union attacking what the union called the "capitalist and neo-Fascist" press.

Voce Republicana, a newspaper of the small left-of-center Republican Party, ran the resolution in one edition but withdrew it when it learned that the union required its publication. No further editions appeared.

Giulio de Marzio, director of the independent morning newspaper Il Momento, resigned rather than publish the statement, and the newspaper appeared over another's signature.

Ramadier Calls Leaders To Important Meetings

Paris, Nov. 15 (AP).—Socialist Premier Paul Ramadier today called a series of important meetings of political leaders for this weekend in an effort to strengthen his middle-of-the-road government as a "third force" to meet the rising threat of Communist violence on the left and De Gaullist opposition on the right.

The call went out after the Communists today presented a grave new threat to the government by ordering "action of the popular masses" against cabinet decrees raising gas, electricity and railroad rates, and had stirred riotous trouble in Marseille.

The Paris Communist Party committee directed all who use the utilities to form "action committees" to carry out a struggle for the abrogation of the increases, and hinted at strikes in the public services by declaring such committees would have the "active support of workers in transport and gas and electricity industries."

Greeks Defeat Leftist Force

Athens, Nov. 15 (AP).—The Greek press ministry announced tonight that heavily armed leftist guerillas had attacked Komotine in Thrace bue were repulsed by the artillery-supported defending force. The leftists left several dead, the ministry said.

Press dispatches said Greek army troops had launched an offensive against the leftists in the north of Salonika. The bodies of 60 guerillas were found after the initial clash. Kilkis is near the juncture of the Greek-Yugoslav-Bulgarian borders.

In western Macedonia five villages west of Grevena were reported occupied by the Greek army.

Approximately 100 persons, described as Communists, were arrested in the Peloponnesus city of Patrai.

sons who cannot be resettled in any country."

2. Congress hasten to permit admission into this country of DPs outside regular immigration quotas to provide "just the leadership needed to make the international conference succeed."

3. The United States take the initiative in pressing for the opening of Palestine to Jewish DPs.

4. Religious and charitable organizations now aiding DPs coordinate their efforts "into a united front comparable with the USO movement."

5. Displaced persons be dealt with "as individuals with human rights due all mankind and not so much as war surplus material, chattels or personal property."

6. Individual States in the United States take stock of their needs for technical and professional services and arrange in advance for settlement of displaced persons. Recent action by Minnesota and Maine was cited as "typical of what is desired in the way of planning and surveying."

Vienna Newspaper Jogs Memory Of Reds About Help From America

Vienna, Nov. 15.—Russia's memory on the volume of aid contributed by the United States during the war and for peace-time rehabilitation was refreshed here today in a detailed and sharply-worded editorial in the American-sponsored newspaper.

Listing statistically the quantities of wartime material, from jeeps to uniform buttons, and from postwar tractors to poultry, sent to Russia by the United States, the "Wiener Kurier" rebuked the Soviet for urging Austrians to eschew American aid and rehabilitatate themselves through their own efforts.

"It ill befits the spokesmen for the Soviet Union to tell Austria to refuse help from the West when that same West—that capitalistic West which the Soviets so constantly damn—is helping Russia to regain economic health," the newspaper said.

Last week the Russian commander, Col. Gen. L. V. Kourasov, boasted that Russia "achieved its success without help from abroad."

"It is difficult to believe that the Russian memory is so short," the "Wiener Kurier" commented. "Are the Russian words stencilled on the American jeeps that roam the Soviet zone so deceptive that the speaker (General Kourasov) has forgotten where they came from?"

"And how did the Soviet army march to Vienna?" the newspaper continued. "Those of the troops who reached here must in some cases have been wearing some of the 15,417,000 pairs of army boots that United States Lend-Lease gave their motherland during the war years, and if they weren't marching they probably were riding in some of the 375,000 trucks that lend-lease sent from America."

U. S. Movies May Fade Out In Balkans

Prague, Czechoslovakia, Nov. 15. (U.P.).—Hollywood motion pictures, still America's greatest propaganda force—for good or evil—in countries behind the "Iron Curtain," are slated for gradual elimination by the Communist Information Bureau, political quarters indicated today.

Fred Astaire will have to give up the spotlight to Prague's light-footed Karel Hoeger and Russia's Alexander Alexanjov will be replacing British producer Sir Alexender Korda as fast as film production in Czech and Soviet studios can be increased.

The campaign keynote was sounded this week by Lubomir Linhart, director of Czech nationalized films, when he demanded removal of "American film rubbish from our markets."

American films are now shown in Poland, Czechoslovakia, Hungary, Romania and Bulgaria under official and private agreements made by producer members of the Motion Picture Export Association of America.

Czechoslovakia, which turned out 14 full-length features last year, has expanded with a schedule of 22 this year, plus an increase of more than 50 per cent in their prize-winning shorts and cartoons.

WEIRDEST YET—The Air Force yesterday took the veils off this gadget—a helicopter motorcycle, powered by supersonic ram jet units to spin the rotor blades. would be inconvenient for our American friends to have the Assembly here on the eve of a presidential election."

But one American delegate said anonymously that the United Nations would present no embarrassment in an election year even if 'some nation did some active electioneering from this platform."

"We'd like for some nations to see how we bite each other's ear during a good election fight and then abide by the majority decision for another four years."

One delegate from the Soviet bloc, also anonymously, said his friends objected to American newspapers, especially around New York. "It's more peaceful in Europe," he said. "There's too much warmongering around New York."

Besides, he recalled that Dmitri Manuilsky of the Ukraine last year asked that the Assembly be held in Geneva.

Frankest were three Latin-American delegates. All agreed they wanted to see Paris for a change; they had seen all of New York.

Bevin Urges Parley Reason

Bristol, England, Nov. 15 (AP).—British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin said tonight the four-power Foreign Ministers' meeting, starting November 25, would be "almost the last chance of getting agreement." He expressed hope it would get down to "the basic facts of Europe."

"I hope that when we meet, reason—instead of fears—will play its part," Bevin told a transport workers' festival here.

"If you have got to try to settle the world on the basis of existing ideology—communism as against capitalism or some other ism—you cannot settle it; you will only drive it to greater trouble," he declared.

He said the Marshall Plan for European recovery with United States aid "is not dominating Europe; it is putting an obligation upon us."

"It is one of the reasons I have been so anxious to get export of coal to Sweden, Denmark and Norway," he said. "If we had the coal now I could settle the bacon contract with Denmark tomorrow and we could have more bacon, eggs and butter."

He declared that "there is a chance of getting an understanding and even peace in Europe" if efforts were made to "get people living right again."

"I hope America will rise to her opportunity," he added.

Equality for Teachers Asked

Mexico City, Nov. 15 (AP).—UNESCO's program and budget commission today unanimously passed a resolution upholding the equality of race, color, sex and religion in the selection of teachers.

The commission will present the resolution for final action at a plenary session of the United Natio[illegible]ucational, Scientific and Cult[illegible]rganization's second gen[illegible]rence.

S[illegible]nimous action was tak[illegible]ited States resolutio[illegible] UNESCO members to [illegible]mpulsory primary education as part of the program for peace.

The teaching resolution was offered by the French delegation during discussion of an international teachers' charter. A. A. Roberts, South African delegation chief, while offering no opposition in the show of hands, asserted that equality "cannot be applied in South Africa at present."

"Between eight million and nine million of the native population, living under primitive conditions, cannot be given as yet the same opportunities as Europeans," he said.

Trade Talks to Start Friday

New York, Nov. 15 (AP).—Countries doing most of the world's trading will meet next Friday in Havana under United Nations sponsorship to vote on a charter for an International Trade Organization, with the Marshall Plan an important, if disputed, factor in their debates.

The delegates will also be plagued by three holdover issues from the London, New York and Geneva parleys between October, 1946, and August, 1947, which shaped the proposed charter, but the new query increasingly heard is:

Why set up an International Trade Organization to act as traffic cop in the exchange of the world's goods, when under the Marshall Plan all roads may lead to and from Washington, anyway?

The old issues are: (1) Undeveloped vs. industrialized nations ("have-nots vs. haves"); (2) Voting by national units or by economic power (little countries vs. big); and (3) How tough to be with Russia and her satellites if they stay out of ITO (Russia and two satellites, Yugoslavia and Bulgaria, have already refused to attend the Havana parley).

United States State Department officials say the Marshall Plan and the proposed ITO do not conflict.

"The Marshall Plan is for the next four or five years," Clair Wilcox, director of the Office of International Trade Policy, says. "The ITO charter is for 50 years or more."

Four More Cars in Food Train

Cleveland, Nov. 15 (U.P.).—One section of the heavily laden Friendship Train, bearing food from the common people of the United States to the hungry peoples of Europe, rolled into Ohio today to receive additional contributions.

A string of 70 freight cars, bearing inscriptions telling what communities and organizations had filled them, entered Mansfield, Ohio, this afternoon and left at 3:10 p. m., 190,000 pounds heavier and four cars longer.

Divided into two sections at Chicago, the trains entered the last lap of a trip that started in Los Angeles November 7 and will end at New York loading docks Tuesday.

Train originator Drew Pearson, conducting the section which entered Mansfield from Fort Wayne, Ind., told some 300 Ohioans standing in rain that the train "may well total 200 cars by the time it hits New York."

Included in the four carloads added at Mansfield were 60,000 pounds of rolled oats contributed by the Quaker Oats Co. of Akron and $1000 in cash as well as a truckload of food donated anonymously.

The other section, split off at Chicago, was headed by industrialist Henry J. Kaiser. It left Elkhart, Ind., at 12:30 today and was due at Toledo, Ohio, for five carloads. It will then proceed to Cleveland.

Henry Gruppe Is Nominated To Annapolis

A former Central High School student, who was the highest ranking cadet officer in the High School Cadet Corps last year, has been nominated to the Naval Academy at Annapolis.

Gruppe

Senator Leverett Saltonstall (R., Mass.), yesterday announced he had named Henry Emile Gruppe, 18, of 6817 Georgia ave. nw. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Paulo M. Gruppe of Gloucester, Mass.

Gruppe, whose parents are concert musicians, was graduated with honors last June from Central High School here.

While serving as a colonel in the Washington High School Cadet Corps Gruppe also served as an apprentice seasan in the new Naval Reserve.

He later took a postgraduate course at Bullis Preparatory School in Silver Spring, Md.

Senator Saltonstall's nomination was for the class beginning next July. Gruppe was selected on the basis of examinations taken last summer.

Good News For Folks Who Suffer From ✓ STOMACH GAS
✓ SOUR FOOD TASTE
✓ ACID INDIGESTION
Do you feel bloated and miserable after every meal, taste sour, bitter food? If so, here is how you may get blessed relief from this nervous distress.
Everytime food enters the stomach a vital gastric juice must flow normally to break-up certain food particles; else the food may ferment. Sour food, acid indigestion and gas frequently cause a morbid, touchy, fretful, peevish, nervous condition, loss of appetite, underweight, restless sleep, weakness.
To get real relief you must increase the flow of this vital gastric juice. Medical authorities, in independent laboratory tests on human stomachs, have by positive proof shown that SSS Tonic is amazingly effective in increasing this flow when it is too little or scanty due to a non-organic stomach disturbance. This is due to the SSS Tonic formula which contains special and potent activating ingredients.
Also, SSS Tonic helps build-up non-organic, weak, watery blood in nutritional anemia—so with a good flow of this gastric digestive juice, plus rich red-blood you should eat better, sleep better, feel better, work better, play better.
Avoid punishing yourself with overdoses of soda and other alkalizers to counteract gas and bloating when what you so dearly need is SSS Tonic to help you digest food for body strength and repair. Don't wait! Join the host of happy people SSS Tonic has helped. Millions of bottles sold. Get a bottle of SSS Tonic from your drug store today. SSS Tonic helps Build Sturdy Health.

Hoover Explains FBI Role in Security-Loyalty Check of Federal Employes . . .

tain State Department employes have led, as you know, to a widespread discussion of the whole security and loyalty problem and of the specific role played by the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

"I am sure from the work that I have done on this security question that a great many men and women in and out of Government do not have a clear understanding of the role of the FBI.

"It may surprise you to know that I have had such statements as the following made to me in the many conversations I have had on the matter.

"1. That the FBI initiates loyalty or security investigations on its own.

"2. That the FBI shadows individuals or otherwise keeps surveillance on them without the advance knowledge of the agency or agencies employing the individuals.

"3. That a commonly heard statement is: 'Better be careful of what you say on the phone, because everybody knows that the FBI has almost every wire in Washington tapped.'

"4. That another commonly heard statement is that the FBI is engaged in a witch hunt.

"5. That Washington is 'swarming' with FBI agents, the implication being that there is an FBI agent behind every tree.

"These are just some of the loose assertions that any newspaperman can hear if he keeps his ears open.

"Because such talk is heard, I would greatly appreciate it if you, as director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, would answer some specific questions as to the exact jurisdiction and authority exercised by the FBI.

"Yours sincerely,
"BERT ANDREWS."

Q. As you know, some of the individuals in the recent State Department inquiry have complained that they were not able to learn the nature of the charges against them and therefore were unable to present a defense. Does the FBI object to letting a review board, such as the Civil Service Commission or the new Loyalty Review Board, have access to its report on an individual? In other words, would the FBI be willing to have such review boards confront an individual with charges based on the FBI report? Or would there be any limitation that the FBI would have to place on the use of its files?

A. The FBI has been assigned the task of conducting investigations under the loyalty program. Its task is clearly defined by the President's exective order and it has no administrtive choice as to what it will do or not do. Obviously, there would be no use to submit a report unless its contents can be used. While the FBI does not approve its reports being made public, nevertheless, it expects the contents of its reports to be used and it has no objection to a loyalty hearing board confronting an individual with charges based upon the contents of its report. The President's executive order provides that, "the investigating agency may refuse to disclose the names of confidential informants, provided it furnishes sufficient information about such informants on the basis of which the requesting department or agency can make an adequate evaluation of the information furnished by them . . ."

In each instance where the real identity of the source of information is not disclosed a representative of the FBI will be available to confer with other governmental officials or a loyalty hearing board and evaluate the source of the information by describing the degree of reliability. Insofar as consistent with national security, the names and addresses of persons furnishing information will be set forth in FBI reports.

The procedures to be followed by the loyalty hearing boards in presenting charges, conducting hearings and such procedural matters are matters not within the province of the FBI.

Q. It was recently disclosed that the FBI exhibited to a Federal employe's wife a photograph it took of him with another woman. Is this standard FBI procedure?

A. No; the real facts in this particular case speak for themselves. The FBI was informed by a source whose reliability has been thoroughly established that the Federal employe in question had been contacted by a suspected espionage agent of a foreign government, and in turn the Federal employe had been in contact with others who had been identified as associated with the Communist underground in Washington. The FBI had no choice but to ascertain the identity and activities of the Federal employe. At no time was he kept under 24-hour surveillance. His activities were spot-checked at periodic intervals. We needed his photograph to exhibit to a prospective witness, and not desiring to attract attention to him by going to his employer and requesting his photograph, we took a photograph of the employe as he left his place of employment accompanied by an unidentified woman. When he was interviewed later in his home, an agent took him aside and exhibited the picture to him for the purpose of ascertaining the identity of the woman. His wife would never have known of the existence of the picture had he not taken it out of the agent's hand and walked across the room and exhibited it to his wife, who was talking to another agent.

Q. Does the FBI make security or loyalty checks of an employe of the State Department or other Government agency on its own initiative?

A. The President's executive order establishing the Federal Loyalty Program places a threefold responsibility upon the FBI:

1. The fingerprints of all Federal employes are searched through the identification files of the FBI, which contain more than 105 million sets of fingerprint impressions. If identified, data furnished the FBI by law-enforcement and other official agencies is then forwarded to the Civil Service Commission and in turn to the employing agency;

2. The names of all Federal employes are checked through the administrative and investigative files of the FBI. In the event derogatory information is revealed it is furnished the Civil Service Commission and in turn to the employing agency;

3. In the event the name, when checked through our files, is identified with information pointing to activities of a disloyal nature under the terms of the President's executive order then the case is referred to the field service of the FBI for a full investigation. This same procedure is followed upon receipt of a complaint indicating disloyal activities.

In each case investigated by the FBI there must be a real, substantial basis for the investigation. In other words, FBI agents do not start an investigation on their own initiative. There must first be the presentation of information or a complaint which, if established, would come within the directive set forth in the President's executive order. When such information is received, the FBI has no alternative but to investigate. It is merely carrying out the instructions set out in the executive order.

At the time the case is assigned for investigation, a summary of the allegations is furnished the Civil Service Commission for transmittal to the employing agency.

Q. What is the procedure used by FBI agents in checking the loyalty or security record of an individual?

A. The investigation in each case is determined largely by the nature of the allegations. The first step is, of course, to definitely establish whether the allegation applies to the specifically named Government employe. From that point on it is a matter of checking every source of information to establish the truth or falsity of the allegation. The overwhelming majority of Government employes are honest, loyal American citizens, and based upon past experience I know that a large portion of the complaints or allegations will be found to be without basis in fact.

In making these investigations, special agents of the FBI are instructed to limit their questions to the allegations and to do everything within their power to avoid casting suspicions upon an innocent Federal employe. In each interview the agent is instructed to exhibit his credentials so that the person interviewed will know that he is not talking to an imposter. Unfortunately, citizens frequently confuse other investigators with FBI agents.

Special agents of the FBI in handling the Federal Employe Loyalty Program do not inquire whether the employe reads liberal or other publications, nor do they tap telephones as has been rumored.

I lay no claim to infallibility for the FBI. We are a human organization and we can make mistakes, and when we do I want to know about them and to take steps to insure that the same mistakes are not made again. We always check on allegations of improper conduct on the part of our agents, but it is amazing to me how easy it is for some people to make charges and how unwilling they are to present facts to authenticate their charges.

Q. How many agents does the FBI have in Washington to use on such assignments? How many agents in all does the FBI have?

A. We have less than 3800 special agents in the FBI who are required to investigate violations of some 120 Federal laws in the entire United States and in its Territories. In addition to investigating violations of some 120 Federal laws, which last year resulted in 11,812 convictions, we have the responsibility of investigating candidates for appointments in the Department of Justice, Federal judgeships, United States attorneys, United States marshals and, likewise, we make 6000 applicant-type investigations for the Atomic Energy Commission each month.

We have fewer than 200 special agents assigned to handle all types and classes in Washington.

I, of course, am cognizant of many of the wild rumors that are being circulated concerning the Federal employe loyalty program. In fact, before we had made a single investigation and, in fact, before the program was even under way, an item appeared in a national news magazine that FBI agents were getting people out of bed at night to quiz them on their loyalty. This was absolutely untrue.

The folly of the impression allegedly existing in some minds that Washington and other cities are swarming with FBI agents is answered by the simple fact that there is only one special agent for every 37,000 persons in the United States.

Q. What are the standards governing whether the FBI will or will not make an investigation?

A. These are clearly defined in the President's executive order. The order provides if "on all the evidence, reasonable grounds exist for belief that the person involved is disloyal to the Government of the United States" then the individual is unsuitable for Federal employment. Activities and associations which are considered in establishing disloyalty are clearly enumerated by the President as follows:

(a) Sabotage, espionage or attempts or preparations therefor, or knowingly associating with spies or saboteurs;

(b) Treason or sedition or advocacy thereof;

(c) Advocacy of revolution of force or violence to alter the constitutional form of government of the United States;

(d) Intentional, unauthorized disclosure to any person, under circumstances which may indicate disloyalty to the United States, of documents or information of a confidential or nonpublic character obtained by the person making the disclosure as a result of his employment by the Government of the United States;

(e) Performing or attempting to perform his duties, or otherwise acting, so as to serve the interests of another government in preference to the interests of the United States;

(f) Membership in, affiliation with or sympathetic association with any foreign or domestic organization, association, movement, group or combination of persons, designated by the Attorney General as totalitarian, Fascist, Communist, or subversive, or as having adopted a policy of advocating or approving the commission of acts of force or violence to deny other persons their rights under the Constitution of the United States, or as seeking to alter the form of government of the United States by unconstitutional means.

Q. Does the FBI strive to protect the civil rights of persons it investigates and, if so, in what manner?

A. The best answer to that question is the record of the FBI itself. The 11,812 convictions which resulted in cases investigated by the FBI last year represented 96.8 per cent of the total number of cases taken to court. It is, of course, a well-established technique of some criminal lawyers to defend their clients by attacking FBI agents. This is particularly true when they have no facts to use in their defense except perjured testimony.

If we violated civil rights in criminal cases it can be expected that some of our powerful and influential adversaries would have established the truth of their charges in open court. They have not been able to do this because the FBI does not violate civil rights.

In connection with the loyalty program, every care is being exercised to establish the innocence of the falsely accused employe as well as the true facts on the disloyal employe.

Every experienced investigator is quick to spot the individual who furnishes derogatory information and who is motivated by personal bias, prejudice or some other ulterior motive. Whenever the agent has facts to indicate this is the case he is under instructions to set these facts out in his report in order that Government officials and loyalty hearing boards can take this into consideration in evaluating the information furnished.

In the final analysis, the character and background of the men of the FBI are insurance that the civil rights of others will be respected. They are graduates of recognized law schools, accounting schools or college graduates. Prior to appointment each is carefully investigated and all doubts are resolved against their appointment. Upon entering our service they undergo an intensive training course covering all phases of our work and special emphasis is placed upon the protection of the civil rights of all individuals.

Q. Does the FBI establish lists of organizations ruled to be subversive?

A. No. The FBI does not make policy, recommendations, conclusions or rulings, based upon our investigations. The FBI, since I became its director in 1924, has adhered strictly to the premise that it is a fact-finding agency. It does secure information on organizations upon receipt of information that they are engaged in subversive activities under the President's loyalty order. The facts it gathers are then submitted to officials of the Department of Justice, and the Attorney General rules on whether the organization is subversive. The FBI investigates alleged membership in subversive organizations of Federal employes after the Attorney General has ruled the organization to be subversive. Even then the FBI realizes that all members of front organizations are not subversive and there always exists the possibility that one might be attracted by an appealing name or duped as to the organization's real intent. In each case special agents will look for facts other than membership alone which will establish his activities and real intent, such as overt acts. In case of doubt as to whether we should or should not investigate we will refer all the facts to the Attorney General for his decision.

Q. Does the FBI keep files on citizens and important government officials?

A. We keep files only on those people and organizations we investigate as a result of information or a complaint coming within our jurisdiction. What a citizen says, thinks or does is his business, not ours, so long as he is not alleged to violate Federal laws. Contrary to popular belief, the FBI does not keep files on all people in the United States. We keep files pursuant only to the discharge of the responsibilities imposed upon the FBI by law.

Q. Suppose a Federal employe is reported to be a member of the Communist Party and assume that there is a person by that same name who actually is a party member, what protection does the loyal Federal employe have?

A. The FBI is interested only in facts and if the facts will prevent an injustice we will vigorously seek to secure them. One of the problems we are confronted with in the loyalty program is that of establishing the identity of the person mentioned in the complaint with that of the Federal employe. In one case we received a report from another Government agency that a person having the same name as a Federal employe was observed distributing Communist literature. We assigned the matter to the field for investigation. It was established that the person engaged in Communist activity, although having the same name, was not the Federal employe.

The first step in any loyalty investigation, upon the receipt of allegations of disloyalty, is to establish whether the Federal employe is identical with the person on whom the allegations are made. Once it is established that there was a case of mistaken identity the case, of course, is promptly closed.

Q. If a citizen says the Federal employe is a Communist, fellow traveler, parlor pink, Fascist or a member of the KKK, what does the FBI do?

A. We are not satisfied with bare conclusions. Whenever a citizen labels a Federal employe as a Communist, Fascist or Klansman we ask for the facts upon which he bases his conclusions. If the person interviewed has no facts to support a conclusion, that is set forth in the investigative report and the agent specifically points out that while the Federal employe was thus labeled the person interviewed had no facts upon which he predicated his conclusion. Additional investigation is, of course, conducted for the purpose of establishing the truth or falsity of conclusions advanced by persons interviewed.

Q. Throughout the war years the FBI was more concerned with Nazi or Fascist brands of disloyalty. Can you therefore furnish some idea as to the dangers today of the Communist brand of disloyalty and why?

A. The Communist Party has long regarded infiltration of the Government service as a project carrying the highest priority. They have sought to accomplish this under the guise of secrecy. Several months ago high officials of the party, recognizing the growing sentiment against the party and anticipating vigorous protective action, issued instructions that party members in the Government and in other strategic positions were not to attend party organizational meetings. Informal social meetings which could not be identified as Communist meetings were permitted. Party members in the Government and in other strategic positions were ordered to destroy their party membership cards and under no consideration were their names to be carried on party rolls nor were they to be openly contacted by high party functionaries. This emphasis upon secrecy, it appears to me, is a confession on the part of the Communists that they have something to conceal.

The menace of Communists in the Government service is a threat to our national security because of:

1. The opportunity to engage in espionage to the detriment of our national defense.

2. The opportunity to influence the formulation and carrying out of governmental policies.

3. The opportunity to further Communist propaganda, creating disruption and undermining public confidence.

4. The opportunity that is presented them to recruit party members in Government service, or soliciting the aid of innocent coworkers in assisting them to carry out party assignments.

5. The opportunity to place other Communists in Government service.

One person whose loyalty to the Communist cause exceeded his loyalty to the United States properly placed could do irreparable harm to our security and should there ever be another grave emergency he could conceivably be responsible for the loss of American lives.

Q. Has the FBI received any opposition from the leaders of unions or Federal employes to its part in the loyalty program?

A. James B. Burns, president of the American Federation of Government Employes (AFL), has said, "AFGE members have nothing to hide and therefore offer no objection to our Government's desire to weed out disloyal employes. The AFGE is confident that the loyalty program will be carried out by the Civil Service Commission and the FBI in a truly American fashion. Certainly there is no reason for hysteria or the notion that this is a witch-hunt."

Luther Steward, president of the National Federation of Federal Employes (an independent union), has this to say, "Federal employes who have nothing to conceal—and they are in the overwhelming majority—are not those who are crying out most passionately against the loyalty program and raising the bogey of 'persecution.'"

Abram Flaxer, president of the United Public Workers of America (CIO), on the other hand, has had few kind words for the program and his remarks have generally followed the theme, "Every member of every trade union . . . is in grave peril as long as this type of union-busting witch-hunt is allowed to continue." The fact, of course, is that the FBI is not engaged in any program of union-busting and we have no interest in and are not compiling any lists of union members.

Leo George, president of the AFL National Federation of Post-office Clerks, on the other hand, said, "None of our union members has protested against listing their union connections, and we expect no protests."

In 1940, when the Communists were allied with the Nazis, a hue and cry was raised that the FBI was a menace to civil rights, inspired chiefly by forces that were opposing our defense efforts. They based their charges primarily on an honest statement that I made to the House Subcommittee on Apriations to the effect that we were compiling indices on known Nazis and Fascists who were potentially dangerous to the United States. That list was used on December 7, 1941, in the arrests of dangerous enemy aliens, and as a result this Nation came through the war with no enemy-directed acts of sabotage. The enemy espionage efforts were thwarted and all of this was accomplished without violation of civil rights.

"EYES THAT TRUST, PLEAD, AND ACCUSE"

The following letter has been received from a ten year old boy in Poland, by The Foster Parents' Plan for War Children:—

"It is a long distance to school. But I come every day because it is warm and there is food. Today it is raining. My mother will carry me over the rubble because I have no shoes. In my home there lived a little boy who did not have shoes and a coat and caught cold and died. I don't want to die."

You can help the thousands of children now in desperate need overseas by becoming a foster parent. You will receive a case history and a photograph of the child. Correspondence with the child through our office is encouraged.

The Plan is helping children of fourteen different nationalities in France, Poland, Belgium, Italy, Holland, England, Switzerland, Czechoslovakia and China.

The Foster Parents' Plan does not do mass relief. Each child is treated as an individual with the idea that besides food, clothing, shelter and education, the child will live in a homelike atmosphere and receive the loving care that so rightfully belongs to childhood.

Please send clean used clothing to the Plan Collection Depot, 122 East 34th Street, New York City 16, New York, for immediate shipment overseas.

Merchant Marine Expansion Urged

46 Modern Liners, 1000 Cargo Vessels Asked in Committee Report to Truman

By the United Press

President Truman was told last night the Nation should start now to build 46 passenger liners and a fast, modern 1000-ship postwar Merchant Marine for the sake of national security and the peacetime economy.

The President's Committee on the Merchant Marine proposed a plan to give this country "not the cheapest but the best in world martime" competition.

It reported that American shipping and shipbuilding are stalemated by high costs and poor Government organization at a time whe na healthy shipbuilding industry and an efficient Merchant Marine are essential.

Four-Year Program Asked

The group, headed by K. T. Keller, president of Chrysler Corp., recommended a four-year 600-million-dollar program to build the 46 liners and get started on cargo ship construction. It proposed that the Government underwrite about half the cost.

The committee advocated a thorough reorganization of the United States Maritime Commission as a basic step in revitalizing the Nation's shipping and shipbuilding.

The report brought quick assent from the shipbuilding industry. H. G. Smith, president of the Shipbuilders Council of America, said that unless Congress acts quickly on an immediate ship construction program "of the volume recommended" by the committee, "the shpibuilding industry of the United States will be virtually shut down within six months."

The President's committee itself said shipbuilding is now "approaching almost complete inactivity," while the Nation's Merchant Marine is mostly war-built and unsuited to highly competitive commercial operation.

29,000-Word Report

"Greater certainty as to national policy and the prospect of fair and reasonable remuneration would bring new private capital into maritime enterprise," the committee said in strongly favoring a privately owned Merchant Marine as opposed to Government ownership.

The five-man group made its proposals in a 29,000-word report issued by the White House.

The report said the Merchant Marine ultimately should comprise 1000 fast, modern ships of all types, totaling 11 million to 12 million deadweight tons. It should be backed up by a building industry producing 50 vessels a year as replacements and employing 75,000 men. The fleet would employ 65,000, "a minimum nucleus for expansion in time of emergency." There should be 2000 ships in the reserve fleet.

The passenger ship program is based on Army and Navy estimates of necessary troop transports for an emergency as well as "our great deficiency" in that type of ship.

AMG Questions Soviet On Missing Reporter

Berlin, Nov. 15 (INS).—The American Military Government announced tonight it has formally asked Soviet authorities to investigate the disappearance of Dieter Friede, a reporter for the American-licensed Berlin newspaper Der Abend.

Friede disappeared a fortnight ago when he visited the Russian sector in response to a call that a friend had been injured in an automobile accident. A wave of arrests of German newsmen of the western sector has made reporters uneasy. Russians explain they regard newsmen as spies.

Prelate Says China Fights World War III

Chinese Can't Afford All Luxuries Of Democracy, Paul Yu-Pin Declares

China is fighting the democracies' battle against communism in the "Third World War," Archbishop Paul Yu-Pin, head of the Roman Catholic Archdiocese of Nanking, said here yesterday.

The Chinese prelate, addressing trustees of the Institute of Chinese Culture, 2200 R st. nw., said that international brigades fighting for the Communists in China in clude Korean, Mongolian and Japanese troops, with Russian officers.

These troops, he said, comprise one-third of the Communist forces in Manchuria. The "Third World War," he said, began when the Communists sought to establish independent sovereignty in Manchuria after V-J Day.

Reds Hold Manchuria

Today, he declared, 90 per cent of Manchuria is Communist held, while 85 per cent of China's raw materials are in Manchuria. . . .

The Chinese government's war against communism, necessitating a huge, costly army, is the main cause of the inflation which is crippling the Chinese economy and encouraging inefficiency and corruption, he said.

It is but a half-truth said the archbishop, to call the Chinese conflict civil war, for he said that Chinese communism, "like communism everywhere, is Soviet-directed.

No Praise Now

When he was last in this country, he said, he heard much praise for China's fight against Japan. On his current trip, he said he has heard the Chinese government called "undemocratic, Fascist and nonliberal." He commented that Communists seek to label all opponents as Fascists.

The Chinese government is democratic, he said, but the present government is only 19 years old, which is " yesterday in the perspective of history," and it cannot yet enjoy all the luxuries of democracy.

China, he said, has passed through the military and educational stages of the road to constitutional government, with the new constitutional stage to begin at Christmas of this year.

Reich Mine Toll 96

Berlin, Nov. 15 (AP).—The American-controlled newspaper Neue Zeitung said today the death toll in an October isaster in the Soveit-operated uranium mines of southern Saxony had mounted to 96 with the deaths of 16 injured. All were German miners.

Bishops Hit Secularism

tions can never lead man to virtue," the bishops said.

"Cecularism has wrought havoc in the family . . . A secularized pseudo-science has popularized practices which violate nature itself and rob human procreation of its dignity and nobility," it was declared.

The use of contracaptives for artificial family planning" and "a cynical disregard of the noble purposes of sex" has brought "a sixty-fold increase in our divorce rate during the past century . . .," the statement continued.

By taking God out of family life, said the statement, secularism is preventing society from going to the root of such problems as juvenile delinquency.

"In vain," said the church officials, "shall we spend public cational and recreational activities monies in vast amounts for educational and recreational activities if we do not give more thought to the divinely ordained stability of the family and the sanctity of the home."

In education, they said, secularism has 'done more harm" than in any field of social activity.

Secularists, the churchmen said, have been quick to exploit for their own purposes" the public policy of banning the formal teaching of religion in public schools.

'With a growing number of thoughtful Americans," they said, 'we see in this policy a hasty and shotsighted solution of the very difficult educational problem that confronts public authority in a Nation of divided religious allegiance."

". . . The orignal proponents of the policy did not intend to minimize the importance of religion in the training of youth . . . secularists . . . make it the starting point in their philosophy of education. They positively exclude God from the school . . .

"In the rearing of children and the forming of youth, omission is as effective as positive statement," it was declared.

The church leaders saw a great difference between "a practical arrangement which leaves the formal teaching of religion to the family and to the church . . . (which is) reluctantly tolerated under certain conditions as a practical measure of public policy" and the educational theory of the secularist.

The secularists' theory, they said, "strikes at the very code of our Christian culture and in practice envisions men who have no sense of their personal and responsibility to God."

Secularism is also held by the church leaders to be "a potent factor in creating the moral atmosphere" for erratic economic life. "The Christian view of social order," the ysaid, "rejects the postulate of inexorable economic laws which fix recurring cycles of prosperity and depression."

"It lays the blame for instability in our social structure on human failure," the statement continued, "rather than on blind and incontrollable economic forces . . .

"In Christian thought, the work of man is not a commodity to be bought and sold, and economic enterprise is an important social function in which owner, manager and workman cooperate for the common good.

"When responsibilities to God are disregarded, helpless workers are exploited; cutthroat competition and anti-social marketing practices follow.

"The Christian view of economic life supports the demand for organization of management, labor, agriculture and professions under government encouragement but not control . . . In default of this free cooperation, public authority is finally invoked to maintain a measure of economic order, but it frequently exceeds the just limits of its power to direct economic activity to the common good . . .

". . . There is no remedy for our economic evils in a return either to 19th century individualism or to experiments in Marxianism . . . Let us be on our guard against all who, in exiling God from the factory and the market-place, destroy the solid foundation of brotherhood in ownership, in management, and in work."

In international relations also, said the declaration, treaties and international covenants "must be in accord with God-given natural law. What may seem to be expedient for a nation cannot be tolerated if it contravenes God's law of right and wrong.

"Shocking crimes against weak nations are being perpetrated in the name of national security. Millions of men in many nations are in the thralldom of political slavery. Religion is persecuted because it stands for freedom under God . . .

"Atheistic communism, for a time thrown into alliance with democratic nations through Nazi aggression against Russia, stands out plainly today as the force which, through violence and chicanery, is obstructing the establishment of a right jurisdicial order in the international community . . .

"Secularism which exiles God from human life clears the way for the acceptance of Godless, subversive ideologies . . . In the dark days ahead we dare not follow the secularist philosophy. We must be true to our historic Christian culture . . ." the statement concluded.

Senator Taylor and Horse To End Trip to Capitol Today

Senator Glen H. Taylor (D., Idaho) will complete his cross-country auto-horseback ride about 3 p. m. today, when he is scheduled to arrive at the Capitol steps.

Taylor

Today's ride will take Senator Taylor from Mount Vernon to Washington. He is driving from Tennessee, pulling his two horses in a trailer. The Senator's route will be along the Mount Vernon Memorial Highway, through Alexandria, across the Memorial Bridge, up Independence ave. to the Washington Monument, then along Adams dr. past the Peace Monument, and to the Capitol steps.

At 8 tonight, Senator Taylor is scheduled to speak on foreign policy at the Department of Interior auditorium. Arranging the meeting himself, he has invited the public to attend.

In a move to "dramatize the issue of peace," Senator Taylor started his ride October 26 from Seal Beach, Calif., riding continuously for the first 32 hours in a 95-mile marathon. He had intended to make the entire tour by horseback, but President Truman's call for a special session cut short his time.

On his way east, Senator Taylor has addressed crowds in Tuscon, Ariz.; El Paso, Forth Worth, and Austin, Tex.; Homtramck, Mich., to which he flaw from Austin, and then returned to continue his ride; and in Oak Ridge and Knoxville, Tenn.

In his speeches, Taylor has criticised the Nation's bipartisan foreign policy, saying that "the Nation's elder statesmen, both in and out of Congress, have acted in the main, to make Russian-American relation more strained."

Our statement of policy
We want our customers and the entire community to know—
1 That it is our constant endeavor to raise to the highest degree the standards, ethics and practices of automobile merchandising.
2 That we seek, through cooperative efforts of local, state and national automobile dealers associations, the correction of any unfair or unbusinesslike practices.
3 That new cars are being distributed fairly and equitably, with every consideration being given to our community's interest.
4 That new cars will be sold at established prices current at time of delivery, and no bonus payments or premiums of any kind will be accepted.
5 That fair and reasonable value is given for every used car taken in trade; while we hope customers having used cars will, as in the past, trade them with us (so we in turn may supply more people with needed transportation) we will still make every effort to provide new or used cars to those not having cars to trade.
6 That while we are glad to install special accessories (when available) which add to the appearance, usefulness, comfort and convenience of the new car, no customer is required to purchase any extra equipment which he does not desire.
7 That we are doing everything in our power to help eliminate black market operations in our industry.
8 That despite the continued, critical shortage of new cars we are anxious at all times to talk over with you your new car needs.
9 That regardless of the termination of government regulations, affecting our business, we believe the high standards herein expressed are sound business principles, and we will be guided by them.

Churches Urge Aid For Hungry Europe

National Conservation Program Starts Saturday With Climax Thanksgiving

Churches of all faiths are asking their congregations this weekend to help feed Europe's hungry millions.

Catholic pastors of the District today are joining in a Nation-wide appeal for donations to the food campaign for Europe and Asia which will be launched next Sunday by the National Catholic Welfare Council's War Relief Service.

Congregations of other faiths in the District are being asked this weekend to save food to aid people overseas. Friday, yesterday and today were designated "Conservation Days" by the District Commissioners.

To Begin Saturday

The national food conservation program in churches and synagogues throughout the Nation will officially begin Saturday and will continue through Thanksgiving week, the Citizens Food Committee announced.

On Thanksgiving morning, church leaders will make a national radio appeal for full support of the conservation program.

Francis Cardinal Spellman, Archbishop of New York; Bishop William T. Sherrill, presiding Bishop of the Protestant Episcopal Church, and Rabbi William F. Rosenblum, president of the Synagogue Council, will be among the broadcast speakers.

Both the food drive and the churches' own relief campaigns will be stressed during Thanksgiving week, Charles Luckman, chairman of the Citizens Food Committee, said in a statement.

Must Constantly Remember

"On our Thanksgiving Day," he said, "the people of Europe will experience widespread suffering from hunger and cold. While we in America are celebrating God's bounty to us, we must constantly remember to conserve in what we eat and to give through our churches so that our neighbors abroad may be fed and clothed in the name of humanity and world-wide peace."

The Catholic Church's food collection campaign will begin next Sunday with a national goal of 25 million tons of food. Contributors will be asked to stress foods that are suitable for children.

In a recent special message to Catholic hierarchy of this country, Archbishop John T. McNicholas of Cincinnati, chairman of the NCWC administrative board, said:

"The food situation in many of the countries of Europe is tragic. There is clear evidence that there will be great hunger in many countries this winer. Our Holy Father continue sto make his appeals for assistance, particularly for the undernourished and sick children of the war-stricken countries."

Here in Washington, local troops of Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts, in cooperation with the District Citizens Food Conservation Committee, have volunteered to cover several Washington areas with about 1000 food conservation posters.

The posters, which read, "Save Meat, Save Wheat, Save the Peace," will be distributed for window display in the downtown shopping district this week by the Boy Scouts, Carl Hildebrand, Scout field executive, said.

The Girl Scouts are to cover Anacostia, Chevy Chase, parts of Rhode Island ave., Petworth and other areas. They will be directed by Miss Anne McLean, sacretary of the local Girl Scout organization.

James E. Colliflower, chairman of the local conservation committee, yesterday appealed to District storekeepers to cooperate with the scouts by displaying the posters.

On U. S. Programs:

Grange Asks Wider Voice By Farmers

Columbus, Ohio, Nov. 15 (AP).—The National Grange today called for "maximum control by farmers" of all agricultural programs at State and county levels.

Delegates representing some 800,000 members at the annual convention also demanded "more coordination and less duplication" between State and Federal farm agencies at all levels.

The recommendations were contained in the grange's agriculture committee report approved by the convention. Delegates interpreted this as opposition to a proposed merger of the United States Soil Conservation Service and Extension Service. The legislation, sponsored by the Farm Bureau, will come up at the next session of Congress.

The grange also asked use of a single Government agency within the Department of Agriculture to "develop and integrate" policies for "permanent conservation and wise development of our land."

Police Dog's Loyalty To Children Costs Life

Wharton, N. J., Nov. 15 (AP).—A German police dog died today of smoke poisoning because he refused to leave a burning building until his owner's children were safely out.

The dog's owners, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley House and their two small children, were driven from their smoke-filled apartment over a burning restaurant at dawn.

Nickel Candy Bar Due for a Boost

Cocoa Bean Supply Short and Prices Are Skyrocketing

The nickel candy bar, already slimmed in size or raised in price, may suffer further as skyrocketing cocoa prices hit manufacturing levels.

Cocoa, the bean from which chocolate and other products are derived, has jumped from a 9-cent-a-pound OPA ceiling price on the New York cocoa exchange to a 53-cent-a-pound level, and little is offered.

The product, grown mainly in South America and Africa, has been in scarce supply during the war and since. A unit of the United Nations, the International Emergency Food Council, parcels out the available supply, allocating the expected crop tonnage to each country.

Forty Per Cent for U. S.

The United States is scheduled for 40 per cent of the total world supply. However, since October 1, the beginning of the cocoa crop year, little has been coming to market, with the result that prices have been rushing upward.

Most candy manufacturers are turning out bars using chocolate purchased during the past crop year, so the effect of the new price boosts probably will not be felt at the retail level for several months.

John J. Haveymer of the International Resources Division of the State Department explained the present shortage intensification was due to a month-long railroad strike on the Gold Coast, and the shipment of cocoa last summer instead of during the fall months, as scheduled.

Goes Up in Trinidad

In Trinidad, the Cocoa Exporters Committee this week raised the price of cocoa from 30 cents a pound to 38 cents a pound. This meant that cocoa, the island colony's largest farm crop, would sell at the highest price in history, the Associated Press reported.

The price of the cocoa has substantial effects on other parts of the market. Cocoa butter, principal by-product, is used in making soaps, cosmetics and medicines.

Drinking cocoa has been relatively unaffected thus far by the cocoa shortage. District wholesalers reported an ample supply to meet the small demand, and said prices have been relatively stable, moving from a 9-cent-a-half-pound OPA ceiling level to 12 to 13 cents at present.

One reason, it was explained, is that the beverage consists of only 44 per cent cocoa with 40 per cent sugar and 16 per cent arrowroot, or other form of starch.

Another beverage, coffee, has jumped 50 per cent above OPA levels, and may continue to do so, wholesalers said. The reasons are an increase in the price of coffee beans, labor and machinery.

20 Wearing Legion Caps Raid Meeting

Los Angeles, Nov. 15 (U.P.).—Fifteen to 20 men wearing American Legion caps and one allegedly carrying a revolver, today were accused of using "Gestapo tactics" to break up a political meeting in a private home.

Twenty members of the La Crescenta-La Canada Democratic Club met with Sheriff's Capt. William Deal to ask for a formal complaint charging "conspiracy for the purposes of intimidation."

Witnesses at the club's meeting last night said the raiders, wearing American Legion caps bearing "Glendale Post 127" markings, marched into the home, seized the speaker's chair and ordered the meeting dispersed "within 10 minutes."

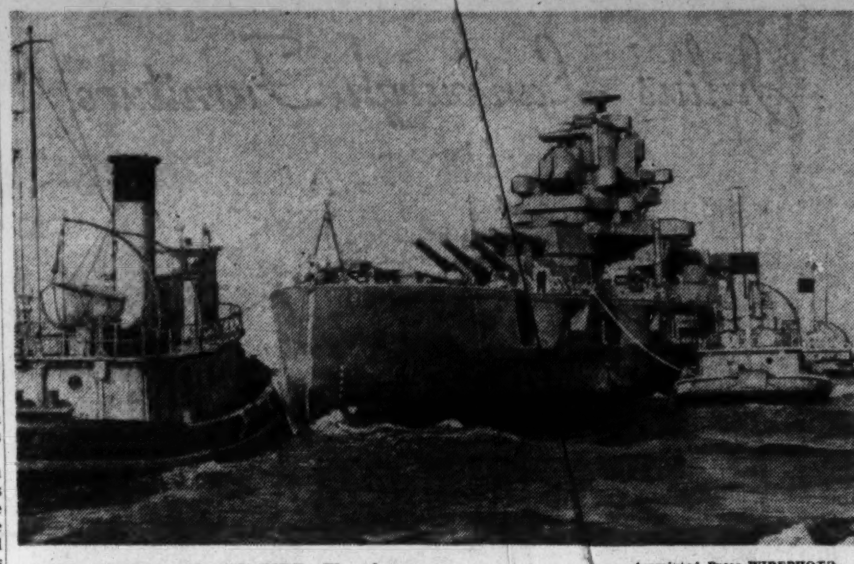
The Democratic Club's meeting was attended by about 35 members at the homeof Hugh Hardyman.

"They marched in with military form and the leader read an edict that they 'knew what this outfit was,' and scouted the meeting, checked their backgrounds and would give us 10 minutes to get out or they'd take matters into their own hands," Don Carpenter, editor of the Montrose Herald, who was covering the meeting, said.

Carpenter said the leader of the raiders addressed the meeting as th "Progressive Citizens of America."

"Of the whole group, all substantial citizens, only my wife and I are members of the PCA," Hardyman said.

Truce Called in 'Battle of Newark Bay'



Associated Press WIREPHOTO

NEW MEXICO MISSES TIDE—The decommissioned battleship New Mexico, controlled by tugs, rides the calm waters of Newark Bay after missing the tide and also its encounter with Newark's "waster pistol" Navy. Meanwhile the "battle" was postponed until at least Tuesday, as counsel for the salvage firm which owns the ship and city officials reach a temporary truce

Newark's Fireboat Navy Holds Hoses, Observing 3-Day Truce

Newark, Nov. 15 (U.P.).—Newark withdrew its two fireboat "navy" from the entrance of Newark Channel today with formal declaration of a three-day truce in yet unfought "battle" involving the decommisisoner battleship New Mexico.

"Admiral" John B. Keenan, public safety director, said the "fleet" will not go back to its stations until Tuesday—if at all.

Th etruce was declared after Newark agreed to defer filing for an injunction in Federal Court seeking to prevent the battleship from "invading" her port. Attorneys for Lipsett Salvage Co., owners of the battleship, promised that they wouldn't move the ship from Gravesend Bay until Tuesday—at least.

In Washington, Undersecretary of State W. John Kenney nmed Tuesday as a tentative date for a second peace parley with Port Authority and Newark officials.

The only possibility that the truce might be broken is he weather. Attorneys for the slvage company said that in case of a severe storm, the New Mexico will have to move into a port—the Port of Newark.

The company bought the battleship to reduce to scrap iron. Newark objects to the junking job being done in its harbor.

Police, Fire Pension Boosts To Be Discussed on Tuesday

A proposal to increase substantially pension payments to widows and orphans of police and firemen will be discussed Tuesday with United States Treasury Department and District officials, the District Commissioners revealed yesterday.

Under the plan recommended by Superintendent of Police Robert J. Barrett and approved by Commissioner John Russell Young, the Commissioners would ask Congress for legislation to boost monthly widows' pensions from $60 to $100.

Payments for children under 16 years old would go up from $10 to $25 per month. Widows of men killed on active duty would receive $125 per month.

Invited to attend the meeting are: Russell R. Reagh, Government actuary for the United States Treasury Department; Budget Officer Walter Fowler Corporation Counsel Vernon E. West Barrett, and Fire Chief Clement Murphy.

Fowler said yesterday he would not commit himself either to support or oppose the plan "until we have all the facts."

He estimated that the proposal would cost the District $294,000 more each year. The District now receives approximately $339,000 annually from police and firemen, who turn over 3½ per cent of their salaries to a pension fund.

Park police, White House police and members of the United States Secret Service also contribute to the fund. Money taken in from sale of abandoned, lost or stolen property by police also goes into the fund. (Auditor A. R. Pilkerton said the sales brought in $19,043 last year.)

Budget officials said Fowler probably would suggest that pension fund payments for police and firemen be raised from 3½ to 5 per cent to put them on a par with other District employes.

Such an increase would bring into the pension fund about $146,000 more each year, they testimated.

There now are 551 widows, including those of White House police, who receive pension payments from the District. Of this number, 18 would be eligible for the $125 monthly payments because their husbands were killed on duty.

Fowler said the District would pay $2,500 000 in pensions in fiscal 1949 if the present payment rates are continued.

Colasanto Is Installed In Alexandria

Nicholas A. Colasanto, 43-year-old attorney, formally assumed office as city manager of Alexandria yesterday.

Colasanto succeeds Carl Budwesky, also an attorney, who held the office for 10 years before he resigned August 24 following a dispute with the city council which climaxed a political upheavel marked by the resignations of three other key city officials.

Colasanto, whose appointment by 6-3 vote of the city council touched off another political controversy last week, took office with a brief statement that he would exert all his efforts "in the interess of Alexandria." Despite opposition to his appointment, he expressed confidence that he would have the full cooperation of the council and the public.

His appointment was opposed by a group of citizens at last Tuesday night's city council meeting entirely on the ground that his legal background is not sufficient qualification for the $8500-a-year job. Spokesmen for an estimated 200 objectors at the council meeting contended that the council overlooked other applicants, including several local men, who were better suited for the job.

Councilmen who voted for his appoitment, however, countered that former City Manager Carl Budwesky also entered office with no experience and did an efficient job despite his resignation in a tiff with the council.

One result of the Colasanto appointment was a movement to bring about a reform in the city government, under which the present ward council would be replaced by a council-at-large. Sponsors of petitons calling for a public referendum on the proposed government change said yesterday they already had 2000 signers—more than enough to require the Circuit Court to order a referendum.

Loudoun Citizens To Meet on Schools

Leesburg, Va., Nov. 15 (Spl.).—A committee of citizens to study the needs of Loudoun County public schools will be organized at a meeting at 8 o'clock Monday night at the Leesburg Inn. Mrs. Contee L. Adams of Hamilton, chairman of a group perfecting the organization, said a number of the nominations have been made for membership.

These include John William Clemens of Leesburg, representing the Catoctin Farmers Club; Mrs. Gordon Gillier, Middleburg, Aldie P-TA; Mrs. Thomas J. Hatcher, Purcellvile, Woman's Club; the Rev. N. I. Fravel, Lovettsville; Mrs. Wade Palmer, Purcellville, Loudoun Education Association; Howard Bown, Lincoln, representing Lincoln grade school; Jennings Potts, Lincoln High School, and Edward C. Norman, Purcellville P-TA.

Virginia Wins 4-State 4-H Stock Judging

Timonium, Md., Nov. 15 (AP).—Four young farmers from Loudoun County, Va., walked off with the $100 first prize today in a four-State 4-H Club livestock judging contest for high school students at the Eastern National Livestock Show.

The Virginia foursome totaled 1533 points; Maryland was second with 1469 points for a $75 prize; West Virginia was third with 1416 points, and New York was last with 1360 points.

County Agent W. H. Cockerill of Leesburg coached the winning team, composed of Edwin Arnold, Tommy Fleming, Jackie Arnold and Frank Keesling.

The second-place Maryland team, all from Talbot County, included Percy Shortall, jr., and James Clark of Easton, Thomas Meredith of Wye Mills and Frank Patrick of Cordova.

The West Virginians—from Harrison County—were Arnold Smith, Paul Payne, Peggy Cunningham and Wayne Lewis.

Here are the individual contest results: Horses, Keesling, first; Clark, second, and Arnold, third. Swine, Fleming, first; Meredith, second, and Keesling, third. Sheep, Layne, first; Fleming, second, and Keesling, third. Beef cattle, Fleming, first; Smith, second, and Clark, third.

Results of the collegiate contest were not available today.

G-Girls Shed Tears at Close Of Two Potomac Dormitories

The Washington Post

MAKING A MOVE—Margie Young, 22, assembles her luggage yesterday as she waits for a taxicab to move her from Alcott Hall in West Potomac Park to Nebraska Hall at Arlington Farms. Miss Young,, here from Lincoln, Nebr., is a Navy Department employe

By Val Montanari
Post Reporter

There were tears and sad farewells at Alcott and Barton Halls in West Potomac Park yesterday as most of the last 100 Government girl residents of the dormitories moved out.

Today, the last residents must move out of the two halls which the Government erected in the spring of 1943 for some of the thousands of office workers needed in the war effort.

"We really hate tot leave," said Navy Department employe Marcy Stefik, 24, as she packed her belongings in the room in Alcott Hall she has occupied for two and one-half years.

The halls are being closed because they have been only about half full for several months, and maintenance costs have been too high for such occupancy.

At least half the girls have moved to halls at Arlington Farms, a similar Government unit, while about 15 per cent have joined forces and found apartments in the area, according to estimates of John C. Junek, manager of the Office of Residence Halls, Public Buildings Administration. Units at Arlington Farms have plenty of vacancies.

Ruth Westlund, director of Barton Hall since June, 1945, said some of those who had occupied rooms there from the beginning have shed tears as they left.

Miss Westlund and Mrs. E. F. Herlits, director of Alcott Hall, will remain for about a week with some of the staff to supervise the shipping of the 1000 bedroom suites of furniture to the victims of the recent disastrous fires in Maine. The Federal Works Agency, of which Public Buildings is a division, is donating all the furniture, while the Red Cross is providing the trucking.

The two dormitories will shortly be turned over to the National Capital Parks for removal. The park agency is expected to develop a new rose garden there.

Morning Coughs
Often Due to Bronchial Asthma

Do you cough and cough, especially mornings and at night? At times do you feel like you were tearing yourself to pieces trying to get rid of strangling mucus and still you choke, gasp for breath, wheeze and often can't sleep? The cause of these devitalizing symptoms may be recurring attacks of Bronchial Asthma. In such cases, the very first dose of Mendaco, a physician's prescription, usually starts almost instantly to help relax that clogged up stuffy feeling in the bronchial tubes, then helps Nature loosen and remove thick, strangling phlegm. This helps you get good fresh air into your lungs and promotes restful sleep. Mendaco is not a smoke, injection or spray, but is a tasteless internal medicine which works thru the blood, thus reaching the bronchial tubes and lungs. Mendaco must satisfy in every way or your money back is guaranteed. Ask your druggist for Mendaco today, and take exactly as directed.

Negro Voting Cases Before U. S. Court

Baltimore, Nov. 15 (AP).—The three judges of the Fourth Circuit Court of Appeals will hear the arguments of a dozen attorneys Tuesday before deciding whether the United States Constitution applies to South Carolina's "white supremacy" primaries or whether they are equivalent to "election of officers of the Forest Lake Country Club."

The case of George Elmore vs. Clay Rice et al. is one of two major court tests scheduled this week involving discrimination against Negroes in the South.

Both sides concede that Elmore, a qualified Negro voter from Columbia, S. C., was "denied the right to vote" August 13, 1946, in the Democratic primary for United States Congressman.

Case Up on Appeal

The case comes here on appeal by the defense from a ruling by Judge J. Waites Waring of the United States District Court for the Eastern District of South Carolina last July 12. Judge Waring ruled that "all qualified Negro electors are entitled to vote in the Democratic primaries in South Carolina."

Scheduled for Friday is the case of John H. Wrighten vs. the University of South Carolina, involving exclusion of Negroes from the university law school. This also was appealed from a ruling July 12 by Judge Waring, ordering the university to accept Negroes, or to provide equivalent facilities at its A. and M. College for Negroes at Orangeburg.

Two hours of arguments are scheduled in the voting case Tuesday before Circuit Judges John J. Parker of Charlotte, N. C., Morris A. Soper of Baltimore and Armistead M. Dobie of Charlottesville, Va., now in session here.

Many Lawyers on Hand

Three lawyers represent Elmore, nine will appear for the 60 defendants. Rice and seven others are primary election managers in Ward 9 Precinct of Richland County, S. C.; the rest are members of the county Democratic committee.

The defense claims that Elmore "has no more right to vote in the Democratic primaries in the State of South Carolina than to vote in the election of officers of the Forest Lake Country Club or for the Colonial Dames of America."

"None of the defendants are officials of the State," the brief says, and "no State action is involved." South Carolina in 1944 repealed all laws affecting primaries after a speech by Senator Olin D. Johnston, then Governor, saying that: "After these statutes are repealed, in my opinion, we will have done everything in our power to guarantee white supremacy in our primaries." The defense adds:

"Only where the primary is an essential part of the statutory process of election . . . is the right to a citizen to vote in such primary guaranteed by the United States Constitution."

Elmore's attorneys, in their reply on file here, declare, "The constitutional protection extends to every primary election where State law has made the primary an integral part of the procedure of choice," adding, "Repeal of the statutes did not change the status of the primary" in any fundamental way.

"Basic civil rights grounded in the Constitution cannot be revoked by technicalities," they contend.

56 Md. Beach Businessmen Indicted on Gambling Charge

Prince Frederick, Md., Nov. 15 (AP).—Fifty-six grand jury indictments charging gambling were on file today against about 40 Calvert County residents, most of them proprietors of business establishments at the resort communities of North Beach and Chesapeake Beach.

Judge John Gray set bail at $500 each.

The indictments constituted the greatest number ever returned by a Calvert County grand jury at one time or those charges.

They followed a request to the jurors by Chief Judge William Loker to investigate thoroughly what the judge said were "the unscrupulous activities of gambling interests within the boundaries" of Calvert County.

He told the jury that mechanical gambling devices operated only in the open and in public places nad could not exist without concurrence of law-enforcement officials.

He asserted thta where such devices were in operation it indicated clearly that the operators "control your politics."

The real question, he declared, is just a question of political power and money against courage when these things do get to court.

Judge Gray set November 24 as the date for preliminary arraignment for acceptance of pleas.

Officials said records of the Internal Revenue office in Baltimore show the Federal Government has collected $40,000 in taxes on illegal gaming devices in Calvert County.

Since the Federal tax is $100 per machine, they estimated there are at least 400 of the devices in the county, which has a population of about 10,000.

The cases will be heard in Circuit Court here December 1, the court said. The specific charge against the accused is "operating a place for gambling."

Attlee's Daughter Married to Engineer

Princes Risborough, Buckinghamshire, Eng., Nov. 15 (AP).—Janet Attlee, daughter of Prime Minister and Mrs. Attlee, was married today to Harold Shipton, an electronics engineer. About 200 persons, including cabinet ministers, crowded the Ellesborough parish church.

Miss Attlee, eldest of the Attlees' three daughters, and the first to marry, will return to her job as an assistant psychologist in a Bristol mental hospital.

Cab Driver Is Beaten, Robbed of $22 and Taxi

6 Housebreakings, 5 Auto Thefts Reported to Police

A 48-year-old cab driver was beaten about the head with a gun and robbed of $22 in cash and his taxicab by three men early yesterday, police reported.

Three other persons reported they were yoked and robbed early yesterday and Friday night. Police received reports of six housebreakings and grand larcenies and five auto thefts during the same period of time.

The cab driver, William Harris, of 1442 W. st. se., told police he picked up the three men at 13th st. and Pennsylvania ave. nw. about 1:30 a. m. They beat him and forced him to lie down on the floor of the cab when he reached the 6000 block of 3rd st. ne., he said.

Forced From Cab

At 18th st. and South Dakota ave. ne., the trio forced him from his cab and drove off. Police said the cab was found abandoned several hours later in Shepherds ct. near the 9000 block of L st. nw.

Joseph L. Gubisch, 40, of 1309 Bryant st. ne., reported two men he had met in a restaurant in the 400 block of H st. ne. robbed him of $26 in cash and his car keys about 1:30 a. m. yesterday.

Edward J. McKim, of 1215 N st. nw., told police three men followed him into the vestibule of the N st. address, and yoked and robbed him of his billfold, containing $2, shortly before midnight Friday.

Three men yoked and robbed Bernard E. Grady, 64, of 22 I st. nw., Friday night, while he was walking in the unit block of I st. They took his eyeglasses and personal papers, he said.

Get $240 in Cash

Thieves stole $240 in cash, and jewelry valued at $275, from a closet in the living room of her home, Annie L. Yancey, 49, of 1110 Columbia rd. nw., reported to police.

Mrs. Elsie Hoover, 33, of 1918 D st. ne., reported $30 in cash, two rings and several other pieces of jewelry, were stolen from a bedroom in her home.

A .38 caliber German pistol, with a fully loaded clip, was stolen from his room, Bayne Teague, of 805 1st st. nw., told police.

Miss Leone Matthews, of 1310 Massachusetts ave. nw., reported a wrist watch, a skirt and a pair of slacks were stolen from her apartment. Markle B. Wills, who lives in a nearby apartment house at 1300 Massachusetts ave. nw., told police $4 was taken from a desk drawer.

Home Was Ransacked

Marie Burks of 5009 Blaine st. ne., reported thieves took $6 and several sheets and shirts after ransacking her home.

Mrs. Ida Mitchell, 622 Gresham pl. nw., reported his auto was stolen from the 5100 block of Central ave. se.

Mrs. John E. Young of 1424 Carrollburg pl. sw.,; Dennis Johnson of 4826 Hayes st. ne.; Irving Honkiman of 1274 5th st. ne., and Theoluis Alexander of 228 Division ave. ne., all reported that their autos had been stolen from in front of their homes.

Man Burned

11 Injured, 2 Seriously In Fights

Eleven persons were injured, two seriously, in altercations here early yesterday and Friday night, police and hospital records showed.

Raymond L. Vickery, 24, of 937 K st. nw., was admitted to Casualty Hospital with a possible skull fracture after he was struck with an unknown objectsssssssss ment in the 500 block of 9th st. nw. He told police he lost his billfold, containing $8 in cash, during the fracas.

Ethel Holmes, 35, of 637 L st. ne., was in fair condition at Emergency Hospital after her throat was slashed with a knife while she was in a home in the 200 block of K st. sw. Police are looking for a with the assault.

Hit by Grease

Milton Garnett, 32, of 2023 West Virginia ave. ne., received second degree burns to his neck and head when a pan of hot grease was thrown on him while he slept in his home. He was treated at Gallinger Hospital.

Treated at Emergency Hospital for head lacerations, after he was struck with a flatiron, was James A. Flair, 33, of 1733 Q st. nw. Police charged Edith Doyle Fulton, 33, of the Q st. address, with assault with a dangerous weapon.

David Johnson, 54, of 519 Florida ave. nw., was treated at Garfield Hospital for head lacerations after he was struck with a putty knife during an argument in the hallway of the Florida ave. address.

Struck by Plate

Smith Simmons, 26, of 200 L st. nw., was struck on the head with a plate during an altercation in the kitchen of a restaurant in the unit block of Massachusetts ave. nw. He was treated at Emergency Hospital for head cuts and released.

Treated at Gallinger Hospital for head lacerations was Jack Crowder, of 927 New Jersey ave. nw., who was struck with a milk bottle in the hallway of a nearby home.

Four persons were treated at local hospitals for knife wounds. They were:

Annie Wilson, 27, of 471 Ridge st. nw., treated at Freedmen's. Police arrested Marshall Tate, 23, of 1522 3rd st. nw., on a charge of assault with a dangerous weapon.

Thomas J. Garrett, 46, of 918 3rd st. ne., treated at Casualty Hospital.

Willie May Freeman, 45, of 1271 1st st. se., treated at Providence.

Military Bases Proposed for Va.

More than $8,500,000 in authorizations for military establishments in Virginia is contained in bills on the calendars for the special session of Congress.

Leaders in Congress, however, have stated there is not much chance of any legislation other than that relating to foreign aid and price relief receiving consideration at the session beginning Monday.

Among the items listed are $4,202,600 for additional living quarters at Camp Lee; $1,648,800 for land and range facilities at the Chincoteague Naval Aviation Ordnance Test Station; $1,188,-570 for family quarters and utilities at Fort Belvoir; $1,319,100 for family quarters and utilities at Vint Hill Farms station, and $4370 for land at the Norfolk Naval Shipyard at Portsmouth.

Negro 4-H Club Marks 'Achievement Day'

Bowie, Md., Nov. 15 (AP).—Two hundred 4-H clubbers participated in Negro 4-H Club "Achievement Day" today, and about 100 members were awarded blue ribbons or cash prizes for exhibits in farming and home making.

Dr. Roscoe C. Brown, chief officer in Negro health work at the United States Public Health Department, addressed the group, telling them "good health is essential to good farming." District County Agent Martin G. Bailey of Seat Pleasant presided.

Chest Agency Means the World to Deaf Child

By Arthur Ellis—The Washington Post

HIS MOTHER'S VOICE—Mrs. Max Chapman speaks through a hearing aid to her young son, Ronald. The Chapmans, of 2024 Peabody st., West Hyattsville, Md., are among the families getting guidance from Washington Society for Hard of Hearing, a Community Chest agency

Trend Cheers Chest Drive Officials Here

Community Chest Federation officials said last night they are "genuinely encouraged" by progress shown to date in Washington's effort to oversubscribe its $3,900,000 goal.

The statement came after local Chest leaders studied reports of campaigning in four other United States cities. Telegraphic data sent to Washington headquarters from Cleveland, Detroit, Minneapolis and Houston showed that each of these cities had reached or exceeded 100 per cent of their goals.

Miwlton W. King, vice chairman of the local campaign, noted a "definite trend" in the reports and stated:

"I think this trend indicates that even when large amounts are asked of large metropolitan areas, American citizens respond with real generosity. Washington and the National Capital area included in our campaign has a total population comparable to Cleveland, and only slightly smaller than that of Detroit proper.

Taken as Good Omen

"To me, the achievement of these other large Chest campaigns is a good omen. It seems to me that we have plenty of reason to believe we, too, can make 100 per cent, or better, of our goal."

The Washington area's latest report, tabulated Friday, placed the campaign at 49.07 per cent.

Detroit's Chest reported raising 102 per cent of its goal; Cleveland raise 100.44 per cent; Minneapolis raised 100 per cent, and Houston brought in 102.1 per cent. All these drives ended in the past week.

Big doings in connection with the current drive here are slated this week.

Luncheon at Statler

Topping the list is a gala residential unit luncheon at 12:30 p. m. Wednesday at Hotel Statler. Mrs. Harry Truman will be guest of honor. Other guests will include Mrs. Dwight Eisenhower, Gene Tierney, the movie star, and Fannie Hurst, the novelist. Malvina Lindsay, columnist for The Washington Post, will speak.

At the same time Business Units I and II will make special reports at a luncheon in Hotel Annapolis.

Today a report luncheon will be held at 12:15 p. m. at the Chamber of Commerce Building. Reports of Business Unit II will be featured.

At 8 p. m. today the Prince Georges County unit will make its second report at a meeting in the County Service Building, Hyattsville.

On Tuesday Business Unit I will make its report at another luncheon in the Chamber of Commerce Building. Friday at the report luncheon, a Campfire Girl and a Boy Scout will be guest speakers.

This Chest Agency Has World Of Meaning for Deaf Child

who is learning from vibratory sound, different methods of teaching a child to speak when his hearing is impaired—and above all the importance of "saturating" the child with sound.

Mrs. Max Chapman, 2024 Peabody st., West Hyattsville, is president of the parents' study group, which meets each Thursday night. Mrs. Chapman is interested in the instruction because her 4-year-old son, Ronnie, has had impaired hearing since he was 6 months old, as an aftermath of whooping cough.

Frequently, parents come to their first class feeling as conspicuous as the proverbial sore thumb. But when they leave, they know they are just one segment of a community of parents who want their children, despite their handicap, to grow up to lead normal, useful lives.

Perhaps Greatest Legacy

They know that perhaps the greatest legacy they can present to their child is the ability to be self-reliant, calm under such a burden and, above all, not self-pitier.

These are things which the Washington Society for the Hard of Hearing tries to teach. Certainly well equipped for such work is its erecutive secretary, Miss Rose V. Feilbach, who herself has a hearing defect which she has overcome so thoroughly that one is seldom conscious it exists.

There are other types of classes at the society. There are classes for the hard of hearing themselves. There is an audiometer there to measure the extent to which hearing has been impaired. The society gives advice on what hearing aid is best suited to the individual, what firm manufactures such a hearing aid, and where it can be purchased.

Sometimes, with children, a hearing aid works well. Sometimes it doesn't. Then the trial and error method must be used until a device is found that the child will accept.

Must Learn to Listen

But always, the people at the society believe, the important thing for the hard of hearing is to learn to listen—and never, never, give up.

The past week was national Hard of Hearing Week. The goal is to teach people to conserve their hearing resources, to check their children's healeh carefully after childhood illnesses or after colds.

Every week is Hard of Hearing Week at the Washington society. And every year they see about 1000 persons both young and old who want to hear common sounds—the song of a bird, the squeak of a shoe, the voice of a loved one, the tick of a clock.

The Washington Society for the Hard of Hearing is one of the agencies which you hely to support with your contribution to the Community Chest Federation.

Gallinger Idea For Teaching Is Opposed

Medical schools, rather than the District, should pay instructors if psychiatry is taught at Gallinger Hospital, Health Officer George C. Ruhland declared yesterday.

He said he objected to a proposal by Dr. Alvin Sweeney, Gallinger superintendent, that the District hire teachers.

The suggestion was made in Dr. Sweeney's recommendations for improving psychiatrist services at the hospital.

Report to be Revamped

Commissioner Guy Mason sent the report back for more details to justify the improvements so they can be included in the 1949 fiscal District budget, Ruhland said. Gallinger officials will resubmit the report and a complete justification early this week, he added.

Dr. Sweeney said he had asked for a "consultant" to help set up a teaching program. "I put it in the report in case we had to use it," he declared. "Naturally, I'd prefer to work through the medical schools."

He said a good teaching program would help raise standards in Gallinger's psychiatric division.

G. W. U. Expects to Pay

Dr. Walter A. Bloedorn, dean of the George Washington University Medical School, agreed that teachers should be supplied by medical schools. "We don't expect Gallinger to pay for our teachers," he stated.

Most of the school's psychiatric teaching in hospitals is done at St. Elizabeths Hospital, he said. "But we believe Gallinger offers splendid opportunities for teaching psychiatry. We'd be willing to do teaching there if it would help the situation, and I think it would," he added.

In order to establish such a teaching program, he said, it is important that Gallinger obtain enough additional psychiatrists to fill its authorized quota.

Lack of trained personnel, Gallinger officials revealed last week, make it necessary to shackle patients to beds in the psychiatric wards. If this situation can be eliminated, Dr. Sweeney said, the medical schools will find Gallinger a more attractive place for teaching purposes.

Service Workers Postpone Strike

A strike of some 170 Fairlington service employes is no longer an immediate threat. This was announced after a conference yesterday between representatives of Local 82, Building and Service Employes Union (AFL) and the Fairmac Corp., owner of the development.

The union, represented by Samuel Levine, said it had asked for a contract setting forth wage adjustments, vacation provisions, and improved conditions, and would continue discussions with the management.

David Krooth, attorney for the corporation, said the meeting was "entirely an exploratory discussion" and the two groups would meet again in the near future. The union originally threatened strike action last Thursday unless Fairmac agreed to a conference.

Three Men Appointed As WHIA Supervisors

Blacksburg, Va., Nov. 15 (AP).—Three men who last week completed a Virginia Tech short course for Dairy Herd Improvement Association supervisors have been named to vacant State DHIA posts, it was announced today.

Assistant Dairyman William H. Armstrong of the Agricultural Extension Service listed these appointments as supervisors: Lewis C. Fellers of Goode, Lynchburg DHIA; E. O. Rainey of Sutherland, Tazewell DHIA, and Dallas Wampler of Wyer's Cave, Rockingham DHIA.

Four Injured as Car Rams Greyhound Bus

One Rider Severely Hurt in Collision At 12th and K Sts.

Four persons were injured, one critically, when an automobile collided with a Greyhound bus at 12th and K sts. nw. early yesterday.

Three other persons were injured in traffic accidents in the District.

Critically injured in the auto and bus crash was Allen Burnett, 22, of 3731 18th st. ne., who was treated at Emergency Hospital and transferred to Mount Alto Hospital suffering a possible skull fracture.

Police said he was a passenger in the car, operated by John A. O'Brien, jr., 23, of 714 Hamlin st. ne., who was treated at Emergency Hospital for scalp lacerations.

Other Passengers Hurt

Two other passengers in the automobile were admitted to Emergency. They were Jeanne LeRoi, 22, of 5002 43d ave., Hyattsville, Md., who suffered a fractured shoulder bone, and Agnes T. Flood, 21, of the 43d ave. address, who sustained cuts of the face.

Police said the car, headed east on K st. was demolished after striking the left side of the bus, headed north on 12th st. The bus was operated by Lincoln C. Sparks, 29, of Baltimore, Md., police said.

Kenneth Roger Dewhirst, 13, of 9909 Dallas ave., Silver Spring, Md., was admitted to Emergency Hospital with njuries to an arm and shoulder. Police said he fell from the rear of a motor scooter, operated by his brother, Ralph E. Dewhirst, when the wheels caught in streetcar tracks in the 5900 block of Georgia ave. nw.

Driver Injured in Crash

Luellen Scott, jr., 33, of 3624 11th st. nw., was taken to Emergency Hospital for observation after the car he was driving collided at 8th and Rittenhouse sts. nw. with an auto, operated by Robert W. Winthrop, 28, of 3937 Legation st. nw. Police said Scott suffered possible fractured ribs and chest injuries.

Burton W. Wachtel, 9, of 15 Riggs rd. ne., was admitted to Garfied Hospital with possible head injuries after he was struck by an auto in the 5400 block of New Hampshire ave. nw. Police said the car was driven by Merrick W. Spalding, 32, of 122 15th st. se.

Meanwhile, the condition of 3-year-old Sharon Meenehan of 2813 39th st. nw, struck by an auto in front of her home Friday afternoon, remained critical last night. The child is in Georgetown Hospital.

James River Line Gets ICC Approval

Richmond, Va., Nov. 15 (AP).—The Interstate Commerce Commission has approved an application of the Norfolk, Baltimore and Carolina Line, Inc., to resume operations on the James River between Richmond and Norfolk, F. J. D. Mackay, chairman of the traffic committee of the Richmond Chamber of Commeree, said today.

Mackay, who received notification of the I. C. C. action today, said the coastal steamship line plans to start three weekly round trips between the two cities as soon as negotiations are completed with the city of Richmond for use of its two terminals.

Spratt Home Bought For Parochial School

Fredericksburg, Va., Nov. 15 (Spl).—A parochial school will be founded here n a few months.

"Kirkland," home of Mr. and Mrs. W. Campbell Spratt, near the western city limits on Marye's Heights, famed Civil War battleground, has been purchased as the site.

On Porter St.

Apartment Residents Ask Parking

Residents of the 2700 block of Porter st. nw. yesterday petitioned Traffic Director George E. Keneipp to continue parking privileges in their block.

A parking ban has been proposed on the grounds that the recent relocation of Porter st. and its connection with the new Klingle St. Bridge may make this crosstown boulevard a hazard from speeding cars.

According to the petition, there are approximately 60 car owners living in two apartments on the south side of the 2700 block of Porter st. nw., who need parking space.

Prior to the relocation of Porter street, off-street parking facilities were adequate to handle 30 cars, but this space has now been reduced, the petition states. The rest of the cars were parked on the north side of the street.

The only streets intersecting Porter street which might be used for parking are Connecticut avenue and Williamsburg lane, each about a quarter mile distance from the apartment houses, according to the petitioners.

Kentipp said he will give it every consideration when he receives it. He said he understood adequate off-street parking would be constructed as soon as possible by the apartment house owners.

DrDr. F. B. Lewis To Be Installed As College Head

Staunton, Va., Nov. 15 (AP).—Dr. Frank Bell Lewis, 36-year-old ordained minister and native of West Virginia, will be formally installed as Mary Baldwin College's third senior college president here Tuesday at 11 a. m.

Elected to head the college last spring he succeeds Dr. L. Wilson Jarman, who resigned in 1946 and who now is president emeritus. In the interim Mrs. Thomas H. Grafton, dean, has been acting president.

A great-grandson of the man who founded the institution as Augusta Female Seminary in 1842 and who is president of the college board of trustees—Edmund Douglass Campbell of Washington—will induct Dr. Lewis into office.

Dr. Lewis, who was born in Greenbrier County, W. Va., was professor of Bible and philosophy at Davis and Elkins College, W. Va., before becoming Mary Baldwin president.

Smaller Supplies Of Meat Predicted During 1947-48

Blacksburg, Va., Nov. 15 (AP).—Smaller supplies of red meat from cattle, hogs and sheep in the 1947-48 season were predicted today by an Agricultural Service Economist, who said the per capita supply probably would be down about 7 per cent from the previous year.

Dr. J. L. Maxton said 1947 figures probably would show about 37 million head of cattle slaughtered in 1947, a decline of three million from the previous year.

Maxton said supplies of lamb and mutton are the smallest since the late 1920's and probably will continue small for three to five more years. Hog supplies for slaughter this winter, he continued, are expected to be only about 1½ per cent larger than in 1946.

'Santa' Is Already a Busy Man and in Many Places at the Same Time . . .

Youngsters Make Many Odd Requests For Christmas Gifts

By Lee Grove
Post Reporter

"Santa Clause, I want . . ."

It's 39 days to Christmas, but already the requests of tots and near-teeners are pouring into the receptive ear of the man with the snowy whiskers and cheerful cheeks in the red suit.

Standing in line in the various Washington department stores, tired mothers and gallant fathers wait their turn to present the little ones to Santa Claus, and break into smiles as the Man from the North Pole raises their child to his ample knee.

Once in a while a timid or overexcited tot breaks into tears or screams, but mostly they trustfully tell the friendly man their wants. On occasion they threaten him, like the little girl who darkly said, "You'd better come to my house, I've been eating all my cereal."

Generally the children ask for two-wheeled bicycles, apparently the most coveted of gifts, next to "doll babies" dear to the childish heart through the centuries.

Baby doll carriages, phonographs and sewing machines, doll houses and furniture, and erector sets are routine requests, while hundreds ask for electric trains. One boy asked for a set for "my father to with." (He'll robably get it.)

Strangely, or perhaps poignantly, many children ask for Christmas trees.

Many also ask for baby brothers or sisters, and some tell Santa that he is bringing them one.

Despite the hundreds of requests made of Santa he is at times startled. By the little boy, for instance, who requested "a double-barreled shotgun to kill the * who has been stealing my chickens."

Or the little girl who said she had everything and could Santa take her gifts to the children in Europe?

Or the other little girl who confided loudly that she and her mother wanted a baby sister, but her father didn't want one. It was just then that her mother suddenly remembered an appointment that had to be kept.

Sant came down the chimney into other homes, too, as he listened to the child on his knee.

That of the tot, for instance, who asked Santa for a job for his father.

Anr the little girl who asked Santa to make her mother and father speak and hear her.

The parents were deaf mutes.

"I asked her to say,' Merry Christmas' to me in their language," Santa said later, "and it was like benediction."

A DOLL AND A BABY CARRIAGE is what 3-year-old Patricia De Misa, daughter of Mrs. Ruth De Misa, of 72 Croissant pl. se., wants for Christmas. She's telling "Santa" (Roderick McKinsey) at the Hecht Co.

A TOY SEWING MACHINE will make Bonnie Pickeral, 6, happy. Her sister, Virginia, 2, wants a doll baby. The daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Pickeral, of 1368 C st. ne., are telling it to Kann's "Santa" (W. H. Molan)

A NEW TRICYCLE is in the mind of David Obenschain, 5, son of Mrs. J. C. Obenschain, of 1215 Congress st. se. That's what he said to "Santa" at Lansburgh's Department store. Santa wouldn't tell us his name

By Henry Rohland—The Washington Post

"SANTA, I WANT a doll house and furniture and a baby carriage," says Mary Ann Lusky, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elwood Lusky, of Hyattsville, Md. Woodward's "Santa" is Alexander Andrews

Area News in Brief

Board Will Discuss Drinking by Children

Is it better to let children drink in taverns with their elders or run the risk of having them lured to private drinking partiese by unscrupulous adults?

This is the question the District Commissioners will be called upon to decide Thursday when they meet with Corporation Counsel Vernon E. West and members of the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board.

Subject of the discussion will be the final draft of a new regulation, proposed by ABC, to make it illegal for minors to drink in ABC-licensed establishments here, regardless of who gives them the drinks.

ABC submitted the proposal last September, after West ruled that under present liquor laws it's all right for minors to drink in local taverns so long as they don't order drinks, pay for them, or have them set before them by waiters.

Dog Shoots Hunter

Hinton, W. Va., Nov. 15 (AP).—James Lilly of Ballengee, W. Va., told authorities his dog had shot him during a hunting trip.

Lilly said a bullet entered his foot as he stooped to pick up a quail he had bagged. The dog stepped on the trigger of Lilly's automatic shotgun.

Club Reducing Noise

With the management of the Club Cairo, 1615 Q st. nw., making some progress to abate the noise that had led to complaints by neighbors, possible prosecution will be held in abeyance for at least a week, Assistant Corporation Counsel Robert Kneipp said yesterday.

Beaverboard has been utilized to cut down the din, Kneipp reported. In addition, negotiations are under way for installation of sound-proofing devices, which should reduce the noise of ventilator fans by 50 per cent, Kneipp said.

Sentenced in Hit-Run

Winchester, Va., Nov. 15 (Spl.). Elwood L. Fletcher, 27, of Gore, has been given a two-year suspended penitentiary sentence and placed on probation for three years after pleading guilty to a charge of hit-and-run involving a fatal injury. Fletcher was indicted as the driver of a car that struck and killed Earl Foreman, 51, near Gore last July 5.

Burns Provee Fatal

Frederick, Md., Nov. 15 (Spl.).—Burns suffered October 30 when a gasoline-fired soldering pot exploded resulted in the death last night of Clifford Monroe Wetzel, 22, Braddock Heights plumber, at Frederick Memorial Hospital.

He leaves his mother, Mrs. Bessie Young Wetzel; his wife, and young daughter, who was born last Wednesday. Wetzel served as a seaman first class in the Navy in World War II. Military services will be held.

Boy Seizes Intruder

James Fraser, 18, of 1129 12th st. nw., weighs only 120 pounds. But that was enough to subdue and hold a 170-pound alleged housebreaker early Friday.

Fraser told police he was awakened by a figure prowling about his room. He said he collared the man, identified as George Davis, 131 Quincy pl. ne., near the doorway.

Fraser held fast to the intruder until police arrived. In Municipal Court yesterday, Davis was held in $1000 bond for the grand jury.

Back Universal Training

The Cavalry Chapter, Reserve Officers Association, District of Columbia Department, last week unanimously adopted a resolution favoring enactment of the Department of the Army plane for universal military training.

New officers for the coming year are Lieut. Col. Ford E. Young, jr., president; Col. Lathrop E. Smith, vice president, and Lieut. George W. Finn, secretary-treasurer.

The slogan must consist of not more than five yords and entries are open to all students in Loudoun. Mrs. D. Thomas Webster of Hamilton will have charge of the contest, entries closing December 1.

Galt Gets Legion Post

John Galt of Falls Church has been appointed a member of the advisory board of the National Rehabilitation Committee of the American Legion, Legion officials announced yesterday.

Galt, who was appointed to the post by National Commander James O'Neil, is a member of Falls Church Post, 130, American Legion, and a veteran of World War I, in which he served overseas as an Air Corps captain. He also is a past Virginia Department commander of the American Legion.

'Unpaid Balance' Paid

Fredericksburg, Va., Nov. 15 (Spl.).—Charles Carter, 31, collected his "unpaid balance" from Police Justice A. W. Embrey, jr., today.

Carter was convicted last August of failing to post a letter containing $20, which a friend had entrusted to him. He served 20 days of an indeterminate sentence in city jail before the letter turned up. It had gone astray.

Today Carter was given a 90-day sentence when found guilty of being an accessory to a robbery by four juveniles. Justice Embrey gave him "credit" of 30 days for the 20 previously served.

Firemen Scale Jail Walls

Baltimore, Nov. 15 (AP).—Firemen scaled the walls of the Maryland Penitentiary today to extinguish a blaze in a brush and paperbox factory atop the prison's power house.

Fire engines were barred at the prison gate because of a precautionary regulation, and firemen had to place ladders against the inside and outside of the walls, hauling their hoses over the top.

Guards armed with tommy guns were concentrated on the walls while prisoners joined firemen and penitentiary employes in battling the stubborn blaze, which lasted an hour.

The cause of the blaze was not established immediately. A prison official said damage was not extensive.

DC Changed to AC

The usual Saturday somnolence at the District Building was rudely shattered yesterday by the sound of electric drills and the smashing of steel against stone.

Reason: Modern fluorescent lighting, which will soon brighten up the redecorated Commissioners' board room, requires alternating electric current.

Because the rest of the building works on direct current, a special crew of workmen is toiling over the weekend to put in AC current cables. To install them, workmen must bore through several thick walls.

Book Week Planned

Chevy Chase Elementary School, Valley and Rosemary sts., Chevy Chase, Md., will observe book week from tomorrow through Friday.

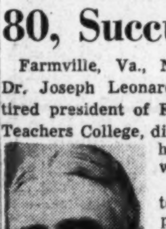
Dr. Jarman, Va. Educator, 80, Succumbs

Farmville, Va., Nov. 15 (AP).—Dr. Joseph Leonard Jarman, retired president of Farmville State Teachers College, died at his home here today. He was 80.



Mr. Jarman

Dr. Jarman took over the presidency of the Farmville school in 1902 and earned a reputation as a pioneer in the education field in Virginia.

A native of Charlottesvil l e, he was a professor of natural sciences at Emory and Henry College when he resigned to become the fourth head of the Farmville school.

In 1930, the white-haired, hard-working educator was offered the post of State Superintendent of Public Instruction by the late Governor John Garland Pollard, but he turned down the job at the specific request of students and the faculty at Farmville.

Dr. Jarman developed the college from a small Southern school to a two-million-dollar institution during his 44-year service, and was considered the "dean" of teachers' education in the State.

A native of Charlottesville, he was educated at the old Miller Training School and at the University of Virginia. From 1928 to 1932 he served as a member of the State Board of Education.

In 1906 the Virginia educator received an honorary L.L.D. from Hampton-Sydney College and in 1947 he was elected to membership in Phi Delta Kappa, national professional fraternity in education, in recognition of "distinguished service rendered in teaching circles. For recognized scholarship, Dr. Jarman was admitted to Phi Betta Kappa, and for leadership, to Omicron Delta Kappa.

Business Outlook

By J. A. Livingston

Battle Looms to Control Costs

The Marshall Plan—aid to Europe—made the big headlines last week, as it should have. Here was the coming battle for Europe unfolding in Congress. But another battle—strictly domestic—was also developing: The battle to control high living costs. That was evident in such developments as these:

The cost of getting your beauty rest is up $10. Simmons mattresses go up to $59.50 from $49.50. The price of newsprint, now $90 a ton, may rise another $8 to $10 by the first of the year. Textile mills contemplate advances all along the line—from toweling to men's suitings—as a result of the wage boost in Southern mills. Nash-Kelvinator hikes car prices $12 to $45. And lumber quotations continue to boom as warm weather extends the home-building season.

Livingston

Put It in the Record

Congressmen felt the h. c. of l. personally. At the House of Representatives restaurant at the Capitol, bread and butter, formerly gratis with meals, now costs a nickel. Beer's up from 20 cents to a quarter. A sirloin steak's still $1.50, but it's only four fifths what it used to be, 8 ounces instead of 10.

The price squeeze on consumers shows up at retail stores. Grocers are grumbling. Though consumers are spending a larger proportion of their income on food, they've gone bargain hunting—singling out the low-profit on-sale items. This tends to reduce profit margins.

Also department stores aren't doing too well on women's ready-to-wear. They offer unseasonally warm weather as an excuse. But they also recognize that (1) shoppers increasingly are visiting bargain basements, and (2) price markdowns account for an unduly large proportion of volume. Indeed, 1947 will go down as one of the big markdown years in United States department store history.

Weather reports from the Southwest suggest more of the same. The winter wheat is still dry and ungerminated. Tom Campbell, world's largest wheat grower, says farmers expect quotations to go higher, so they hold on. He says President Truman ought to fix grain prices. At the same time, Charles Luckman, chairman of the Citizens Food Committee, has declared that it "is becoming increasingly clear that we face a world food shortage for a long time to come." Apparently he has abandoned the notion that all he has to do is save 100 million bushels of grain and he's through.

All this adds up to: An immediate break in prices is a poor bet. Indeed, the Harriman Committee of 19 businessmen, labor leaders, bankers, and agricultural and economic experts rejected as "unrealistic" a Paris Conference assumption that United States prices would drop 7½ per cent by 1949 and 12½ by 1951. Too many shortages and rigidities in the economic structure, reasoned the committee.

Permanent Price Plateau

There's another influence. About 30 per cent of America's productive energies—about 65 billion dollars a year—are going into new homes, plant, machinery, roads, Government supplies, exports, etc. This creates wages and salaries without a corresponding creation of food, clothes, electrical appliances and other consumer goods. So that exaggerates the scarcity of supply relative to demand.

At the same time, the price structure is propped up by:

1. Permanently higher wages. Today the average hourly wage in factories is $1.25, double 1939. And wages don't have much "give" to them. Workers, banded together in powerful labor unions, are in a position to resist cuts. This rigidifies all costs—transportation, raw materials, manufacturing and distribution.

2. Permanently higher farm prices. Here the basic factor is the tie-in of farm prices to urban prices—by congressional action. This puts a floor under farm price declines. Higher costs also are at work. Fertilizer prices are up about a third and farm machinery about a quarter since 1939. And agricultural wage rates are over three times what they were in 1939.

3. Permanently higher Federal taxes, which enter into the final price of goods. For example, corporation and excise taxes now run to 15 billion dollars a year. That's as against three billion dollars in 1939 and two billion dollars in 1929.

4. The custom of corporations to establish prices based on long-term wage-cost relationships, rather than immediate supply and demand. These policies are abetted by fair-trade laws, which permit manufacturers to set retail prices which storekeepers must adhere to.

High Costs Institutionalized

In effect, costs have become institutionalized. As a result, the United States is on a permanently higher price plateau. Sure, some time we'll have a price break. But it's unlikely to be as severe as in 1920-22 when wholesale prices crashed 45 per cent, or as in 1929-33 when the drop was 38 per cent. Nor is it likely that prcies will ever get back to prewar levels (see chart). Too much labor-management cement has gone into the postwar price structure—in the form of higher wages. And more's to come. The high cost of living crisis is leading to another round of wage, hence cost, increases.

Chicago Grain

Chicago, Nov. 15 (AP).—A sharp upturn in corn featured dealings on the Board of Trade today in the last session prior to convening of a special session of Congress to consider foreign aid and domestic high prices.

Oats also were strong, but wheat finished with only minor gains. The bread cereal slumped a few cents during early trading, but came back shortly before the finish in sympathy with the spurt in corn and oats. Buying lagged in wheat because of the improved 1948 crop outlook.

Wheat finished ¼ to 1¼ higher, December, 3.00@3.00¼; corn was 4½ to 5½ higher, December 2.40@2.40⅛; oats were 1 to 1¾ higher, December 1.17¾@1.17⅝, and soybeans ½ lower to ½ higher, November 3.70.

The sudden upturn in corn caught the market by surprise about 30 minutes before the close. Brokers representing commercial inetrests started the buying and were soon followed by local traders. Some buying was considered short-covering with a number of stop-loss orders tuoched off.

Oats were relatively as strong as corn. Northwestern interests were credited with buying this grain. Spot prices advanced about 2 cents. A good shipping demand developed for both feed grains, shipping sales of corn and oats being placed at 100,000 bushels each.

There were no additional reports of rains in the Southwest today, but the drought-stricken area appeared to have obtained the first real moisture in several months yesterday. Private reports from Oklahoma said it was a slow, soaking rain calculated to do the most good.

Western Kansas and the Texas Panhandle also received Friday's rains. Traders believed farmers would now be able to complete seeding and might be more willing to send 1947 wheat to market. It was pointed out that more moisture will be needed to provide plant growth.

Trading in soybeans was quiet and without feature. Although November closed lower, all deferred lard deliveries were firm. Final prices were 20 cents lower to 22 cents a hundred pounds higher, November 25.30. Chicago lard stocks today were reported at 52,883,885 pounds, down 1,977,467 pounds since November 1.

Selected Issues Show Steady Tendency

New York, Nov. 15 (AP).—Steadying tendencies persisted for selected stocks today but it was the fourth straight declining week for the market as a whole.

A little professional short covering and buying elsewhere cropped up at the weekend on the idea a technical rally was overdue. Throughout the week, however, skeptical customers trimmed accounts to await the action of Congress on European relief and domestic inflation. The thought that record earnings statements by numerous corporations might bring the reinstatement of excess profits taxes inspired some selling. Adjustment of accounts for income tax purposes was a restraining factor. A big batch of raised and extra dividends was virtually ignored.

In the slow-going final session Pacific Western Oil added two points at 56¼ and Mission Corp. 1 at 50½ on revised merger hopes; Texas Pacific Coal & Oil 1⅞ at 44⅞ (a 1947 top) and Alleghany Corp. preferred 1⅛ at 40¾. Talk of Canadian dollar devaluation lifted Dome Mines 1 at 20 and McIntyre Porcupine 1½ at 43. Elsewhere plus signs were narrow. New lows for the year were recorded for Consolidated Edison, which finished off ¼ at 21¾; Eversharp 1⅛ at 11¾ and Cerro de Pasco ½ at 22⅜.

The Associated Press 60-stock composite was up .1 of a point at 64.5, but for the five days showed a net loss of .5.

New York Cotton

New York, Nov. 15 (AP).—Cotton futures, after moving within a narrow range, closed 5 to 55 cents a bale higher today. Trading was quiet during the short session as most dealers were inclined to await Washington developments.

Textile mills provided most of the support, covering cloth sales with contracts supplied by hedges and weekend profit taking.

Dealers reported that a fair amount of buying by commission houses was evident in the deferred deliveries.

With the exception of a sharp advance on Monday, following the issuance of the official crop forecast, cotton futures moved within a narrow trading range. However, for the weekly period futures contracts showed gains of $2.90 to $4.05 a bale.

The range follows:

	Open.	High.	Low.	Close
December	33.38	33.48	33.35	33.43	+5
March	33.56	33.69	33.56	33.68	+9-11

Broadcasting Industry's Net Off 8% in Year

Federal Communications Commission reported yesterday that net income of the standard radio broadcasting industry in 1946 amounted to $76,466,246, down 8.5 per cent from 1945.

Gross business increased 8 per cent last year when the total number of standard stations on the air rose from 901 to 1025, but the commission said this jump in revenues was "overshadowed by a 14 per cent increase in broadcast expenses." The total broadcast revenues of four nationwide and four regional networks and the 1025 stations in 1946 came to $322,552,771 and these facilities were operated at a total expense of $246,086,525.

In the first of a series of reports on last year's operations in standard broadcasting, the commission said:

"The increase in industry revenues was almost entirely in the category of non-network time sales which were up 13 per cent over 1945 while network time sales showed only a negligible increase of less than 1 per cent.

"Of the two types of non-network time sales, the larger increase was registered in sales to local advertisers which rose 17 per cent over 1945 period. Non-network time sales to national and regional advertisers increased 8 per cent.

"The distribution of 1946 revenues and income as between networks anl stations varied only slightly from 1945, with approximately one-third of the industry's revenues and one-fourth of the industry's (net) income accruing to the networks and their 29 owned and operated stations. The remaining revenues and income were shared by almost 1000 other stations."

'New Look' in the 1948 Studebaker Models

LOWER AND WIDER—Increased style and greater comfort get top billing as Studebaker introduces its 1948 models. Bodies are low, wide and spacious. Appearance and performance benefit by a number of improvements, including weight distribution that cradles passengers in the comfort zone of the chassis. New styling absorbs fenders into body. Above is the five-passenger Champion coupe which retains the panoramic windows pioneered on the first postwar Studebaker

Plans Outlined For New Bank In Shirlington

By S. Oliver Goodman

Plans for a new bank in the Shirlington Business Center in Arlington, Va., were announced yesterday by a group of prominent Old Dominion and Washington businessmen.

The bank, to be known as the Shirlington Trust Co., is expected to open sometime in January, according to George F. Hohein, who has been chosen its executive vice president and treasurer. Hohein, formerly cashier of Burke & Herbert Bank & Trust Co. of Alexandria, Va., stated that a certificate of authority to operate has been granted by the State commissioner of banking subject to completion of stock subscriptions which will be offered to the public.

To obtain capital of $250,000 and surplus of $50,000, the organizers plan to issue and sell 25,000 shares of $10-par capital stock at $12 a share. Temporary offices have been established adjacent to the Shirlington Theater for interviewing applicants for employment and transaction of stock subscriptions.

In addition to Hohein officers of the bank are: Joseph L. Cherner, local auto dealer and head of Shirlington Corp., president; Frank L. Ball, Arlington County attorney and former State senator, vice president; George A. Hatzes, general agent for Fidelity Mutual Life Insurance Co. in Washington, secretary.

Directors will include Eugene J. Olmi, developer of Belle Haven, Alexandria residential suburb; Carlyle R. Boguess, president of Southern Iron Works, Alexandria, and S. Miles Montgomery, vice president in charge of mortgage loans for Charles C. Koones & Co.

STORE SALES: Department store sales in Washington in September were 10 per cent greater than in the corresponding month last year, the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond reported yesterday. Sales in Baltimore showed a 4 per cent gain but were 3 per cent lower in Richmond. The Richmond Federal Reserve district showed a gain of 6 per cent. Outstanding orders on September 30 in Washington decreased 18 per cent and in the district were 27 per cent lower than last year. Accounts receivable were 28 per cent greater in Washington and 24 per cent larger in the district than a year previously.

HONOR: Walter J. Murphy of Washington yesterday received an honorary degree of doctor of science from Centre College in Kentucky. Murphy is editor of Industry and Engineering Chemistry and also edits Chemical and Engineering News, publications of the American Chemical Society.

MAYFLOWER HOTEL: The Mayflower Hotel Corp. has declared an initial dividend of 30 cents a share on its common stock, payable December 15, to stockholders of record November 14. H. L. Ludwig, treasurer of the company, said the earnings had improved in the current year. A fixed dividend policy has not been adopted by the company.

"OPEN HOUSE": More than 1000 industrial leaders were guests yesterday of The Hecht Co., which "showed off" its remodeled and enlarged downtown store and its new Silver Spring store. Sightseeing trips through the Washington store occupied the afternoon, a buffet supper was served at the Washington Hotel and the visitors were taken to the Silver Spring store last night. Among the group were leading manufacturers of furniture, radios, apparel and other items.

Envoy Sees Strong Europe as Best U. S. Guarantee

Prague, Czechoslovakia, Nov. 15 (U.P.).—U. S. Ambassador Laurence A. Steinhardt, speaking at ceremonies at Tabor renaming the city square for Franklin Delano Roosevelt, said today that "one of the best guarantees of the security of the United States lies in the existence of an independent, democratic, vigorous and productive Europe."

"We know beyond doubt," Steinhardt said, "that, if the nations of Europe should ever be subjugated and their resources harnessed for evil purposes, the independence and integrity of the United States would sooner or later be challenged."

Quoting Daniel Webster, Steinhardt declared: "God grants liberty only to those who love it and are always ready to guard and defend it."

Va. Young Democrats In Session

Richmond, Va., Nov. 15 (AP).—Members of Young Democratic Clubs from all over Virginia gathered here today for the opening session of their first State convention since 1941.

Two regarded as possible gubernatorial candidates in 1949—Mayor Horace Edwards of Richmond and State Senator John S. Battle of Charlottesville—were the opening-day speakers.

Thomas D. Odom, of Suffolk, former secretary to Representatives Winder R. Harris and Ralph H. Daughton, of the Second District, appeared scheduled for the State presidency to succeed Duval Radford, of Bedford.

The State organization has been more or less inactive since 1941, when a "freeze" was instituted at the request of Governor Colgate W. Darden. The present convention is designed to revitalize clubs throughout the Old Dominion.

Last night, Mayor Edwards was host to more than 200 early arrivals at a reception in the Hotel John Marshall.

Donald Nelson Weds British Ex-Actress

New York, Nov. 15 (AP).—Donald M. Nelson, 59, former head of the War Production Board and now president of the Society of Independent Motion Picture Producers, and Calerie May Rowell, 31, a native of Austria were married last night by Judge Saul Streit in Nelson's apartment.

A former British actress, Mrs. Nelson previously was wed to A. Arthur Tracy. They were divorced in April, 1945. Nelson had been married three times previously. His third wife, who was Marguerite Coulburn, died this year.

Scientists Open Meeting Tomorrow

A high point in Washington scientific interests, the annual fall meeting of the National Academy of Sciences, will be conducted here here tomorrow through Wednesday.

More than a score of scientific papers, ranging from a report on studies of the Tepexpan Man, unearthed in Mexico, to latest experiments of the 184-inch cyclotron atom-buster, will be presented. The sessions are open to the public.

The program opens at 8:30 p. m. tomorrow in the auditorium of the Natural History Museum, Smithsonian Institute, Constittuion ave. at 10th st., with a talk on the production of snow from super-cooled clouds. Heading the discussion will be Irving Langmuir of the General Electric Co., Schenectady, N. Y.

R. L. Thornton, University of California, will describe recent operations of the huge cyclotron, in one of nine papers prepared for delivery Tuesday morning, in the academy building auditorium, 2101 Constitution ave.

Other subjects to be discussed at this session include the creep and plastic flow of solid materials, solar activity as the origin of cosmic rays, and recent studies of fluorescence. Four afternoon session papers will deal with protein structure.

T. Dale Stewart, curator of physical anthropology, Smithsonian Institute, is scheduled to speak Wednesday morning in the academy auditorium on his study of the Tepexpan Man, and Comdr. Roger Revelle, USNR, will talk on "Bikini Revisited," in reporting on preliminary results of the scientific resurvey of Bikini last summer.

The week's scientific events in Washington:

Monday

Instrument Society of America, 8 p. m., Potomac Electric Power Co. auditorium. Frank Rieber, president, Rieber Research Laboratory, "The Vibratron and Its Use in Telemetering."

Annual meeting, National Academy of Sciences, 8:30 p. m., Smithsonian Institution auditorium. Irving Langmuir, General Electric Co., "Growth of Particles in Smoke and Clouds and the Production of Snow From Super-Cooled Clouds."

Tuesday

N.A.S., 9:30 a. m. to 12:30, Academy Bldg. auditorium. Edward Kasner, Columbia University, "Physical Families of Curves." Eugene P. Wigner, Princeton University, "Relativistic Wave Equations." Donald H. Menzel and Winfield W. Salisbury, Harvard University, "Solar Activity as the Origin of Cosmic Rays." Luis W. Alvarez and others, University of California, "Initial Performance of a 32 Mev Proton Linear Accelerator."

R. L. Thornton, University of California, "Recent Experiments with the 184-inch Cyclotron." Henry Eyring, University of Utah, "The Creep and Plastic Flow of Solid Materials." Peter Debye and Arthur M. Bueche, Cornell University, "Sedimentation and Diffusion of Polymers in Solution." Victor K. LaMer and J. W. Yates, Columbia University, "Influence of Ultrasonic Irradiation Upon the Phase Transition in the Formation of Colloidal Sulfur." W. Albert Noyes, jr., University of Rochester, N. Y., "Some Recent Studies on Fluorescence."

N. A. S. 2 to 5 p. m., auditorium, Academy Building, Symposium on Protein Structure, with David Barker, General Electric Co., "Application of X-ray Diffraction Phase Determinations to the Study of the Structures of Crystals Containing Large Molecules"; Alexander Rothen, Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research, "Long-Distance Interaction Between Protein Molecules"; John L. Oncley, Harvard Medical School, "The Size, Shape and Charge Distribution of Protein Molecules," and Robert W. Woodward, Harvard University, "Synthesis of Polypeptides."

American Society of Mechanical Engineers, management division, 8 p. m., Columbian House, George Washington University. Capt. W. E. A. Mullan, industrial engineer, "Production Control at the Naval Gun Factory."

WEDNESDAY.

N. A. S., 9:30 a. m. to 12:30, Academy Building Auditorium. C. A. Elvehjem, University of Wisconsin, "Nutritional Significance of Amino Acid Imbalance." Paul Weiss, University of Chicago, "Site of Cell Growth." Lorrin A. Riggs, Brown University, "Electrical Responses of the Human Retina to Stimulation by Lights of Various Wavelengths."

Lloyd H. Beck and Walter R. Miles, Yale University, "Infra-Red Absorption in Field Studies of Olfaction in Bees," and "Some Theoretical and Experimental Relationships Between Infra-Red Absorption and Olfaction." Arnold Gesell, Yale University, "Predictiveness of Infant Behavior Traits."

T. Dale Stewart, United States National Museum, and Javier Romero, Museo Nacional de Mexico, "Tepexpan Man—A Study of an Ancient Human Skeleton From the Valley of Mexico." Roger Revelle, Office of Naval Research, "Bikini Revisited—Preliminary Results of the Scientific Resurvey During the Summer of 1947."

Election Law Reform Aim Of Va. Women

Charlottesville, Va., Nov. 15 (AP). A two-day convention of the Virginia League of Women Voters ended today with adoption of a program calling for improvement of public education and improvement and simplification of Virginia election laws.

Earlier, the organization—recognized officially only yesterday—elected Miss Mary Stamps White of Charlottesville as State president and approved a budget of $1440 for the next 16 months.

Mrs. Festes Foster, Loudoun County, was elected first vice president; Mrs. Hersey Riley, Arlington, second vice president; Mrs. Richard R. Fletcher, Charlottesville, secretary; Mrs. J. S. Blackburn, Rockingham, treasurer, and Mrs. Jacob Cohn, Richmond, nominating chairman.

Miss Cornelia Adair, Richmond; Miss Madeline Mayer, Richmond; Mrs. Charles E. Planck, Arlington, and Mrs. Landon L. Simmons, Scottsville, were named to the State board of directors.

A montion that the league go on record in opposition to the poll tax as a prerequisite for voting in the Old Dominion was withdrawn after lively discussion when it developed there was lack of unanimity among the local chapters on the question.

The league seeks "a more adequate teaching force" and will work for election law reform "to increase the numberof voters, to facilitate registration and voting, and to insure the integrity of the ballot.

Miss White, new State president, headed a committee that in April, 1946, started work on reorganization of the Virginia chapter. She has headed the provisional State organization as acting president since that time.

Press Newsreel To Be Televised Over Network

New York, Nov. 15 (AP).—The first Associated Press newsreel will be televised over a three-station network at 8 to 8:15 p. m. tomorrow.

Originating in the studios of WMAR, the Baltimore Sunpapers' television station, the newsreel will be carried by WCBS-TV, the Columbia Broadcasting System's station in New York, and by WFIL-TV, the Philadelphia Inquirer's station in Philadelphia.

Other television stations will be supplied with the newsreel for individual showing.

The program will feature material from London, Philadelphia, Baltimore and Washington, assembled cooperatively by the Philadelphia Inquirer, the Baltimore Sunpapers and the AP television newsreel bureaus in Washington and London.

Rate Report Criticizes Both Alexandria and Hospital

By William H. Smith
Post Reporter

Alexandria Hospital and the Alexandria City Council, principals in a bitter rate controversy, both came in for criticism yesterday in a preliminary report of an impartial committee delegated to study the dispute.

The committee, which made a two-month study of the hospital setup in an effort to establish a "fair and reasonable" rate for the care of charity patients, found both the hospital and the council partially to blame for a deadlock which has existed since January 1.

Most criticism, however, was heaped on the hospital and its administrator, Robert G. Whitton, who was found by the survey committee to be without sufficient background and experience "to assure the governing body of the hospital of proper guidance."

Terming the present $5 daily rate paid by the city for charity patients "far too low," the committee recommends a rate not to exceed $8.81 a day for patients officially certified by the city welfare department as indigent. It also suggested that the city provide an annual outright grant of $20,000 to help offset hospital expenses.

Previously the City Council had balked at an $8.81 daily rate and a $30,000 outright grant demanded by the hospital at the start of this year. Since the dispute started, however, the hospital has contended the $8.81 would be insufficient in view of heavily increasedl expenses.

Board Promises Reforms

Immediately following publication of the preliminary report yesterday, the hospital's board of directors announced they would inaugurate a program of reform to eliminate the shortcomings found by the survey committee.

David C Book, chairman of the institution's board of directors declared: "We knew that the hospital had its problems; that many things were wrong. That is why we welcomed the experts to diagnose the trouble. Now that we know what is wrong, what must be corrected, we shall proceed as quickly as possible to remedy the situation."

In weighing the controversy, the committee found the city council "guilty of inflexibility of thinking, and failure to support the hospital in true relation to the role it plays in the community." At the same time, it reported "numerous serious defects" in the operation and accounting at the hospital.

In referring to the responsibility of the city to the hospital, the report cited that Alexandria paid only $26,000 for hospitalization of indigent during 1946, while expending at the same time nearly $91,000 for the health department. On the basis of these figures, it charged that the city's support of the hospital "has not been in proportion to its support of other health programs."

Proposes Liberalization

Not only should the city meet its obligations in the care of indigents, the report said, but the local department of welfare should liberalize its policy as to eligibility of indigent patients for emergency room care.

Criticism of the hospital was directed at the administration and the accounting department, which was termed "very poorly organized." The surveyors said they found evidence of "sloppy handling of cash and frequent shortages," and charged that no control is maintained over accounts receivable and "no proof is taken to assure the accuracy of the posting of charges or payments to patient accounts."

It also found fault with the method of rating patients as to charity or non-charity cases, and with the practices and facilities of the admitting office, dietary department, housekeeping department, laundry and medical records.

The full 64-page report, already in the hands of the hospital directors and members of the City Council, will be publicly released tomorrow. Members of the two groups are expected to meet jointly within the next few days for action on the report.

Mikolajczyk Banished By Poland Forever

Warsaw, Nov. 15 (AP).—The Polish parliament today banished self-exiled Stanislaw Mikolajczyk from Poland forever, and declared him "guilty of treason against the Polish state and nation." (Mikolajczyk reached London on November 3.)

The banishment came after a special parliamentary commission which investigated the flight of Mikolejczyk and some of his peasant party friends declared their escape was "organized and carried out by a high official of one of the embassies in Warsaw."

44 Crewmen Saved Off Wrecked Freighter

Boston, Nov. 15 (U.P.).—One crew member was drowned but the other 44 reportedly reached shore in lifeboats today when the 4900-ton British freighter Langleecrag broke in two after piling up on a reef on the northern tip of Newfoundland.

Coast Guard advices received here said the survivors landed at Cooks Harbor, a tiny fishing village on Belle Isle Straits, about 3 miles from the shipwreck scene, soon after 11 a. m.

The Coast Guard cutters Evergreen and Duane were continuing toward the scene.

TWO STORES OF NATIONALLY FAMOUS MERCHANDISE

Postwar Germans absorb black market atmosphere along with their pablum, and the toddler in the foreground was trapped along with his mother, the bareheaded woman, in this Berlin roundup. There isn't a cigarette in sight, but those are commodious reticules

The black market pays better than manual labor, and if you have windfall capital like 20 per cent of the Germans, you can clean up. So you still see well-dressed Berliners like these, and fashionable spots like this—the Club Royal—amid the ruins of a metropolis

The Germans Are Burning Up Our Dollars

By Fred M. Hechinger

FRANKFURT, Nov. 15.—Day after day the German economy is going up in smoke. Money, credits and German labor are being burned up in the Reich's cigarette economy.

This postwar development in economics not only means an almost complete waste of American taxpayers' dollars sent to Germany; it also makes German reconstruction virtually impossible.

Here is the way it works:

The German mark is worth 10 cents in official exchange. Except to the finance office, however, this figure means little or nothing. The average manual laborer here gets between 150 and 200 marks a month. When he buys his rations on the legal allotment he gets the entire month's food for about 20 marks—if he can get it.

Since the entire ration is rarely available, and since that ration itself is hardly sufficient, the average German supplements his diet from the black market. Thus, while "official" bread costs about 35 pfennige for a two-pound loaf, the same commodity is 50 marks in the black market. A pound of butter is about one mark legally, but ranges up to 180 marks under the counter. One hundred eighty marks is about a month's salary.

Obviously, the people who pay these prices can't do so out of their wages. They must either be rich or in the black market. So the worker must go into the black market, at least parttime.

If he can get one cigarette, or the equivalent amount of tobacco in butts, he has five marks. One and a quarter cigarettes are about equal to the wage for one hard day's work. A package of cigarettes comes to 100 marks—more than two weeks' wages. A carton represents the astronomical figure of 1000 marks.

A Compound Evil

CIGARETTES are by nature unsound currency. Using them for money is like taking dollar bills and putting a match to them. But in addition the cigarette economy persuades German workers to go into the black market on a fulltime basis. It's so much easier to pick up a few cigarettes than spend the day rebuilding the city—and far more profitable.

If all the healthy young men who stand around the Frankfurt railroad station, dealing in the black market, were put to work, the rubble which was once a city might come to life again. Under the cigarette economy that is an impossible dream—short of forced labor.

It goes without saying that the cigarette currency is being supplied by the American occupation army. The American's weekly ration is 12 packs of cigarettes, four cartons of tobacco and four cigars. At least half of that is direct tribute to the black market.

No American in the zone can avoid entering into these "operations." The waiter in the American mess serves you well. It is civilized custom to tip. American dollar script is off-limits to all Germans. So—if you want to reward good service you leave one or two cigarettes.

The German tailor in my American hotel presses my suit. He returns it, saying: "That'll be three marks, sir." Knowing, of course, that I have no marks and that he cannot accept American money, he merely waits to be asked whether he would take cigarettes. Properly "paid," he leaves, beaming.

Inflation Would Solve It

THOSE are the small, essential operations which flood the black market with hundreds of thousands of cigarettes every day. Big-shot operators deal in cartons. Jewelry, furniture, and art changes hands over unsmoked smokes.

The logical answer to the cigarette black market, of course, would be to flood Germany with legal shipments of the popular brands. It would probably boost the value of coffee, now the No. 2 item at 300 marks a pound, but coffee cannot be handled as effectively in everyday transactions.

The second obstacle to German reconstruction was created by the Allies' inexplicable failure to institute drastic currency reform.

Before VE-Day, those who were familiar with Nazi plans advocated the voiding of all German money immediately after the surrender. It was a known fact that Nazi post-defeat planning included the splitting up of the vast party treasuries among the second echelon of the Hitler followers. These intermediate Nazis largely escaped the war crimes mill. They could therefore use their money. The immediate result is obvious.

Once in the black market, they got progressively richer. Even if they have no more sinister aims than to stand by passively and live well, they are an important intangible block to reconstruction.

To understand their menace, one must consider the following rough, estimated lineup: About 20 per cent of the population is former Nazis of that moneyed group; about 10 to 15 per cent is more or less active anti-Nazis; the inert mass of up to 70 per cent in between the two extremes is ready to follow any direction which promises personal advantage. The fat-cat Nazis would seem to fill that bill.

The Good Go Hungry

A GREAT deal has been said about hunger in Germany. There is hunger, and there may soon be starvation. But the ones hit by it are the impoverished anti-Nazis, the teachers, professors, students, actors, journalists, and generally those who have neither the time nor the inclination to enter the black market.

These conditions can't be remedied simply by additional American dollars without preceding reforms. (It should be stressed, however, that this report is concerned only with Germany and has no bearing on desperately needed American aid elsewhere in western Europe.)

FRED M. HECHINGER, who as "The Headmaster" writes a weekly education article for The Washington Post, is also a regular contributor to This Week magazine, the New York Herald Tribune and the Bridgeport (Conn.) Herald. He traveled widely in Europe before the war, and during the war was in the United States Foreign Service, attached to British Military Intelligence. As editor of the counter-intelligence section of the British War Office, he edited and helped write a 500-page publication on German administration and police. Later he was adviser to the United Nations War Crimes Commission in London. For the past four months he has been making an educational survey of postwar Europe. He is a Phi Beta Kappa graduate of the College of the City of New York, and has studied at New York University and London University

Actual facts have a tendency to get lost in the statistics of official planners. One of the most important of these facts is that the Germans have made no effort to evolve a community spirit. It's every one against the next fellow.

One day I stopped my German chauffeur just as he was about to drive the jeep over a dozen potatoes which an old woman had dropped and was painfully trying to pick up. "That may be a week's food for the poor woman," I said to him in a flash of anger. He shrugged his shoulders. "I had the right of way," he said.

In Nuernberg, which is about 75 per cent destroyed, I noticed scores of skilled workers repairing the useless, medieval town wall while reconstruction elsewhere was negligible. After many inquiries I was given the following explanation: The city treasury still has a considerable amount of marks. Anticipating a currency reform, Nuernberg wants to spend that money. But the city fathers will spend it only on city property. The wall belongs to Nuernberg.

The Sunday Barterers

WHAT must also be taken into consideration in any discussion of aid to Germany is the behavior of the German farmer. I toured the Bavarian countryside and found the population healthy and prosperous in appearance. There are no food shortages.

Every Sunday a pilgrimage sets out from the cities. On foot, by train and by bicycle they carry baskets and knapsacks. They offer the farmer anything from cigarettes to bathroom fixtures and heirloom jewelry. In return they get food.

While this does not bear the stamp of the black market, its effect is as damaging; for the produce thus bartered to city folk at outrageous terms should be turned in to the military government or the designated German authorities for equal distribution among all Germans. Once again German refusal to cooperate increases the chaos and hardship which is being blamed on the occupying powers.

One poor German student told of trying to get some butter at a German farm. All he had to offer was his meager ration of inferior German cigarettes. The farmer laughed, showed his hungry countryman a carton of American cigarettes and said: "Why should I take your bad German ones?"

It is easy to go soft-hearted over reports of suffering Germany. On my first day in Frankfurt I left the post exchange with a large package of rations. A ragged little girl of about 6 begged: "Candy, please." I gave her a chocolate bar.

A fellow correspondent scolded: "You fool! Do you think the kid's going to eat that? Just stand here and look." I watched the child run to the end of the block where she handed the candy to a husky young man with a briefcase. Then she returned to the PX.

In any discussion of the Marshall Plan, Germans in all walks of life place the reconstruction of Germany at the head of any list of European needs. They believe, and have been confirmed in their belief by frequent American utterances that (1) they are the key to world recovery and that (2) the Americans owe them a living. They are too firmly convinced that we will not let them starve to buckle down to a real job of self-help.

Anticipate Armageddon

ALL this is not the entire story. There are the currents of hopelessness and nihilism which deepen the economic gloom. Since the majority of Germans expects and hopes for a clash between the East and West, they are in no hurry to rebuild their ruins now. "Besides," said a serious-minded university student, "we do not want to rebuild only a part of Germany. We are not really interested in reconstruction as long as we do not have the Ostzone (Eastern Zone.)"

If such statements sound arrogant as well as unrealistic, it must be remembered that a considerable segment of the population hopes to regain national respectability by becoming our ally.

I got the most graphic picture of German economy and morals while sitting in a bus at Wiesbaden, waiting to ride to Frankfurt. An American civilian in front of me threw a cigarette butt out of the window. A bent old man limped toward the smoking stub as fast as he could. Then a healthy-looking boy of about 11 dashed across the street, pushed him aside, grabbed the butt and ran off.

Why all the fuss about a cigarette? That wasn't a butt! It was hard cash, the pillar of German economy.

He's Booming the Sale of Orange Juice

Vishinsky's Worn Out His Punchline

By Robert E. Bruskin
Post Reporter

LAKE SUCCESS, N. Y., Nov. 15.—"Vishinsky is blowing his top again."

Only a few weeks ago that was the signal for delegates to choke down their orange juice and scramble from the paneled United Nations bar to the Political Committee room next door. The forensics of Russia's Deputy Foreign Minister was a "must" for the diplomats.

But that was weeks ago, when this Assembly was young and impressionable. Only delegates from the Soviet satellites still scramble. Others order one more.

Delegates assigned to the committee sigh, relax and ease headphones away from bald spots when Vishinsky demands the floor. One of the best shows at this session is on the air—for a repeat performance.

Vishinsky's speeches start slowly. The pace accelerates until the official shorthand reporters are jabbing away at the rate of 240 hot words a minute.

The tanned face of the 65-year-old former prosecutor gradually turns redder. The subject under discussion by the committee is only a punching bag for his brilliant left hook. His gestures fly. His carefully combed white hair begins to straggle.

The voice of George Sherry, U. N. English-Russian interpreter, comes shrill and fast through the earphones. Vishinsky is striking another blow for Russian "democracy."

But the suspense is gone. Vishinsky has telegraphed his punchlines through repetitions as endless as a phonograph needle stuck in its track.

A Word for Everyone

WHAT'S wrong with the United States? We are, says Vishinsky, warmongers, imperialists, reactionaries, monopolists, atom-minded kings of Wall Street, trying to enslave the world through economic infiltration and military power. We're expansionists. We're trying to dominate the world with the Truman Doctrine.

Non-Communist Italians are monarcho-fascists. The Dutch are imperialists. Germans are cartelists. The British are monopolists and Portuguese are clerical fascists. Spaniards and Greeks are just plain fascists, and the Turks are dollar worshipers. Iranians are feudalists. Koreans in the American zone who oppose Russian aims are reactionaries. The Japanese are militarists and the Chinese Kuomintang is spawning a dictatorial regime.

The Marshall Plan, pet target for his vitriol squirt gun, is aimed at creating a Western bloc to isolate eastern Europe. It is trying to liquidate national sovereignty of the Western nations and eliminate commercial rivals of American monopolists.

Variations on these themes come seldom in Vishinsky's numerous "major" speeches, which one delegate described as "bad composition, excellently played."

Poor Andrei's Almanac

EVEN outside the committee rooms the themes are the same, although spread with a lighter touch. The line is followed closely in this story credited to Vishinsky:

The Prime Minister of San Marino wanted to be included in the Marshall Plan. The United States asked if he had any Communists in San Marino. "No," said the Prime Minister. "Then we can't let you have any money," replied Uncle Sam, "but perhaps you can borrow a few and then become eligible."

The Prime Minister turned to France to borrow a few Communists. "Sorry," he was told, "we need every one we can lay our hands on."

Vishinsky spices all of his speeches with humor. It comes mostly from Russian proverbs, and many delegates suspect he has some monumental source book, a sort of Russian Bartlett.

He appeared delighted with the chuckles he evoked in a dissertation on Russia's peaceful motives, with this proverb directed at the United States:

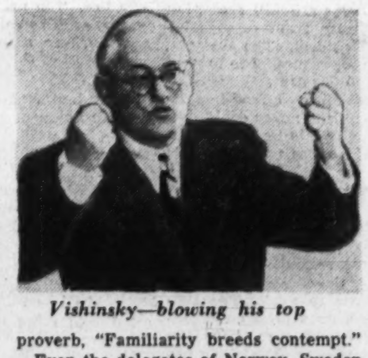
"Though it is he who flogs, he cries out in pain."

First Roar Worked

HOWEVER, if Vishinsky is trying for effect on his United Nations colleagues, he appears to have overdone it.

His first speech caused many European and Latin-American countries to contain their hot replies—and even caused many to abstain from voting on proposals against which Vishinsky fought. The air was tense with fear of an irreparable break between the two major powers.

Now many of the smaller nations are no longer impressed with the tough talk. One explained with an old American proverb, "Familiarity breeds contempt."



Vishinsky—blowing his top

Even the delegates of Norway, Sweden and Denmark, who usually abstain from voting on any proposal rejected by Russia, took a large part in demanding creation of a "Little Assembly," to which all nations could turn if they were threatened, instead of going to the Security Council, where Russia's veto has made big-power unity a one-way street.

There is no doubt that Vishinsky is merely the loudspeaker for Moscow, and at first there was belief that his utterances were primarily for home consumption. Now the experts are certain they are more for the benefit of the small nations represented here.

A Master of Illusion

THE PATTERN of the Russian propaganda campaign that started last March, when President Truman announced his doctrine for containing Soviet expansion, is being followed diligently by Vishinsky. It appears to have two purposes:

1. To create within Russia a fear of a threat to her safety by the United States, and thereby justify the demands being made on the Soviet people for more hardships during postwar reconstruction.

2. To weaken the position of the United States in world affairs.

The second, experts believe, is the primary mission given to Vishinsky. It seeks to arouse distrust of American intentions. The accompanying propaganda in the controlled press and broadcasts throw in for good measure the bogey of an inevitable American depression. It thereby hopes to lessen confidence in our promises.

Vishinsky rarely burdens his speeches with logic. His methods are polemical, repetitive and quantitative. To those who profess to be students of the Slav character, he represents the Russian genius for creating illusion. But no one doubts his sincerity, although his colleague, Dmitri Manuilsky of the Ukraine, often gives the impression he doesn't believe a word of his own tirades.

Tailor-Made Information

VISHINSKY has merely adapted the Soviet system of destroying last year's periodicals to avoid any possibility that bewildered Russians might chance upon pictures of Stalin embracing Trotsky or Ribbentrop.

A fact is fact only when spoken by Vishinsky. That fits in with the Soviet insistence that the radio was invented by Popov, that the electric lamp came from the brains of Yablochkov and that Lomonosov's discoveries in chemistry were falsely attributed to Lavoisier. No Russian has yet laid claim to the atomic bomb.

Article 125 of the Soviet constitution "guarantees" freedom of speech, freedom of press and freedom of assembly. But two important restrictions accompany the guarantees. First, there is no freedom of the press if it conflicts with the interests of the working people—and the Communist Party is the sole judge of those conflicts. Second, press freedom carries a responsibility to "strengthen the Socialist system" and propagate the party line.

All public information functions are under the party's central committee. The agency is called the Administration of Propaganda and Agitation, and is divided into sections for the press, propaganda, agitation and cultural enlightenment. All editors throughout the country are approved by the Moscow administration.

All persons engaged in spreading propaganda are given rigorous tests to prove their loyalty to the party. Thus they are not inclined to argue with an editor about the truthfulness of any story. Editors constantly receive directives on what stories to play up and which ones to suppress.

The end product of their press work must have the seal of Glavlit, the censoring agency, before it can be published.

Formula Was Lenin's

AGAINST such a formidable background of thought control, the United States delegations were not inclined to debate with Vishinsky when he brought forth his "warmongering" proposal, which sought to make it a criminal offense to publish any statement which might be interpreted by the Russians as an incitement to war.

The American delegation adopted a phrase made famous by the late Gen. George S. Patton—"Don't get into a spittin' match with a skunk."

If they had wanted to answer they might have lifted a quotation from Lenin himself, written before the October revolution 30 years ago to the party central committee.

"It is so hard," he wrote, "to understand that the decision that an armed uprising is necessary imposes the duty on one in all public utterances to lay not only the blame but also the initiative at the door of the adversary. Only a child could fail to understand this."

Canada Even Considering a Customs Union

A $900,000,000 'Bridge' Needed

By G. V. Ferguson
Editor, the Montreal Star

MONTREAL, Nov. 15.—To say that Canada is concerned about its own aspect of the worldwide dollar crisis is to put it mildly. It has not yet begun to concern the man in the street, but not for many years has official concern been so great; not for many years has a corrective program been so anxiously studied. It is rapidly becoming clear to Canada that it is at a crossroads.

On November 10 The Washington Post set forth the basic problem with great clarity. Canada, junior partner in the North Atlantic American-British-Canadian triangle, has always had a dollar problem. It has never been easy for her to balance her external payments, which were thrown off center by an excess of imports from the United States and an excess of exports to Britain. When things got too far out of line, our dollar traditionally went to a discount in New York and righted itself through such means as capital imports or increased gold production.

Wartime Respite

THE present situation was clearly foreshadowed in 1941 when our rising war production sent our imports from the United States away up while our own customers were unable to pay us. It was staved off by the wartime Hyde Park agreement of 1941 whereby the United States bought war goods in Canada and shipped them to Britain under lend-lease.

But Hyde Park ended with lend-lease, and Canada, simultaneously with the United States, embarked upon a policy of reconstruction loans and credits to Britain. Delay in European recovery, which meant dissipation of the American loan, resulted also in rapid exhaustion of Canada's credit, much larger proportionately than that approved by Congress.

At the same time our imports from the United States rose by leaps and bounds, partly because of continuing prosperity, partly because Canadian business, foreseeing a dollar shortage, embarked while the going was good upon a program of capital goods imports. The result has been a severe drain upon our American cash reserves. The "dollar gap" is now running at the rate of about 900 million dollars a year. Obviously this cannot continue long.

Canadian officials are now putting together a program designed to right the balance. Business thinks at once of a devaluation of the dollar. For the time being at least, this is frowned on in Ottawa. It is said the effect on prices would be inflationary without quickly checking imports. A loan is being considered, too, but Canada does not see the sense of borrowing to meet current expenditures. It seems likely a loan will be essential but, it is said, it must be accompanied by a long-range program to bring about a shift in our external accounts which will lift the strain off our dollar resources.

ERP Could Help

IT IS the nature of this long-range program and its implications that are now occupying Canadian attention. Ottawa was greatly cheered by General Marshall's announcement that a European recovery program would involve American purchases in other parts of the dollar bloc.

Canada has wheat, meat, bacon, butter, lumber and base metals for export to Europe. Most of these are going there now, and most of them are being paid for in soft money. To the extent that American purchases are made in Canada, the Hyde Park agreement is recreated. It improves our dollar position. At the same time, it decreases our sales to sterling areas, a two-fold benefit.

But it is not believed that any such purchases can bridge the 900-million-dollar gap. It will be necessary therefore, temporarily at least, to restrict imports. There are limits to such a program in Canada. Much of our industry is dependent for its raw materials upon the United States. Too sharp restriction would quickly create such unemployment that the program would break down.

Ottawa's thinking, therefore, turns toward a program of expanding exports. We should, this school believes, decrease our dependence on sterling markets and divert exports to dollar areas. In essence this means the American market. We should therefore expand existing reciprocity agreements. We should attempt to work out an increased integration of American and Canadian Industry. Canadian costs compare favorably in many cases with American costs. Companies operating on both sides of the border

How 'Rich' Nation Goes Broke

ABC of Dollar Crisis, From Apples and Eggs To Pound Conversion

(Representative Walter, dean of the Pennsylvania Democratic House delegation, visited Europe as a member of the Select Congressional Committee on Foreign Aid. Most of his study was devoted to England. This article was written exclusively for the Associated Press.)

By Francis E. Walter

ONE QUESTION has been asked me more frequently than any other since I returned from Europe: How is it possible for a country to be rich in its own currency and still be broke?

To a banker or a student of economics the answer is simple. But to many persons it is not. Yet it must be understood if the American people are to consider intelligently the proposals for foreign aid.

FRANCIS E. WALTER
. . . simplifies economics

To make it clear, it's necessary to review what we were taught in school.

Originally people acquired what they needed by bartering. A man who had apples and who needed eggs would trade apples for eggs. Money came into use to make barter easier. Apples came to be represented by so many pennies, let's say, and eggs came to be represented by so many pennies. Thus the man with the apples could get eggs even if the man with the eggs didn't at the moment need apples.

But this works only when both men are using the same kind of pennies or have reached agreement on the worth of their respective pennies. It works only when both men have pennies.

Convenience of Credit

THE same is true of foreign trade. Let's use England, the United States and Belgium as an example. To make it as clear as possible, let's put it this way:

England has wealth—manufactured goods, coal and other things. That wealth is represented by English pennies. The United States has wealth, represented by United States pennies. Belgium has wealth, represented by Belgian pennies.

The three engage in trade. But because it would be a nuisance to ship each other's pennies back and forth each time there was a transaction, each country sets up credit for the others.

Then when Belgium buys something from England, Belgium pays by crediting England with the required number of Belgium pennies. Later, England can use that credit when she buys something from Belgium.

Everything goes along fine until England, let's say, needs an unusual amount of goods. Because of world conditions, these can be provided only by the United States.

But Belgium also needs unusual amounts of United States goods. What's the result?

When England makes a purchase from Belgium, Belgium asks payment in United States pennies. This goes on until England is out of United States pennies. Therefore, so far as purchases are concerned, England is broke even though she has great quantities of English pennies.

England can convert some of her pennies into United States pennies, but only to a degree. If she does too much of it, English pennies fall in value and eventually become worthless.

How Loan Vanished

ALL right, drop the simplified terminology and think of the situation in terms of pounds and francs and dollars, and you have the problem as it exists today. Except, of course, that it involves more than just three nations and, therefore, more than just three kinds of currency.

Now let's see what happened to the $3,750,000,000 British loan.

Between July 15 and December 31, 1946, England spent in the United States 850 million dollars. There was in Europe a conversion from pounds to dollars of 50 million dollars. That totals 900 million dollars. England had credit in the United States amounting to 150 million dollars. The net, therefore, was 750 million dollars.

During the first six months of 1947 England spent $1,300,000,000 in the United States. Sterling area countries spent 270 million dollars. There was a pound-to-dollar conversion of 60 million dollars. That totals $1,630,000,000.

(Sterling area countries include certain countries in the British Commonwealth and Empire, plus some others, such as Egypt, which have fixed their currencies in terms of pounds sterling and whose currencies are freely convertible into pounds sterling. These countries participate in the dollar pool which England established to help finance wartime purchases. Each time a sterling area country makes a purchase in the United States, therefore, it draws on England's dollar pool.)

From July 1 to August 20, 1947, England spent 420 million dollars in the United States. Sterling area countries spent 250 million dollars. There was a pound-to-dollar conversion of 300 million dollars. That totals 970 million dollars.

England has frozen 400 million dollars for emergency use.

Add 750 million and $1,630,000,000 and 970 million dollars and 400 million dollars and you have the $3,750,000,000 loan.

Like a Bank Run

THE British government had considered it improbable that there would be a reduction in the amount of pounds sterling that always have circulated throughout the sterling-using parts of the world. But the Postwar Economic Policy and Planning Committee, of which I was a member, considered such a reduction a possibility as early as December, 1946.

The speed with which recovery started and the strength of the pound during the first six months of 1947 indicated there might not be a run on the pound. But once the run began it followed the course of a run on a bank.

The right of a nation to convert pounds into dollars was written by the United States into the loan agreement. At the time this was considered necessary to protect our foreign trade. Recently, with the permission of the United States, England put a stop to the conversion of pounds into dollars. This was done to protect the few dollars that England has left.

But this action is by no means a solution to the problem. In fact, it raises another one:

There is a world shortage of dollars. That's because everybody wants to buy what the United States has to sell.

Some countries were unable to acquire dollars outright because they had nothing to sell that the Uuited States needed. So they traded with England to acquire pounds. Then they converted the pounds into dollars.

But these countries no longer can convert pounds into dollars. The question arises, therefore, whether these countries will reduce or cut off their trade with England.

This could come about because England hasn't enough of the things to sell that those countries need. At the same time those countries are without dollars, and so they can't trade with the United States, either.

It Was Hard at Work

Italy WAS Showing An Amazing Pickup

(The following laudatory and optimistic story about Italy's recovery was written by Mr. Fodor just before last week's Communist eruption which began in the north and swept the country. Note that the veteran Balkan correspondent contrasts Italy's revived will to work with the postwar attitude of the French. The simultaneous outbreak in Marseilles was also blamed on the Communists.)

By M. W. Fodor
Post Reporter

ROME (By Airmail).—Returning to Italy after six months' absence, one is bound to be impressed by the country's progress. Her problems are still great, but they originate from reasons beyond her control. The drought, for instance, reduced her harvest by 35 or 40 per cent.

Italy was always a food-importing country; she never could produce enough grain to keep a population which has now grown as large as that of Britain. Italy requires wheat and flour urgently. Another problem is the future destination of her exports, but the Marshall Plan can help there.

The most remarkable observation is that the entire country has settled down to work. The Italians have always been an industrious nation, but so were the French in prewar days. Italy has recovered her will to work as other nations have not.

The progress of her industries in the north is remarkable. Despite difficulties in importing raw materials and coal, the factories in the north are producing at 70 to 80 per cent of capacity. Alpha-Romeo is turning out excellent luxury cars; Fiat and other factories manufacture less expensive ones. The Ansaldo shipyards near Genoa are busy building ships for foreign countries, many of them Latin American.

Yet the majority of the workers are either Communists or members of Nanni's closely allied Socialist Party.

Menus Are Leaner

THE picture in the cities of Italy has not changed greatly in the last six months. There are probably fewer automobiles, partly because the British and Americans have withdrawn and partly because it is now much harder to obtain black market gasoline. The menus in the better class restaurants are more austere, but the fewer dishes are still excellent.

The shops are full of goods, but an ordinary shirt still costs $8 to $11, and an undershirt, $6.50. The remarkable thing, however, is the recent decline in prices of food and of some home-made goods.

In many cities, the prices of meat, olive oil and other staple foodstuffs dropped 20 per cent. At the same time the black market price of the dollar declined from 800 lire in May to 560 or 600 lire. The prices of imported goods, such as coffee and certain textiles, have naturally increased as a result of this recovery of the lire.

This improvement in the exchange value of the Italian currency, as well as the drop in prices, is credited to the old-fashioned liberal (in the English Manchester sense), Prof. Luigi Einaudi, who joined the De Gasperi government as Budget Minister.

Smoked Out Goods

EINAUDI openly disputed, through the columns of the Corriere della Sera, a leading Milan daily, with the proponents of further inflation.

Many experts, especially of the left but also of Fascist and pseudo-Fascist groups, argued that Italy could bear further inflation. They maintained that, while prices had risen 50 times, wages and money circulation had risen to only 30 times the prewar level. Why, then, not increase the circulation from 640 billion lire to 1000 billion?

Einaudi's answer was that this would be an imitation of the Mussolini method of keeping industry going by printing more money. Instead, he decided that prices must come down. And they did come down. How did he do this?

Most manufacturers and merchants calculated on a further rise in prices. They began to withhold their goods, and lived on money borrowed against their inventories. Einaudi then restricted bank credit.

The merchants then had to sell their goods. And they had to sell at reduced prices, in the face of a customers' boycott against high prices.

The extreme left tries to play down these achievements and calls them only temporary, insufficient and artificial. Time will tell. Einaudi is an old expert. Even if the industrialists and businessmen do not like his restrictions, they fully trust his knowledge, good will and patriotism.

Peasants vs. Cominform

2 New Internationales in Century-Old 'War'

By Cynthia Lowry

TWO new-born descendants of the bearded philosopher Karl Marx are arming for a giant propaganda battle.

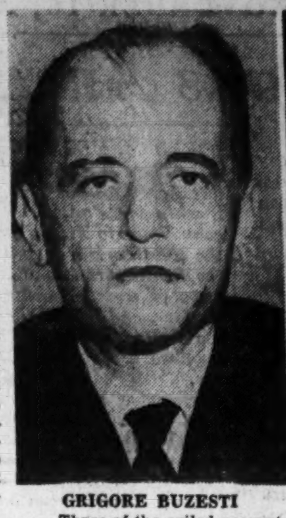
Both the Communist Information Bureau and the Peasants' Internationale have a broad common ground. Each gives at least lip service to the cause of redistributing wealth, ending class distinctions and abolishing the capitalist system.

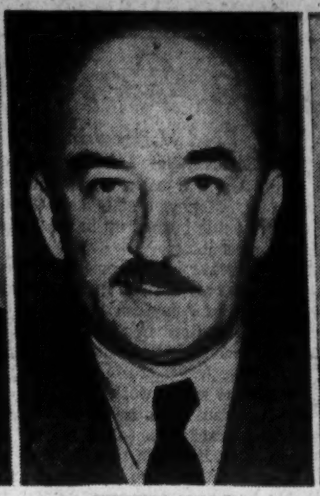
Their point of conflict is a century-old dispute over how to achieve this end: Revolution versus evolution.

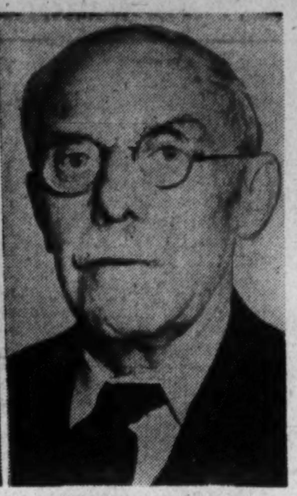
The revolutionists came back out into the open early in October. Moscow proclaimed the formation of a nine-nation Communist Information Bureau (immediately dubbed the "Cominform") with headquarters in Belgrade. Its avowed purpose is to fight the Marshall Plan and what it considers "United States imperialism."

Despite heated Moscow denials the British Foreign Office labeled the bureau merely a "resuscitation" of the prewar Communist Internationale, or Comintern. There had long been widespread speculation on the honesty of the "dissolution" of the Comintern in 1943. Marshal Stalin said then that it had been killed in the interests of better inter-Allied relations.

Since its establishment in 1919 the avowed purpose of the Comintern was to spark the world revolution which was—and presumably still is—the keystone of the Communist credo.







GRIGORE BUZESTI — FERENC NAGY — VLADKO MACHEK
. . . Three of the exiled peasant leaders who are currently participating in the Peasants' Internationale

Reinforcements Coming

EARLY in July four former leaders of three nations now within the Soviet sphere announced from Washington the formation of a "Peasants' Internationale" to fight communism, help free their countries and aid all nations against overt or underground Communist influences.

The leaders were Ferenc Nagy, former Hungarian Premier; Dr. Milan Gavrilovich, Serbian peasant leader; Dr. George Dimitrov, exiled head of the Bulgarian Peasant Party, and Dr. Vladko Machek of the Yugoslav peasants.

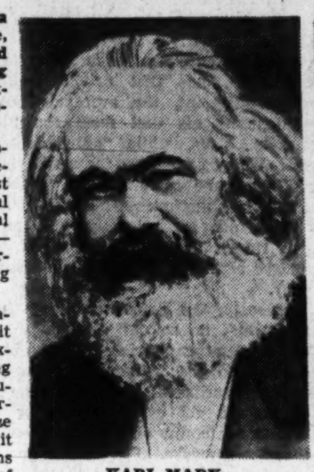
Grigore Buzesti, former Romanian Foreign Minister, is an added supporter, and presumably there will be further enlistments, such as Stanislaw Mikolajczyk, the Polish Peasant Party leader, who recently escaped to England.

London, it is assumed, will be the jumping-off place of the new organization, which will work in the sympathetic sanctuary of the British Labor Party, as much an arch enemy of communism as are the major parties of the United States.

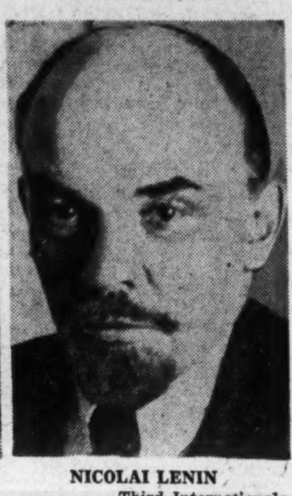
The basis for the running battle between socialism and communism came into being almost exactly 100 years ago. In the fall of 1847, 29-year-old Marx and another German student, Friedrich Engels, were drawing up their famed "Communist Manifesto." It inveighed against a system which it said permitted a powerful capitalist class to take, in the form of rent, interest and profits, the surplus remaining from the production of the workers after payment of "subsistence" wages.

Marx had the idea of establishing a sort of international debating society where Socialist groups could discuss mutual problems. His "International Working Men's Association"—now known as the First Internationale—had its first meeting in London in 1864.

It was not a strong organization, but governments feared it because trade unionism was expanding and there were strong Socialist movements all over Europe. The Internationale intervened in 1867 when Paris bronze workers were locked out and it gave a hand to English unions trying to halt importation of cheap labor from the Continent.



KARL MARX
. . . First Internationale



NICOLAI LENIN
. . . Third Internationale

Died With Commune

AFTER five years, internecine warfare broke out. The first point of friction resulted from the inclusion of Mikhail Bakunin in the Internationale. The Russian anarchist immediately announced himself the "apostle of universal destruction."

Bakunin and his followers were read out of the organization a few years later and formed their own internationale. Within a short time this splinter group was responsible for bloody civil strife in southern Spain.

The event which really killed the Marx internationale was the rising of secretly organized French Socialists in the ill-fated Paris Commune of 1871. The "working men's republic" collapsed and more than 20,000 were killed.

Marx issued a manifesto praising the Communards—and for years the internationale was suspected of organizing the insurrection. Moderates shied away from the organization, the internationale moved its headquarters to New York, and quietly expired in 1875.

The Second Internationale came into being in 1889. In the 15-year interim Socialism all over Europe had made long strides. But the Second Internationale was almost as innocent as the first, a meeting place for the discussion of Socialist tactics. With the approach of World War I it split on the rocks of nationalism, with most of the membership supporting their own governments.

Blood Brothers Split

THE RUSSIAN revolution put the Bolshevists in power and they established their own Third Internationale, the Comintern, to foster world revolution.

Meanwhile, still another internationale—this one with Vienna headquarters—was formed, and a number of Socialist groups refused to affiliate with any internationale organization. In the early 20's the Vienna and Second Internationales had merged, but by this time European socialism was split into two distinct camps. Compromise between socialism and communism was impossible.

A threat to the Comintern appeared brifly when Trotsky, in Mexican exile, talked of a Fourth Internationale, but it never materialized.

Historically, the Comintern seems to have followed faithfully the course charted by Lenin. It has changed its line and propaganda approach, but Lenin anticipated that changing situations would require temporary concessions to capitalist or socialist countries.

Comintern headquarters, Lenin announced soon after its genesis, would be "for the moment" in Moscow, but later would move to countries in which the economic system and proletariat were advanced along Communist lines. The new Comintern headquarters are in Marshal Tito's Yugoslavia.

Basis for Fusion

LAST year representatives of the Socialist movements of the world's democratic nations met in London with the British Labor Party as host. They organized as the International Socialist Conference and formally assumed the assets and liabilities of the dormant Second Internationale. Headquarters is in Antwerp.

Meanwhile, the new Peasants' Internationale would seem to be, even more than the Socialist Conference, the ideological heir of the Second Internationale. The cause of the exiled Socialist leaders is the more dramatic. The Socialists of the United States and western Europe are infinitely more comfortably situated as recognized minorities whose power is gained principally by coalitions with middle-of-the-road and even right-wing groups.

Inevitably, it seems, the two groups will pool their strength in a drive against communism.

But whatever the alignment of forces, the battle will be between the proponents of democratic processes and those of civil strife.

When a Billion Is a Trillion, It's Some Sum

BASEL, Switzerland (AP).—The Bank for International Settlements has a chart in dealing with such figures as 16 billion dollars, the figure suggested as Marshall Plan aid to Europe.

According to the nomenclature chart, in the British Empire $16,000,000,000 is 16 milliards; in the United States it is 16 billions, and in France, Germany and Italy it is 16 milliards.

When the figure goes up to 1,000,000,000,000, in the British Empire it is one billion; in the United States, one trillion; in France, one trillion; in Germany, one billion, and in Italy, a trilione.

Then, 1,000,000,000,000,000 in the British Empire is 1000 billions; in the United States, France and Italy, a quadrillion, and in Germany, a billiarde.

Now, jumping to 1,000,000,000,000,000,000,000, the figure is 1000 trillions in the British Empire, a sextillion in the United States, a sextillion in France, a trilliarde in Germany, and a sestilione in Italy.

Counters U. S. Free Trade Policy

Uruguay's President Favors Latin Tariffs To Aid New Industry

By Ray Josephs

MONTEVIDEO, Nov. 15.—In what can only be regarded as a major change of policy likely to have far-reaching effects in Latin America, Uruguay's President, Luis Batlle Berres, said in an exclusive interview that he favored a series of inter-American commercial accords establishing tariff walls to protect this continent's fledgling industries.

The United States, in recent international trade conferences at Geneva and in plans for the forthcoming trade meeting at Havana, has advocated exactly the opposite. High Washington sources had believed this highly democratic country—long on our side in most international discussions—would favor the same free trade principle.

Batlle Berres listed the problem as one of the three major postwar issues facing his country and indicated—although he did not say so specifically—that he would seek independent accords regardless of developments at the Havana meeting or next January's Pan American Conference at Bogota.

Lack of machines, principally from the United States, was Uruguay's No. 1 problem, he said, while problem No. 2 is "the need to increase our agricultural production, which also depends in large measure on more machines—tractors, farm implements, equipment."

He added that while Uruguay could always use credits it was not currently short of dollars as are most Latin countries, and that he "couldn't understand why" his country had not been able to obtain its small United States requirements.

"We haven't been able to get any answer," he declared.

President Batlle Berres said Uruguay had no Communist problem and that he knew nothing of a reported anti-Communist accord with Brazil and Chile, both of whom have severed relations with Russia and have taken strong steps against internal Communist activities.

The President said that relations with Argentina were good and had always been good, as were relations with the United States. Political observers, however, have reported a betterment of relations with Buenos Aires, 130 miles away across the wide Rio de la Plata, while feeling that Washington's position is deteriorating.

Batlle Berres, who is 48, took over in August when President Tomas Baretta died. He is called "Luisito" (Little Luis) by most Uruguayans and, more recently, "Trumancito" by some of the extremely outspoken Montevideo press. A serious, hard-working, simple man, he has remained in his suburban two-family house instead of moving to the Executive Mansion.

The need for protection of local industries has been stressed to me by many Latin officials to whom I have talked, particularly Argentines, Brazilians and Colombians. But no Latin country has taken a vigorous stand against United States trade policy, in part because of Uncle Sam's powerful economic status here as Latin America's chief supplier and best customer.

Moscow Bidding Is Frantic for U. S. Limousine

MOSCOW (AP).—Letting the town know you've got a new automobile for sale, remarked a tired diplomat, is like walking through a dog pound with 10 pounds of beefsteak.

Last summer the then Dutch Minister Herbert Bosh van Drakenstein received a long-awaited car from the United States. It was the newest and biggest American car in Moscow.

Bosh was transferred back to The Hague for the ministerial post in Athens. He let it be known his car was for sale and the bidding became brisk, to use an understatement.

His Excellency Prince M. Ferouz, the Iranian Ambassador, outlasted and outbid the rest, even the dean of the diplomatic corps, His Excellency Foo Peng Sheung, the Chinese Ambassador.

Now the prince is leaving—and again the car stays.

His Excellency Federico Cantoni, the Argentine Ambassador, has gone the distance in the fastest time with the most dollars. The car is his.

People who know say resales have never been lower than $4000.

Airborne Mimeograph Symbol of Stassen's Peppy 'Organization'

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

DENVER, Nov. 15.—The campaign plane that brought Harold E. Stassen to this Rocky Mountain city yesterday carries something that looks very strange in the air: a mimeograph machine.

It is part of Stassen's equipment in his 12-State hunt for delegates. It is also a reminder of the thorough planning that lies behind the big fellow's drive for the Republican presidential nomination in '48.

Occasionally, when the chartered plane makes a landing along the way, somebody asks what Stassen is really after. Is it, they ask, the Vice Presidency or perhaps a Cabinet post?

The answer, very definitely, is "no." Stassen may wind up as a Cabinet officer or as Vice President if his party wins next year, but his target certainly is what he says it is: the White House. A man who is after anything less doesn't do things on the scale that Stassen is doing them.

WILLIAM H. VANDERBILT
. . . Under a $1000 ceiling

Self-Sustaining Drive

SOME of the political reporters who are flying around the country with Stassen—there are eight of them—started out with the idea that this was a one-man show. They learned better when they landed at the candidate's home town, St. Paul, the other day.

Stassen probably has the most enthusiastic, most extensive organization of any candidate in the GOP race, avowed or otherwise. He has 40 liaison men, Stassen-for-President missionaries, drumming up sentiment all over the United States. For the most part they are well-to-do professional and business men of Minnesota, who pay their own expenses.

He has a Neighbors for Stassen organization, made up of Minnesota boosters who spend much of their time writing to friends in other States. They have sent out a half million letters.

Daniel C. Gainey, a manufacturer of school jewelry, is head of Neighbors for Stassen. He has started out to raise a separate campaign fund of $250,000 for Stassen, in advance of the Republican National Convention next June.

"We're telling these people that we will send Harold to Philadelphia and it's up to the Republican Party to send him to the White House," Gainey said.

His Operating Fund

THE Stassen organization, of course, is spending large sums of money. You can't travel around the country in a chartered plane on a shoestring. Such expenses as these come out of what is called the Minnesota Fund.

A man with a famous name and a lot of money is chairman of this fund—William H. Vanderbilt, former Governor of Rhode Island. Stassen and Vanderbilt, who are only a few years apart, both were elected Governors in 1938. Their friendship began at a national conference of Governors. In the recent war they both served in the Navy.

They say Vanderbilt is good at raising money. He probably would be better at it if Stassen hadn't set a $1000 ceiling on contributions.

The Minnesota Fund was started in the middle of 1946. There have been 2000 contributions of sums ranging from $1 to $100. About 250 persons have written checks for sums between $100 and $1000. The total would appear to be around $75,000.

Stassen has paid some of the campaigning costs out of his own earnings. His usual lecture fee is $1000.

State by State

THE most interesting people in the Stassen camp are those he calls his "liaison" men. They are the drum beaters in his political safari. Whenever he goes into a State, one of these men has been there ahead of him, making the right contacts and testing the political winds.

Some of them are nationally known. There is F. H. Stinchfield of Minneapolis, for example, a former president of the American Bar Association. His job is Maine.

Another is Harry Bullis, president of General Mills in Minneapolis. His assignment is Georgia. Walter Rosenberry, who is related by marriage to the wealthy Weyerhauser family, has been working California.

As Stassen prepares to go into Dixie, he has complete reports on his prospects. The aforementioned Dan Gainey, for example, has canvassed Texas. Warren E. Burger, a St. Paul lawyer, has been beating the bushes in Florida.

All these men are devoted to Harold Stassen. They admire his ability, believe in his sincerity and are impressed by his vision. They think he is "right," and they would like to share him with the Nation.

'Frosh' Issue Mandate to Senate GOP

By Ernest G. Warren

SENATE Republican leaders must determine quickly, on the reconvening of Congress, whether they can satisfy and thus control the freshman group whose election last year made them leaders.

Republicans came into Senate control with a majority of only six. A full third of the Republican membership is first-termers. As a body these freshmen have manifested surprising independence and some dissatisfaction with a system which creates leaders through seniority.

Led by the affable but often stubborn Raymond E. Baldwin of Connecticut, these newcomers are insisting that something be done to lower prices, provide more housing, reduce taxes without seriously affecting needed Government services, develop a long-range foreign policy and establish industry-labor harmony. They have seen a labor bill enacted with which some of them disagree and which several successfully worked to soften.

Two Old-Timers

IN THE group which more or less subscribes to these views are such young Senators as Ives (N. Y.), Flanders (Vt.), Thye (Minn.), Cooper (Tenn.), Knowland (Calif.), Lodge (Mass.), Saltonstall (Mass.) and some others on occasion.

Among the older Republican Senators the leaders have trouble on many issues with such as Tobey (N. H.) and Aiken (Vt.), who more often than not vote against the majority view.

Lodge is a freshman Senator t the extent that his service wa broken by the war.

The first session of the Eightieth Congress was still young when Baldwin got signatures of his freshman colleagues to a letter suggesting to Chairman Millikin (Colo.) of the Republican Conference that there be more meetings of the whole Republican representation and greater attention to the views of its new members, who traditionally are "seen but not heard" for two years.

Millikin readily agreed, and leaders saw fit to open places on this policy-making committee to two freshmen on a rotating basis.

The urge behind this move of freshmen is their belief that the party leaders are not following a course pleasing to that section of the electorate which they contend makes victory or defeat for either of the major parties.

More Than Regulars

BALDWIN has warned party gatherings:

"We would only delude ourselves if we chose to believe that the people of this country voted as they did in 1946 because they had belatedly decided that our platform of 1932, '36 and '40 was the proper one after all . . .

"It is true that a Republican majority was elected in 1946 by the votes of the same people who had voted for the party in '32, '36, '40 and '44, but . . . these regular supporters would still be lonely in their minority if it were not for the new life, the new future, the new promise in our party.

"It is (the) small group of middle-of-the-road, independent voters that can bring long success to the Republican Party or can defeat it in two years."

In a letter sent to Senate and Republican Party leaders generally Baldwin put forward this classification of desires by groups:

1. Regular Republicans—Strong labor legislation, immediate tax reduction, indifferent to housing legislation, indifferent to price reduction, for the abolishment of rent controls or raising of the level.

2. Democrats—No labor legislation, indifferent to tax reduction, immediate action on housing, immediate action on price reduction, retention of present rent controls.

3. Independent voters — Mild labor legislation, somewhat indifferent to tax reduction, immediate action on housing, immediate action on price reduction, rent control left as is.

As to the comparative voting strength of these three groups, Baldwin held that "the 'Old Guard' Republicans . . . are declining in strength; that the young people are for a more liberal program than the Republican Party was able to bring itself to advocate in the '30s; that the independent voters are increasing and, without question, hold the balance of power, and the strength of the Democrats is perhaps nearly static."

A Look at Record

HE CONTINUED:

"Let's see what this Congress has actually done.

"Labor legislation—Any way one regards this labor bill, it must be regarded as strong legislation.

"Taxes—A heavy reduction has been proposed which is of far more interest to the man with a large income than to the man with a small income.

"Housing—Nothing at all has been done on this subject . . .

"Prices—Nothing has been done. There is no reason to believe that prices are going to be substantially reduced within the next year . . .

"Rent control—The first hesitating step has been taken toward removing rent controls." (He referred to the "voluntary" rent increase law.)

In summary, Baldwin concluded: "It is perfectly obvious that the 'Old Guard' Republicans have in one way or another succeeded in accomplishing their purposes."

Garner Isn't Talking—Politics

By B. H. Mason

UVALDE, Tex., Nov. 15.—In the back yard of a large house in Uvalde, an old man sits by the hour shucking pecans.

In faded khaki pants and threadbare shirt, he holds court to the dozens of men and women who flock to him for advice. He has lots of it. On every subject except politics.

John Nance Garner, Vice President under Roosevelt for two terms, powerful candidate for the Presidency himself, is living out his life among the surroundings he loves.

He has a definite philosophy:

"Stop worrying," he says. "And the way to stop worrying is to forget your troubles. They don't amount to a damn anyway."

Since his retirement in 1941, when he left the Vice Presidential chair almost a nervous wreck, Garner has taken no part in politics of any kind. He'll talk about the past, but not about the present.

He has a chuckle for the attacks on his old boss . . . but he won't comment on them.

An up-ended box in the backyard is "Judge" Garner's favorite perch, and pecans are his pet topic

Poor Pecan Year

HE GETS up early every morning and walks through the town, talking to his friends. He inspects his latest housing project—he always has at least one under way. Then he goes home, where he spends the day working at some little house or yard task until "supper." He goes to bed about 7 p. m.

His favorite spot is on an upturned box in the back yard. He waters the grass, shells pecans or sorts out political letters, which he still gets in large quantities. Most of them go into the nearby garbage can.

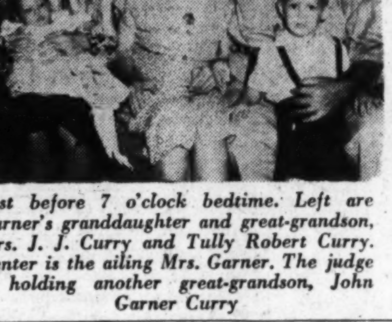
Garner is always glad to see visitors. His memory for names and faces is second only to Jim Farley's. He tells them of his pecans or regales them with stories of Washington.

"This is the worst year for pecans I ever saw," he'll tell them. "The damn things just didn't grow. But I like the work. It keeps me occupied."

The tastes of Garner, small town judge, are simple. He likes pecans, honey and corn on the cob, which he eats for dessert. A typical meal is salad, cheese, pecans and corn.

Expert on Women

THE THING that keeps "Cactus Jack" busiest is his hobby of home building. He has put up about 100 small houses since he retired. He builds them for women.



Just before 7 o'clock bedtime. Left are Garner's granddaughter and great-grandson, Mrs. J. J. Curry and Tully Robert Curry. Center is the ailing Mrs. Garner. The judge is holding another great-grandson, John Garner Curry

"Build a bathroom and kitchen nice, and you have a house," he says. "The women don't care after that. I just throw some more rooms around it and they move in. But the bathrooms and kitchens have to be first class."

He rents his newest houses for $35 a month. These contain four rooms. Smaller ones rent from $20 to $30.

He claims to be an expert on the female sex. He says:

"A woman likes to stay busy. Let her sit around all day and she goes stale. However, give her a couple of kids and a house to keep clean and she'll always be happy no matter how much she sizzles and growls."

Once known as the sharpest poker player in Texas and probably in Washington, too, Garner no longer touches a card. When he travels around the nearby countryside he drives a battered 1930 roadster, although two late models sit in his garage.

His only worry is Mrs. Garner. She has been in ill health for some time, and the former Vice President, whom she served as secretary for 50 years, never gets far from her side. His home always knows where he is "just in case."

To the people of Uvalde he always has been "Judge." They drop in often just to hear him chuckle and to watch the bushy eyebrows chase themselves around his forehead.

The problems of the United Nations are not for him. Not when the pecans are doing so "porely."

Project 4 Months Along

Atom-Proof Factories Four Blocks in Area On the Drawing Board

By Saul Pett

NEW YORK, Nov. 15 (AP).—High up in a mid-Manhattan skyscraper, blueprints are being drawn for the country's first underground factories which, it is hoped, will be deep enough to withstand any possible atomic or chemical war.

The preparatory work is part of a broad study being done for the Munitions Board and the Army Engineers to determine the problems involved in placing units of strategic American industries under enough earth and rock so they can continue to operate if bombs start falling on our home grounds.

A $400,000 planning contract has been given to a New York engineering firm headed by Guy B. Panero, who is accustomed to helping erect tall buildings above ground. He had a hand in the construction of Rockefeller Center, the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel and the Metropolitan Life Building, among others.

Panero and his score of engineers are planning two specific types of underground installations. One is a manufacturing unit, the other a "chemical process" plant.

Each of the factories, Panero said, would be about three or four times the size of a city block and two or two and a half stories deep. He classed them as "medium-sized" plants.

"Of one thing we are certain," Panero said. "The only limits to building underground are economic. There are no great technical problems still to be overcome. The Germans did it, and we can, too, perhaps better, since our equipment and skilled labor are superior."

Panero said underground factories, like their counterparts above, would have to be built in industrial areas, close to supplier plants, good transportation and a ready labor market.

In some cases, old caverns or mines could be used. Panero's job is to study ways of building new ones, for which there are two general methods—digging straight down or digging horizontally, into a hillside. He recommends the second because it's much cheaper and faster.

For obvious reasons of security, Panero said, he could not discuss the specific dimensions of the factory or the thickness of the roof that would be required to withstand an atom blast.

The factories will need decontamination chambers should their areas be subjected to chemical attack.

"In one sense," Panero said, "I consider chemical warfare the worst of the immediately possible forms of enemy attack because it is cheaper, more easily produced and therefore more available to more people than the atom bomb."

Underground plants, he said, will need cafeterias, medical arrangements and at least temporary sleeping quarters and food supplies should an attack make it impossible for workers to come and go over a period of time.

The factories will need several entrances so that the blocking of one will not trap all the men inside and cripple the factory.

"Provided the air conditioning is right, there will be nothing in the working conditions underground to affect people's health," Panero said. "But there will be psychological problems. Some may be affected by claustrophobia, the feeling of being closed in.

"We'll need better lighting, very good air conditioning, noise control and brighter colors. There will be little tricks we can use. One you may have noticed is used in many stores and other surface buildings where the inhabitants are far from daylight. That's the streamer or flag waving, just to show people inside there's a breeze."

Panero and the men at his drawing boards have been working on the problem for four months. He expects a year will be required before he can present final recommendations to Washington.

Before undertaking the job the engineer inspected underground factories built during the war in Sweden and Germany. The biggest was a mammoth, six-story job built by the Nazis. It was almost ready to begin producing when Allied troops took it over.

The Swedish underground factories are still operating. Panero said workers there prefer them to many surface plants because the temperature is even.

Advertising Council on Job

String of Successes Backs Food Campaign

By Oliver S. Goodman

SAVE WHEAT! Save Meat! Save the Peace!

With that as a slogan, the big guns of American business once again are trained on a public service objective.

Through the Advertising Council, Inc., every medium of public information is being used to hammer home the worlds' food plight and America's duty to cut down on use of grain.

Will this humanitarian campaign succeed?

Well, the Advertising Council hasn't failed yet in more than 150 campaigns since it was organized six years ago.

It helped sell war bonds, promoted fats salvage, helped recruit Wacs, Waves, Army nurses and war plant workers. There were scores of other drives. After the war the council worked on the readjustment and housing of veterans, the sale of United States savings bonds, the famine of 1946, the crisis in education and now the world-wide food emergency of 1947.

CHARLES G. MORTIMER, JR.
. . . Working with A-power

Adapting a Mechanism

WHAT IS THE Advertising Council, how does it operate, and who finances it?

The council was organized by the Nation's leading advertisers, the owners of every kind of publishing medium and the advertising agencies. It came into being when the realization struck home that totalitarian states had one advantage over democracies—they could act more swiftly in reshaping national policy.

A democracy puts its faith in individual opinion. Its information processes carry the basic facts to the people. Then the individual decisions, taken together, dictate national policy. If the information job is poorly done, the national decision may be tragically wrong.

That's where the Advertising Council comes in. In the words of Charles G. Mortimer, jr., council chairman and vice president of General Foods Corp.:

"Virtually every private, nonprofit organization in the country, along with every department of Government, has discovered in the last six years that in the mechanism called advertising . . . there exists today the greatest single force for informing and activating public opinion the world has ever seen . . . A new use for advertising has been discovered, so revolutionary in its effect that it is almost as though the ingredients of a familiar substance like gunpowder had been put together in a new way to form an atomic bomb."

The Libertys Sailed

HERE are a few instances of how the council galvanized Americans into action:

In the middle of the war, when supplies were needed critically overseas, ship sailings were theratened by a shortage of merchant seamen. The advertising mechanism swung into action. Within two weeks the seamen were obtained and all ships sailed on schedule.

At the start of the 1946 famine emergency campaign, public compliance as shown by polls was running 20-odd per cent. At the end of the campaign it had risen to nearly 80 per cent.

Last spring whole wings of hospitals throughout the country were closing because of a shortage of student nurses. Forty-five thousand trainees—a record enrollment—were needed by fall. By October 27, the 45 thousandth student was donning a cap.

Right now the council is trying to straighten out people on misconceptions and misinformation about food conservation. It cites these:

"My cousin spent two weeks in Paris and says nobody is hungry."

"Why are we sending food to a bunch of Communists?"

"These foreigners are just too lazy to help themselves."

"Why don't we send them potatoes—we've got plenty of them."

Dangerous Thinking

SUCH comments are roadblocks to a relief program that must move with tremendous speed if it is to prevent the worst suffering.

What happens in Europe in the next six months is of immediate, cardinal concern to all Americans, according to Secretary of State Marshall. As he put it:

"The connection between the individual American and world affairs is unmistakably clear—our seat at the family table."

AAF Scandal

No less shocking than the testimony of corruption and profiteering involving Gen. Bennett E. Meyers is the apparent gross negligence of high Army Air Force officers in failing to clean house when data of a damaging character were put into their hands. If testimony given to the Senate War Investigating Committee is accurate, General Meyers held stock valued at $35,000 in seven major aviation companies while he was a high-ranking officer in aviation procurement. Instead of following up disquieting rumors and ferreting out any sources of corruption, the AAF officialdom appears to have been more interested in concealing information of wrongdoing.

Maj. Gen. Oliver P. Echols, now retired, General Meyers' immediate superior during the war, testified that in 1940 he had "more than suggested" to the high-living general that he dispose of any holdings in the Aviation Electric Co. of Dayton as "a precautionary measure." But he made no check to see whether his suggestion had been carried out. He was concerned, he told the committee, lest a high-ranking officer under him be suspected of using his procurement position to influence the letting of aviation contracts. For one who was so concerned he certainly did precious little about it.

Maj. Gen. Junius W. Jones, air inspector, also tried to shrug off his responsibility in the matter. The anonymous letter from an Air Forces worker, charging General Meyers with making vast sums of money by buying up aviation company stocks as soon as war contract bids were submitted to the Air Forces and before they were made public, was put down by General Jones as a "crackpot letter." He even disclaimed knowledge of the wartime arrangement under which Army authorities alone could order an investigation into charges against military personnel. The Army and the Air Forces had made no investigation into the Meyers scandal, he said, because the matter was before the criminal division of the Department of Justice. That pitiful dodging of responsibility goes a long way toward explaining why corruption apparently flourished in the procurement of warplanes while other men were giving their lives for their country.

General Jones' testimony to the effect that the so-called "crackpot" letter went direct to the office of Gen. H. H. Arnold, now retired, clearly brings the former commanding general of the Air Forces within the shadow of this scandal. Previous witnesses had said that the letter wound up in General Arnold's "closed" file with a notation that no action was to be taken in the matter. Certainly an explanation is due as to why, with this letter in his possession, the general made no effort to investigate the facts or to clean up the mess in his own command. The widespread negligence in handling this case comes near to a "public-be-damned" attitude. Obviously, the public will be satisfied with nothing less than a full and complete expose of the entire mess.

Radio Diversity

With no more than five unallocated frequency modulation channels available for the New York City-New Jersey metropolitan area, the Federal Communications Commission was faced with 17 applications, 2 of them from newspapers. The commission's difficulty was compounded by the fact that the American Jewish Congress had entered an objection to the application of one of the newspapers, the New York Daily News, on the ground that it was anti-Semitic and incapable therefore of satisfactorily serving the public interest. The FCC dismissed this objection but, after awarding four of the frequencies to other applicants, determined to grant the fifth to neither of the newspapers and awarded it instead to the Radio Corp. of the Board of Missions of the Methodist Church.

The explanation given by the commission majority in support of its decision is an interesting one: "We have repeatedly recognized that in comparative hearings, such as this, if all other factors are equal the public interest is generally better served by preferring nonnewspaper applicants over newspaper applicants, since this promotes diversity in the ownership of media of mass communication and competition in the dissemination of news and information." This has indeed been a consistent commission policy since 1944. It seems to us an eminently reasonable one. The owners of The Washington Post, it is well known, are the owners of WINX and of WINX-FM. We by no means believe that newspapers should be barred from broadcasting when they are the sole or the superior applicants for a frequency. But in situations such as that in New York, when the FCC must choose between evenly matched applicants, the promotion of diversity seems to us a valid consideration to throw into the scales.

This can in no real sense be termed dictatorial or a discrimination against the press. Diversity is a prime fountainhead of American freedom. The more varied the ownership of the media of communication, the more varied will be the access of conflicting spokesmen to the public mind. And it is in the clash of opinion that the democratic process operates most fruitfully. It would be ideal if everyone who wanted to do so could operate a radio station or at least have the use of one for the expression of his ideas. But so long as the demand for radio frequencies exceeds the available supply and so long, therefore, as the FCC is obliged to license broadcasting on a selective basis, the fostering of diversity is an inescapable obligation of the Government.

A Stabilizing Policy

As a rule advocates of changes in our tax laws are disposed to ignore or minimize the importance of fiscal policy as a guide to tax reform. Contrariwise, the theorists who advocate reliance on fiscal policy as an instrumentality for helping to iron out fluctuations in economic activity and stabilizing employment at high levels are too little concerned about defects in the existing system of taxation. The study on Taxes and the Budget prepared by the Research and Policy Committee of the Committee for Economic Development avoids both errors. It is a much needed and extremely valuable contribution to clear thinking. For it sets forth the principles that, in the opinion of the committee, should govern our budgetary policy preliminary to outlining its tax goals. By such means it becomes possible to appraise more accurately the effect of proposals for specific changes in taxes on the economic life of the country. The approach likewise helps us to determine whether such changes are conducive to the over-all objective of stimulating productive activity and maintaining employment at high levels.

The policy of annual budget balancing, the committee says, works against rather than for the stabilizing of economic activity. For it accentuates inflations and depressions by necessitating increases in tax rates and expenditures at the time when incomes are low and unemployment high while encouraging tax reductions and new expenditures in boom times. The so-called compensatory budget policy involving reductions in taxes and higher expenditures in anticipation of a downswing in business activity depends for success upon accurate forecasting and an "impossible speed in making fiscal decisions and taking fiscal action." Moreover, as we well know, efforts to reduce Federal expenditures and raise taxes when the business tide is about to turn are sure to encourage determined resistance. Consequently the committee favors a so-called stabilizing budget policy that would "set tax rates to balance the budget and provide a surplus for debt retirement at an agreed high level of employment and national income. Having set these rates, leave them alone unless there is some major change in national policy or condition of national life." This stabilizing policy likewise calls for sound judgment and restraint on the part of Congress and the Administration to make it work. But it would be much easier to follow than the alternative policies.

With stable tax rates the Government would take more from the people in the form of taxes as national income rose, thus curbing inflationary pressures. On the other hand, as national income declined, tax receipts would fall, too, thereby helping to arrest the decline in production and employment. This proposed policy would entail unbalanced budgets in some years, but it would still maintain a close link between expenditures and tax rates. For the large budget surpluses of good years could not be an excuse for additional expenditures without an increase of tax rates. Nor, on the other hand, would unemployment justify the addition of new Federal expenditures without higher taxes "except perhaps in extreme circumstances." That last qualifying phrase points up the chief weakness of the stabilizing budget approach. Undoubtedly the pressure to expand relief outlays in bad times without adding to the tax burden of the community would be great and the temptation to throw overboard the stabilizing budget policy might prove irresistible.

Notwithstanding such doubts, the suggested approach has much to commend it, though it, too, calls for a certain amount of forecasting. Any tax program designed to yield budget surpluses in a year of virtually full employment must be based on estimates of national income and that in turn depends, among other things, on the price level existing at the time. It should also be noted that the policy recommendations are framed with reference to the consolidated cash budget, not the administrative budget. For it is the former that shows cash deficits—that is, the amounts of cash paid out by the Government in excess of the amount of cash received from the public—or cash surpluses, the amounts of the cash received from the public in excess of outlays. It is these cash inflows or withdrawals that affect demand, whereas the administrative budget that is familiar to most of us includes many inter-agency transactions that do not affect the amount of money held by the public.

The preliminary analyses and statements of budgetary policy provide a framework within which specific recommendations regarding the amount of taxes to be collected and the kind of taxes to be levied have to be fitted. The committee's efforts to adapt its own tax reduction program to the requirements of its budget policy recommendations will be discussed in a subsequent editorial. We should like to point out, however, that specific suggestions for carrying out tax reform, dealt with in the second part of the CED report, show that the committee has made an earnest effort to abide by the general principles it indorses.

Loyalty Order

The President's Committee on Civil Rights declared that each employe of the Government facing dismissal "should have the right to a bill of particular accusations, representation by counsel at all examinations or hearings, the right to subpena witnesses and documents, a stenographic report of proceedings, a written decision and time to prepare a written brief for appeal." President Truman's latest statement of policy, we believe, will provide this kind of procedural protection, with a few exceptions, for Government employes suspected of disloyalty. It should put an end to the "witch hunts" that have instilled fear in the hearts of many employes and threaten to demoralize the civil service.

The President has made all the concessions that he reasonably could to public demands that accused employes be given a fair hearing. Further protection against unjust dismissal is afforded by the privilege of appealing from the decision of departmental loyalty boards to department heads and finally to the newly created Loyalty Review Board. For reasons of security, it may be necessary for a few agencies, such as the Army, Navy and Department of State, to exercise their legal right to withhold information about the nature of charges and deny hearings to persons accused of being disloyal. It is conceivable, therefore, that loyal employes of these sensitive agencies might be summarily dismissed on mere suspicion without being furnished with a bill of particulars that would enable them to refute the charges brought against them. However, we do not anticipate a continuation of the abuses of privilege that caused a storm of criticism to be directed against the Department of State in connection with its recent security risk cases. For the department has already announced its willingness to transmit all the evidence in its possession about these cases to the Loyalty Review Board, permitting the board to decide whether the charges shall be made public. The Navy Department has also informed the Loyalty Review Board of its intention to use its appeal machinery except in extreme cases.

In view of this attitude on the part of so-called sensitive agencies, there is ground for hope that in future loyal Federal employes will be adequately safeguarded against dismissal without charges or dismissal on charges so vaguely defined as to make a fair hearing impossible.

Naval Chief

It is said of Admiral Louis E. Denfeld, newly designated successor to Admiral Nimitz as Chief of Naval Operations, that his enthusiasm is so infectious that his associates soon find themselves working at double pace. It is also said that he is the ablest politician in the Navy—in the sense that his forte is persuasion and that he is an agile advocate of his viewpoint. His warm personality inspires confidence in enlisted men and Congressmen alike. An index of his distaste for formality is the fact that he is almost universally referred to as "Louie." He has the reputation in the Navy of being the instigator and champion of many forward-looking reforms, such as commissions to enlisted men and admission of officers from colleges as well as Annapolis. All these are highly desirable qualities in the officer who is to direct the Navy during the period of integration of our security forces.

The choice of Admiral Denfeld—and it was a difficult choice among several top-notch candidates—represents recognition of the fact that the criterion of a good Chief of Naval Operations is not necessarily prowess in battle. The job calls for an administrator. Relations with Capitol Hill are of extreme importance, and it is here that Admiral Denfeld's contacts are exceptional. As director of naval personnel immediately after the war, he won deserved praise for his smooth handling of the knotty demobilization problem. He is known for his willingness to delegate responsibility. Admiral Denfeld possesses another advantage in that, although he has a background of submarine and surface duty, his subsequent Washington experience has given him a broad view of the operations of other services. He thus will represent the Navy as a whole rather than one particular branch. This fact will serve him in good stead in conciliating the still unquenched feud between surface and air contingents. Altogether, we think that everyone associated with the Navy has reason to feel glad over the selection of a man of such youth, vigor and ability.

TIME IN AMBER

Blown out of season, exquisite yellow roses,
Pristine for their hour in frosted pewter vase,
Lovely and meaningless, defying utter autumn,
Stripped of all context, yet the lovely phrase.

Outside, and equally late against the season,
A golden butterfly explores gold petals and leaf;
Bewildered, searching for remembered summer,
Playing against time, time, time, however brief.

Tomorrow the heated room will claim the roses,
Outdoors these saffron wings be stilled by frost,
The amber leaf descend in its last mortal gesture;
Tomorrow petals, leaves and wings will all be lost.

But for its hour, or illusion of its hour,
Tenuous summer pulses still and quietly sings;
And that is all, for what is time or seeming time
But illusion of gold petals and gold wings.

Romanian Trial

In your issue of November 1, you were kind enough to publish my letter which I sent to the Prime Minister of Romania, Dr Petru Groza, concerning the trial of Mr. Juliu Maniu.

In that letter I enumerated the personal, moral and national reasons for which Dr. Groza and his government were not justified in trying and condemning Mr. Maniu. Meanwhile Mr. Maniu has been sentenced to life imprisonment.

The Romanian Legation in Washington answered my letter in an unsigned reply published in your issue of November 7. Utilizing typical Communist methods employed in all such cases, the Romanian Legation attacked me personally instead of answering objectively the concrete facts which I presented.

I regret that not a single one of the representatives of Mrs. Anna Pauker, (now Foreign Minister of Romania) from the so-called Romanian Legation had the courage to sign the letter to The Washington Post. The insinuations and accusations lacked even the most rudimentary elements of honesty. Therefore, I request that within 48 hours a written clarification of these insinuations be presented in this paper, signed by the authorized and responsible person of the legation, renouncing for this purpose his cloak of diplomatic immunity.

I believe that it is a grave display of indecency and of responsibility on the part of certain individuals to abuse the good will of the American press by making certain accusations which they do not intend to be held responsible for before the courts of justice in a libel action.

Toronto Transit

Your correspondent of November 12 who set forth the facts on Toronto Transit Commission was perfectly correct as far as she went, but perhaps the following facts will explain her conclusions reflecting on the Washington transit system:

1. T. T. C. is tax free, being a municipal instrumentality.

2. T. T. C. can borrow at low interest, because its credit is guaranteed by the city.

3. T. T. C. operates only 400 buses as against Capital Transit's 1000 or more.

4. Less than one-third of the fleet of streetcars are modern streamliners.

5. T. T. C. is not cursed with the highly expensive underground conduit trackwork to build and maintain, as Capital Transit must do.

6. The "subway" mentioned is only a subway downtown, under downtown streets, and three-fourths of it will be low-cost open-cut private right-of-way.

Transit practice of one city is never valid to judge the practice of another until all factors have evaluated.

Delayed Fire Alarms

An account of the destructive four-alarm fire which occurred in your city on October 14 at 314 Eighth st. nw. seriously involving a warehouse of S. Kahn Sons Co. has come to our attention.

We understand that the Fire Department did an excellent job in restricting the extent of this fire, but was severely handicapped because of a delayed alarm. Both fire insurance and fire department statistics emphatically point out that delayed alarms are the most common contributing factor to large loss fires.

In our opinion, the most logical and effective means at our disposal to combat delayed alarms is a modern municipal fire alarm system which has fire alarm boxes readily available throughout all sections of a city.

Remember that 95 per cent of all fires start small and, therefore, could be put out with an ordinary extinguisher, or small hose line, provided that a prompt, accurate fire alarm is received by the fire department.

Over-35 Barrier

Mr. Harry Daniels, in his letter of November 5 setting forth the manner in which the Social Security operates and the way in which unemployment benefits are handled, has painted a very accurate picture. Notwithstanding the fact that employment is said to be at its zenith there are now more than a million people looking for jobs. Among this number are many men and women who are highly efficient but who, because they are past a certain age, are not given an opportunity to work.

A great deal is said about discriminating against people of given creeds and nationalities though seldom is a voice raised in protest of the discrimination against men and women who are over 35. It is my understanding that some employment bureaus will not grant people who are over 35 an interview. Yet, many persons who through no fault of their own are forced to seek unemployment benefits have been accused of not wanting to work. Has anyone an answer as to how these persons are to exist?

Poultry Prices

The poultry people would have little difficulty in disposing of the 136 million chickens in storage which they are anxious to get rid of by January 1 if they were put into the market at prices the consumers could afford. There is something cockeyed about their economics when they claim that this surplus poultry is choking their operations and yet in the face of this cry to the public to help them by consuming the poultry, chickens appear in the stores at from 5 to 8 cents higher per pound than a week ago, and the clerks at the meat counters warn us that prices for poultry will go yet higher.

Time was when an abundance of production, and especially a surplus, meant lower plrices. Are some of the poultry boys figuring on turning the poultryless Thursday fiasco into a get-rich-quick grab through a gullible public eating chicken regardless of the price? Or do they think that if the public doesn't fall that the Department of Agriculture will purchase the chicks at prices highly satisfactory to the poultry industry so that prices to the consumer may remain high, wide and fancy free?

Exiling Enemies

Let the people who protested so loudly and vigorously against the Hollywood investigation be thankful we don't take enemies of our democracy and execute them or sentence them to solitary confinement for life, the way the Communist-controlled governments do in Europe. I, for one, would like to see all enemies of our form of government exiled from this country forever. Why don't we do as Brazil has done?

Senator Taylor's Peace Crusade

Along with everyone else, apparently, on the mailing list of organizations, which he presumably feels would be sympathetic to his views on our foreign policy, I have received an invitation to meet with Senator Taylor at the Interior Department Auditorium Sunday evening to discuss the ways to peace.

I admire very much the evident sincere concern for the state of the world's international relations that prompted Senator Taylor to undertake what must have been something of an ordeal.

I hate to see the Senator's genuine concern and good will channeled into what seems to me to be nonconstructive effort. I cannot agree that "without a reversal in our diplomacy there is no possibility of averting universal atomic destruction in World War III."

I am afraid it is far from being that simple. Our diplomacy is largely a reflection of that of other powers. And since there is at the moment only one other major power, this naturally means Russia.

We are dealing with a country whose rulers are obsessed with the notion that an aggressive attack on them by the major capitalist nation is inevitable and that therefore they must prepare for such an attack by absorbing neighboring non-Communist (though in some cases Socialist) countries, and possibly eventually ward off an attack by the United States by attacking us instead.

Of course, there are those in our country who look at things the same way in regard to Russia; that is, that we ought to attack them before they can attack us. I do not believe, however, that that is the ruling principle of our foreign policy, and I pray that it will never be.

I hate to disavow so sound and rightly hallowed a principle as the Golden Rule, which Senator Taylor wants to apply to international relations. I am afraid, though, that it is applicable only in relations between rational individuals and states. To be rational, a state must be ruled by rational individuals, and must, I believe, be a democracy. Further, it must be susceptible to rule of law.

I do not feel that the rulers of Russia are rational. They have room for no rule but that of Marx and Lenin despite the fact that conditions have changed radically since they wrote.

I cannot agree with the Senator that the way to "dissuade the Russians from their present belief that we are bent on world conquest" is by getting his "message to the people of America." Experience with people who seemed to follow the Party Line has impressed on me the impossibility of reasoning or cooperating with such people. There is nothing there with which to reason. They demand absolute control or none.

So when they tell us to get out of Greece and Turkey and Palestine and Austria and Germany and Korea they mean they want to take over. This puts us in the uncomfortable dilemma of maintaining frequently reactionary and noisome governments in power in some of these countries to prevent them being made over in the Yugoslav or Bulgarian or Hungarian or Czechoslovakian image. I could not, with an easy conscience, see the Greek people gleichgeschaltet, though Heaven knows the Greek rulers are an unsavory crew.

So I don't see how our foreign policy can be reversed. I don't see how we have any alternative to the policy of containment and patience and firmness, until by some means not yet devised, the Russian rulers can recognize the fallacy of clinging to a dialectic that postulates an eventual war that can only result in destruction, if not of the world itself, at least of all attributes of the world that make life worth living.

London Conference

By Andre Visson

Cold War Front

THERE IS a much closer connection between the coming London Conference of Foreign Ministers and the congressional debate on the Marshall Plan than is generally realized. This is the firm belief expressed by responsible diplomatic observers in Washington.

The London Conference is supposed to be the last attempt to find at least a temporary solution of the German problem through an agreement between the three western powers and Russia. The Marshall Plan, on the other hand, is supposed to help the western powers find a lasting solution of the German problem, within a much broader European framework.

On the emotional plane—and it is extremely hard to keep emotions completely out of international problems in the United States—the failure of the London Conference to bring even a temporary West-East agreement on Germany is likely to speed up the approval of the Marshall Plan by the Congress. On the diplomatic level, however, the generally expected failure of the London Conference may bring new serious obstacles to the successful implementation of the Marshall Plan in Europe.

The failure to agree with Russia on Germany will make inevitable some kind of an agreement by the United States, Britain and France on western Germany. But the ideas expressed lately by such a responsible American leader as Senator Vandenberg on the necessity of making a separate peace treaty with Germany—presumably its western part—will meet with strong opposition in France.

IT CAN BE safely predicted that it will be extremely difficult to reach a much more limited agreement with the French on western Germany, if we should insist on the recovery of Germany as the point of departure for a general western European recovery. This is, perhaps, the only point on which General de Gaulle and the French Communists will be in agreement.

Neither will it help us to consider the problem of the unification of western Germany into Trizonia as a strictly economic proposition. The French, as most Europeans, are too political-minded to be able to disassociate politics from economics. For them every important economic problem—especially if it is an international one, and most especially if it deals with Germany—inevitably takes on a political aspect which they cannot ignore.

Opinions have recently been advanced here that since the French are now in such acute need of our credits that we could easily exert tactful but effective diplomatic pressure to make them accept our ideas on western Germany. Such opinions betray a complete lack of understanding of the French mentality. France, as other western European countries, is today a "4-F" nation. She badly needs food, fuel, fertilizer and fiber. But she still has enough national stamina to turn her back on us, if, in return for our 4-Fs, we should ask her to give up what she considers her long-range national security.

ON THE OTHER HAND, while we shall have to lend a sympathetic ear to French apprehensions—even if it is not always easy for us to understand them—we must also keep a watchful eye on Germany, and especially on the latest Soviet maneuverings in its approach to the German problem.

Moscow has taken on the role of champion of German unification. It has opened the pages of its publication, Trud (Labor), to the leaders of the Association of Free German Trade Unions in the Soviet Zone, now on a visit to Soviet Russia, for expressing their belief that "the interests of universal peace demand the creation of a united Germany." These long statements by Hans Jendretzky and Bernhard Goering—the latter may not be related to the late Nazi air marshal, but appears to be continuing his work—have not only been published in Trud but broadcast from Moscow.

Another Soviet broadcast—in Polish—accused Senator Vandenberg of aiming at the dismemberment of Germany. Senator Vandenberg has also been portrayed as an enemy of Germany along with former President Hoover. They were both accused of propagating the dismemberment of Germany with the view of transforming the western provinces into an "American businessmen's colony." "The political and economic unity of Germany," lashed out the Soviet radio, "is not to the liking of British and American crooks." And it explained "why the USSR fights for the realization of German economic unity."

The same flood of distortions and deliberate lies was sent out on the air in Italian, quoting an anonymous British paper allegedly describing American economic observers sent to the European countries to be helped as "United States economic gauleiters."

And Warsaw puppets, anxious to echo their masters' voice, delegated Premier Cyrankiewicz to accuse the "American expansionists" of planning the domination of the world, because "it is clear that the United States capitalists, who enriched themselves during the war, want to turn Europe into their colony."

Indeed, the role of world leader, for which this country did not ask, decidedly requires a great deal of patience and political philosophy!

Matter of Fact

Reuther Cracked Wallace 'Front'

By Stewart Alsop

IT IS difficult to overestimate the real meaning of Walter Reuther's overwhelming victory at the United Automobile Workers' convention in Atlantic City last week. For the Communists have lost their last chance to dominate or deeply influence an important segment of the American labor movement.

In so doing, they have lost their last chance to dominate or deeply influence the whole American political left. For without a solid, unassailable base in the labor movement, the Communists are reduced to comparative political impotence. And this, in turn, will have a profound impact on the national political scene.

About two or three months ago, there existed a serious possibility that the Communists might extend their influence to unions representing about half the membership of the entire CIO. Yet with Curran's recent victory in the Maritime Workers, and Reuther's success last week, the whole Communist position in the CIO is threatened.

It is threatened, for example, in national CIO headquarters. The hand of CIO President Philip Murray, who detests the Communists but who has hesitated to move against them for fear of splitting his beloved CIO from top to bottom, is strengthened. So is the hand of James Carey, CIO secretary-treasurer and Reuther's chief ally at national headquarters. And the position of CIO Counsel Lee Pressman, the Communists' friend at court, has thus become exceedingly precarious. Reuther has never troubled to conceal his sentiments toward Pressman. One close observer of the CIO has remarked that it would surprise him if Pressman lasted three months.

Cleansing the PAC

THE CIO-PAC, the CIO's political instrumentality, which has always had a distinct Communist flavor, will also feel the impact of Reuther's victory. R. J. Thomas, the bumbling former president of the UAW, who has consistently accepted Communist support, has been PAC treasurer. Reuther is expected to replace him. There is no doubt that he will firmly quash the PAC's sprinkling of Communists.

Again, Communist control of the biggest Communist trade union base, the United Electrical Workers, is seriously undermined. Carey, former UEW president and leader of a movement to oust the union's Communist officers, will receive support from Reuther. Moreover, Philip Murray's Steelworkers are expected soon to follow the UAW lead in signing, under protest, the non-Communist affidavits required by the Taft-Hartley law.

This will leave the electrical workers as the only major CIO union without recourse to the National Labor Relations Board, since a number of its officers could not sign the affidavits without risking perjury charges. Thus the electrical workers will be subject to raids by both the AFL's machinists and the CIO's steel and auto workers. It seems unlikely that the vast majority of non-Communists in the electrical workers' rank and file will long agree to pay such a price for the luxury of maintaining Communist officers. And if the Communists lose the electrical workers, they lose their last great labor base.

Wallace's Wrong Foot

THUS THE whole internal balance of power in the CIO has been overturned, and will be turned still further. The impact of this overturn on the national political scene is made obvious if one recalls the speech made by Henry Wallace before the electrical workers' convention in Boston last September.

Carey's attempt to displace the Communist leadership of his old union had been swamped by the powerful Communist machine. Wallace devoted much of his speech to the horrors of "Red-baiting," and congratulated the union on not allowing itself to be disrupted by such "false issues" as Carey had raised. Wallace thus placed himself squarely and unequivocally in the CIO's minority pro-Communist camp.

The overwhelming rank-and-file support for Walter Reuther has now threatened the very existence of that camp, and has clearly repudiated Wallace's strategy of a "united front" with the Communists. Thus Reuther's victory is the greatest setback which the third party movement, sparkplugged by the Communists, has yet received.

Reuther's enemies in the UAW, now sunk without trace, have consistently flirted with the Progressive Citizens of America, the party-line, third-party organization which has provided Wallace with his main platform. Reuther, like Carey, is a firm supporter of the anti-Wallace, anti-third party, anti-Communist liberal organization, the Americans for Democratic Action. It is too early to say that the third party is dead. But certainly the Democratic leaders who feared that Henry Wallace, by heading a third party, would elect a right-wing Republican in 1948, can take heart.

Yet the impact of Reuther's victory may extend beyond the political fortunes of Henry Wallace. For although Reuther has been described as the leader of the UAW's "right wing," his views would be exceedingly abhorrent to the Union League Club. Reuther's victory, and the increasing repudiation of the Communists by the CIO, are laying the groundwork for what the country will badly need when the present swing to the right is inevitably reversed: a militant, intelligent, non-Communist American left.

A Story Morgenthau Won't Tell

By Drew Pearson

THERE'S one story Henry Morgenthau probably won't reveal in his "kiss-and-tell" series. It is the story of how he could have remained on as Treasury Secretary under Truman if he hadn't muffed the ball.

Under Roosevelt, Morgenthau had achieved the record of being Treasury Secretary longer than any other man in history. When Truman took office, however, Henry found himself not a member of the inner circle, and after a couple of months Henry thought he should get a definite commitment as to whether he was to remain permanently.

To this end, Morgenthau called in Clinton Anderson, then Congressman from New Mexico, now Agriculture Secretary, who had been an intimate friend of Truman's during his days on Capitol Hill. Morgenthau explained his quandary and asked Anderson's advice.

"I think I'd better have a showdown," Morgenthau suggested. "I think I should ask the President whether he definitely wants me to remain on with him during the rest of his term."

"I wouldn't do that if I were you," advised Anderson. "Truman's funny about things like that. He might misunderstand you."

What Anderson couldn't tell Morgenthau was that he had already talked to Truman about both Morgenthau and Ickes. Truman had called Anderson to ask if he would take the job of Interior Secretary. Truman had in mind the fact that Anderson was from New Mexico and he wanted a Far Westerner to fill the post. Anderson demurred.

"I'd let Ickes stay if I were you," he advised. "The old man has done a good job, and I'd keep him on—certainly until after the war's over. He has a big following, and he deserves credit for his work."

"What about Morgenthau?" Truman then asked.

"I'd keep him on, too," advised Anderson. "He's known as a great friend of Roosevelt's, and you need to keep some of Roosevelt's friends."

"I could use Vinson in that spot," Truman countered.

"Yes, but Vinson's too important where he is," replied Anderson, having in mind the fact that Vinson was pinch-hitting as War Mobilizer and Federal Loan Administrator.

So, when Morgenthau consulted Anderson some weeks later the latter strongly advised Morgenthau—in view of his previous talk with Truman—not to force a showdown.

Morgenthau ignored Anderson's advice. Going over to the White House, he told the new President, in brief:

"I want to see where I stand with you."

"What do you mean?" asked Truman.

Then Henry explained that he wanted to know whether he was to remain on as Treasury Secretary as long as Truman was President.

"I can't make any promises like that," Truman replied, becoming irked.

"Well, in that case, I'll have to resign," said the Treasury Secretary.

Truman handed him a piece of paper.

"Start writing," he said.

United Nations Logrolling

TO DROP in at the soft-carpeted delegates' lounge at the United Nations, no one would dream a "cold war" was raging beween two bitter groups of nations. In fact, the lounge looks more like the cloakroom of the House of Representatives.

Ambassador Gromyko arrived early—and smiling! Deputy Foreign Minister Vishinsky arrived close behind and began shaking hands with folks. It looked just like Sam Rayburn and Joe Martin calling each other names on the floor of Congress then walking off arm-in-arm.

Ablest at logrolling however, is the British delegation, largest at the U. N. The British have one man assigned to each foreign delegation, know how everyone is going to vote on every issue. Least inhibited and most effective of the logrollers is Australia's Dr. Herbert Evatt, who strides around, necktie askew, buttonholing and trading, effectively jockeying his tiny country, with a population of less than that of New York City, into a major role in global strategy.

White House Hazing

THE OLD Washington adage that too much publicity is worse than none is making life tough for young Clark Clifford, President Truman's able special counsel and speech writer.

Clifford differs from such erstwhile brain trusters as Tommy Corcoran, Ben Cohen and the late Harry Hopkins in that he has never been afflicted with a passion for anonymity." A likable individual who enjoys being around people, Clifford is too considerate to brush off reporters who want to write about him. Result: He is constantly being ribbed by colleagues inside the White House.

Military Aide Harry Vaughan, partly out of jealousy, has been one of the chief ribbers. Once the President laughingly commented that his talented young aide had a slight case of "Potomac fever," which he would get over in due time.

But there were no laughs when the latest magazine thesis on Clifford, a Saturday Evening Post article titled, "Truman's One-Man Brain Trust," hit the newsstands. Instead, the article was received in tight-lipped silence, chiefly by the President, who seemed plenty irked by certain backhanded references to himself.

Among other things, Author Leigh White declared that "much of Clifford's authority stems from the President's own limitations," and that Truman "would be the first man to admit, in candor, that his job is too big for him." White's palliating comment that the job also had been too big for Roosevelt did little to soothe Truman's feelings.

Inside betting is that Clifford, who was not responsible for what White wrote, will nonetheless be careful about handing out future interviews.

A Sober AFL Analysis

THE September-October issue of the AFL Labor's Monthly Survey deals with our current price situation and our foreign commitments in a way which deserves wide reading inside and outside the ranks of organized labor. The tone of the argument ought to be emulated in other publications of this character. The difficult question of the behavior of prices in a boom is discussed dispassionately, with reference not to personal responsibility but to impersonal forces.

The discussion is introduced by the assertion that the current rise in living costs is "due almost entirely to the food bill." A brief paragraph on the grain situation tells the story of crop failures in Europe and the short corn crop in the United States. The conclusion is plainly drawn that higher prices are the result of these economic and physical forces and that they may go still higher if underlying conditions happen not to change for the better.

On the question of broad national interest, this AFL organ strongly supports the policy of furnishing Europe with food. It counsels the voluntary reduction of food consumption by Americans. And in doing so, it points out how incomparably well-fed we are in the United States, even today, and how wide the margin is between our diet and the diets of those peoples we are asked to help.

The federation seems equally clear as to several of our domestic policies. It says that "we are faced with world shortages like those of wartime, when Government agencies met similar problems in this country by price control, wage freeze and rationing." But the AFL is not moved by the siren call of reinstated public regulation. "Such Government regimentation in peacetime," in the federation's view, "is abhorrent and unworkable; the challenge is to meet this crisis by voluntary measures."

The most significant feature of this bulletin is the evidence it contains of the risks that we face in the future. It warns: "The danger is that prices will spiral upward until a gradual downward adjustment is no longer possible and the boom ends in a price collapse, bringing depression and unemployment. This is a time when the policies of American unions can be crucial . . .; it is vital for all of us to understand the economic forces at work . . ."

This counsel is unfortunately not heeded when the bulletin turns to the wage situation and the probable consequences of a third round of wage increases. But we can't have everything. And we need to be more than thankful for the sobriety and objectivity which, in this important organ of labor opinion, colors the discussion of our greatest national problem.

Mark Sullivan

A Golden Chance to Curb Credit

CONGRESS this week, according to the intention at this writing, is to deal first with the immediate foreign aid needed to tide Europe over the winter. Thereafter Congress will turn to high prices and inflation.

Among the checks to high prices and inflation that will be considered is limitation on installment selling. Until two weeks ago there was a wartime check, a regulation of the Federal Reserve Board. This, as respects automobiles, for example, decreed that the down payment be one third the price, and that all the installments be paid in 15 months. Congress will consider renewing this regulation or an equivalent.

But the field is broader than installment selling. The recommendation of the Committee of Economic Advisers, made to President Truman and by him given out to Congress and the country, calls for "aggressive use of credit controls."

To this proposed control of credit, especially the part dealing with installment selling, vigorous objection is made. It is argued that if one man or corporation wishes to sell and another wishes to buy, the terms of the deal are no concern of Government in peacetime, and the same if one wishes to lend and another to borrow. The argument, in peacetime, has much weight. The right or men to bargain and arrive at such terms as they agree upon is fundamental.

Runs Into Billions

BUT it is considered necessary to remember that credit creates money. A man or a corporation official goes to his bank and asks for a loan of, say, $5000. If the bank thinks the applicant's circumstances justify it, the loan is made. The applicant signs a slip of paper and the bank makes an entry on its books. Thereby is created $5000 which did not exist half an hour before.

By the aggregate of millions of such transactions, in banks and other fields of business, billions of dollars are created. Each single transaction is of concern only to the individual borrower and lender. But the aggregate of millions of transactions, adding billions to the quantity of credit money, is of concern to the country, decidedly.

The quantity of credit money now existing is very large and a very great danger, of which Congress is justified in taking account. Not merely is there justification, there is imperative need if inflation is to be checked.

The largest single cause of the collapse and depression in 1929 was an excessive quantity of credit money.

The excess could have been prevented from growing larger, and ought to have been, by the Federal Reserve Board. The board had authority (within limits) to raise interest rates; and raising interest rates is a way to check increase of credit, for when the interest rate goes higher people are less likely to borrow.

Within the board during 1925-'27 went on an argument about whether and when to raise interest rates and how soon would be soon enough. In the end, the board did not raise interest rates, but on the contrary lowered them. It followed a policy of what was called "easy money."

For following this policy the board had what seemed to it good reasons. The principal reason was to accommodate European countries. Those countries had been devastated by war, and their fiscal leaders thought that recovery would be helped by "easy money."

With interest rates made lower by the Federal Reserve Board, the quantity of credit money grew. When the quantity became so great that the danger was obvious, the board raised interest rates. But that attempted check was too late.

Feeds on Own Fat

AMONG other sad experiences, the Federal Reserve Board, and the country, learned what seems to be a rule of mass human nature. After increase of credit money has reached a certain stage, many persons and institutions and groups resist check of it. They carry on business with credit money and feel that the larger the amount of it the more business they will do.

Moreover, by that stage many persons have bought goods or lands or stocks on credit. They wish to sell these things at higher prices; and they feel, quite correctly, that if the increase of credit money were checked, prices would not go higher. And it is a fact that a check in the increase of credit money not only prevents prices from going higher but is likely to cause, for a time at least, lower prices.

At the present time we have not reached the stage at which a check upon the increase of credit money would be widely resented. Hence right now is the golden time for Congress to adopt the "aggressive use of credit controls" which the Council of Economic Advisers recommends.

The Gallup Poll

4-to-1 for 'Split Tax'

By George Gallup
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

IF AMERICAN voters had their way, all married couples in the country would be allowed to split their income in Federal tax returns.

At present, only 13 States and Hawaii have this privilege. Thus Federal income tax laws discriminate against citizens of 35 States having no such "community property" arrangement.

Washington observers believe that a Federal community property law is almost certain to be included in any tax reduction bill passed by Congress. Recent Institute polls show that the step would meet with overwhelming approval from voters throughout the country.

Last March, when only eight States had community property laws, and today, when five additional States have passed similar regulations, the Institute asked this question:

For purposes of income taxes, in 13 (eight) States a man and wife can divide their income equally between themselves to reduce their income tax. Should married couples in the other States be allowed to do the same?

The replies:

	Yes	No	No opin.
March, 1947	74%	10%	16%
TODAY	77	6	17

As would be expected, the sections of the population presumably better off financially favor a nationally uniform ruling more strongly than those with smaller incomes. This is shown by the following table:

	For Federal Community Law	Oppose	No Opinion
Professional and Business	84%	7%	9%
White Collar	81	7	12
Farmers	76	6	18
Manual Workers	74	5	21

Because the issue involves incomes of married couples, it is interesting to note that men are evidently more eager to have a Federal law than women. Eighty per cent of males favor the proposal and 75 per cent of women.

The issue is one of those from which little or no political capital can be made, because the fact that a voter is a Republican or Democrat makes very little difference in his opinion about community property tax laws.

An odd quirk is revealed by comparing the opinion of citizens who enjoy tax savings from split-income returns with those who do not. Residents of the 13 community-property States give a slightly higher vote to spreading the tax savings to the rest of the Nation than those who do not have the privilege.

Official estimates place the annual revenue loss to the Federal Government at 600 million dollars were the community property law applicable to all 48 States. Only married couples with more than $3300 income would benefit.

Eight States whose law derived from early Spanish and French laws have long had community property provisions: California, Nevada, Texas, Louisiana, New Mexico, Arizona, Idaho and Washington.

Five other States have passed laws to give their citizens the same benefit: Oklahoma, Oregon, Nebraska, Pennsylvania and Michigan.

Anyway, Whitman Lost Job

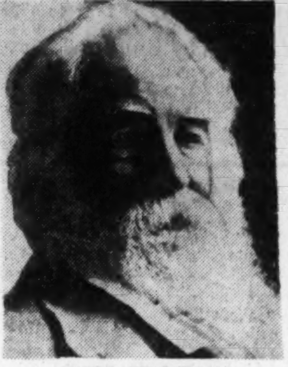
Was 'Leaves of Grass' Subversive in 1865?

By Robert Tate Allan
Post Reporter

THE MAN was dismissed, "under scandalous circumstances," from his clerkship in the Interior Department.

That sentence is not quoted from this morning's headlines about Government "security" firings. It dates back to the Lincoln Administration, and the "man" was Walt Whitman.

The official who fired the "Good Gray Poet" was James Harlan, Interior Secretary and widely-known Methodist lay preacher. Harlan's daughter, Mary, married Robert Todd Lincoln, the President's son.



WALT WHITMAN
. . . He just changed desks

The incident is told in William E. Barton's book, "Abraham Lincoln and Walt Whitman," published in 1928. Barton also wrote "The Life of Abraham Lincoln" and "The Women Lincoln Loved."

Immortal 'Offense'

AS BARTON tells the story, Walt Whitman was secure in the Interior Department until "a new king arose who knew not Joseph." That was Secretary Harlan, appointed by Lincoln March 8, 1865. Harlan had served two terms as Republican Senator from Iowa.

After Whitman's dismissal his friend, Judge William T. Otto, assistant to John P. Usher, Harlan's predecessor as Interior Secretary, went to Harlan for a showdown. While Harlan, according to Barton's book, insisted that he had discharged Whitman because of retrenchment in the department, Otto seems to have wormed enough out of Harlan to warrant the belief that Harlan had found a copy of "Leaves of Grass" in Walt's desk and thought it indecent.

J. Hubley Ashton, an assistant in the Attorney General's office and a warm supporter of Whitman, got him a Treasury Department clerkship.

Brilliant Defender

BUT while many of Whitman's sympathizers were satisfied because he had been transferred rather than discharged, William Douglas O'Connor was not.

O'Connor was a rugged, handsome Irishman who had befriended Whitman when he arrived in Washington penniless one December night in 1862. His wallet had been stolen on the trip from New York. O'Connor had been discharged from a Boston newspaper job because of his red-hot abolitionist views.

Taking up the cudgels in his friend's behalf, O'Connor circulated a pamphlet entitled "The Good Gray Poet."

"It told in remarkably effective rhetoric" (Barton wrote), "the story of the outrage that was said to have been inflicted upon Walt as a penalty for having published a book that offended the puritanical Secretary of the Interior."

Secretary Harlan seems to have borne the storm of criticism in silence, even against rumors that he had "borrowed" "Leaves of Grass" from Whitman's desk in his absence.

In 1913 the Iowa State Historical Society published a letter which could be construed as clearing Harlan of having discharged Whitman for personal reasons. It said, in part:

"It is, therefore, deemed needful only to say in relation to his removal that his chief—Hon. W. P. Dole, Commissioner of Indian Affairs, who was officially answerable to me for the work of his bureau—recommended it, on the ground that his services were not needed. And no other reason was ever assigned by my authority."

should be asked to expand the Canadian share of a common business. There is even talk, in this school, of working out a customs union.

But another school opposes this plan. The point made is that such a program, vigorously pursued, would throw Canada completely into the arms of the United States. A customs union they say, would lead inevitably to political union. Even if it did not, it would turn Canada into a satrapy of the United States, its independence of action in many fields sharply limited.

Our traditional policy has been to balance American pressures with British pressures, and vice versa. Now, they say, we are being asked—or are being driven—to accept American pressures once and for all. Our balance as a nation is being destroyed.

This school, therefore, hopes that future policy will include a fair degree of old-fashioned protectionism. We will try to produce at home goods which hitherto we have bought abroad. Such a policy, it is admitted, will involve a lower standard of living. But it holds the door open—once European recovery has been achieved—for a return to our traditional balancing of external pressures.

But the protectionist school overlooks the fact that Canada has tied itself to the Geneva Trade Charter, is pledged to the basic plan of the American Administration—a return to multilateral trade. How far can we go toward economic nationalism inside the terms of the Charter?

Nothing will be easy. Everything Canada can do involves sacrifice.

Oldsters Relish Them, Too

Shelves Sag With Children's Books

KEEPING up with the books for children and young adults is a full-time occupation these days. The book stores are loaded with handsome juvenilia. The children's book number of Publishers Weekly this autumn ran to nearly 200 pages—every page crammed with titles of new books or established classics.

My own favorites on the autumn list are "Miss Kelly," by Elizabeth Sanxay Holding (Morrow), and "The King Gives a Party," by Samuel C. Webster (Holt). Both fall into the category of books children enjoy but adults relish on a more profound level. The brand of whimsy in "Miss Kelly" is reminiscent of Saki at his best. Another in this category is Robert Lawson's quietly hilarious story of a mole, "Mr. Twigg's Mistake" (Little Brown).

Ben Hecht, in collaboration with his 4-year-old daughter, has fashioned a cat story illustrated by Peggy Bacon entitled "The Cat That Jumped Out of the Story" (Winston). It should please 3 to 8 year olds.

The Maud and Miska Petersham books on "Food," "Clothes," "Houses" and "Transportation" (Winston) offer a pleasant introduction to mankind's oldest, most essential needs. A score of books deal with airplanes and air travel—the new frontier of romance for boys. Books about horses and their young masters continue to be favorites. Two good new ones are "Son of the Black Stallion," by Walter Farley (Random) and "Misty of Chincoteague," by Marguerite Henry and Wesley Dennis (Rand McNally). Both are Junior Literary Guild selections.

Two books that teach good will and quietly suggest racial understanding while telling exciting stories are "The Lost Violin," by Clara Ingram Judson (Houghton Mifflin), and "Anchor Man," by Jesse Jackson (Harper). The first deals with a Bohemian family in Chicago in the 1890s. The second shows white members of a school team defending the rights of the black star player.

One thing for parents to remember is that the "comic" magazines are still flourishing, still glorifying violence. No child who is given good reading material will fall into the habit of poring over these packages of graphic insanity. Start early by reading aloud to your youngsters. Get them copies of "Treasure Island" and "Tom Sawyer," "The Yearling," "The Wind in the Willows," "Alice," "Lorna Doone." Give them the taste for good prose, good characterization, civilized humor. Share Dickens with them.

I have never heard of a juvenile delinquent coming from a home where parents practice the old-fashioned custom of reading aloud to the family.

Vengeance Overtakes Gossipy Spinister

THE VOICE OF THE CORPSE. By Max Murray. (Farrar, Straus; $2.50.).

It's in rural England, and final vengeance catches up with Angela Pewsey, the old maid busybody and gossip who has been savoring the ultimate pathologic joy of her vacation via poison pen letters. Mr. Murray, an Australian, shows in his first mystery book an amiable talent for amusing dialogue and preesnts a double-take wind-up in case you think the solution too easy.

Book's Theme Is Psychology For Children

THE principles of child psychology have been used in a children's songbook called My Picture Book of Songs (M. A. Donohue & Co., Chicago, $2.50), by three Utah women, Alene Dalton, Myriel Ashton and Erla Young. Carrying the tenents of the subject beyond the confines of teaching teachers to teach the young, the lyricist, composer and artist have applied them to songs designed to capture the fun of children's experiences.

The basic idea of the authors has been to do it in a form which will appeal to children from 5 to 10 because they can understand and use it. The songs, for instance, are written within one octave. The illustrations by Erla Young are done in the four primary colors.

The tunes and rhymes epitomize in a child's terms his great experiences like owning a puppy or a cat, playing in the leaves, making snowmen, decorating the Christmas tree. Several are educational or instructive. There is one about Columbus, another about Washington and Lincoln, and a few about the joys of helping mother, being good, even enjoying a picture book quietly.

AUGUSTUS CAESAR'S WORLD
44 B. C. to 14 A. D.
Another fascinating cross-section of history by GENEVIEVE FOSTER, author of "George Washington's World"

What was the world like 1947 years ago, just before and after Jesus was born? What was going on in Britain, in Gaul, India, China, across the sea among the Mayans and the Indians of Peru? What were the beliefs and customs of that ancient world? In the sparkling text and illustrations, exciting events and well-known characters come to life . . . Anthony and Cleopatra . . Herod . . Virgil . . Hillel, and many others.
This is not only a thrilling history, but is an important contribution toward understanding the varying beliefs and customs in the world today.

The Magazine Rack

By Katharine Graham

THE distant sound of drums beating for presidential candidates grows louder. This week's heaviest thumps come from Kenneth G. Crawford's "Eisenhower Can Be Drafted" in the Saturday Evening Post and Look's "Stassen Takes His Stand."

What it boils down to is this, Crawford says: Eisenhower is not a candidate today in the sense that Harold Stassen is. "But if drafted by a convention, obviously speaking for a political party and for a large segment of the American people, he will listen to the proposition. In other words he can be had."

GEN. IKE

Although the General has not yet affiliated himself with the Republican Party, the evidence is persuasive, Crawford thinks. His admirers hope he will declare himself at the earliest opportunity. "Eisenhower thinks of himself as a moderate conservative," says Crawford, "explaining that he always associates this designation with his mother, who 'conserved the vegetables, but not the weeds.'"

His stated positions are few. As Chief of Staff, Crawford points out, he has supported universal military training, merger of the armed forces, sale of arms to Latin-American countries and Canada, and appropriations for UNRRA. Although he told a House committee after the war that "Russian policy is based on friendship between Russia and the United States," he shifted to a "get tough" policy even before it became official.

From his general attitude, Crawford thinks he would have opposed tax reduction last year as did Truman, but that he would have signed the Taft-Hartley Labor Bill.

* * * *

IN a review of Stassen's book, "Where I Stand," Look praises the candidate for tackling the most controversial issues, including labor, taxes, housing and public health, and staking his political future on being right.

Stassen's stands are summarized. On labor, he thinks the Taft-Hartley bill is good and should stand as is with three exceptions where he thinks it goes too far and should be amended.

Capital, he thinks, is taxed too heavily for the good of our economic system. The Federal Government should start a mass house-building program through private contractors and the units should be sold for private ownership. On health, Stassen says immediate needs should be filled with Government, State and private aid. Future national action should be based on various Statewide experiments.

Look has also surveyed the world food situation and urges the country to do some tough thinking on this score. We cannot continue to eat as we have, the editors point out, and continue to export. If we want to maintain bread rations in free countries, we must make up our minds to consume 15% less milk, 13% less meat and 18% less poultry and eggs.

WILLIE SNOW ETHERIDGE, who joined her husband Mark in Greece last year when he was serving on the United Nations Balkan Investigation Committee, met and interviewed Queen Frederika. The story, taken from Mrs. Etheridge's forthcoming book, "It's Greek to Me," appears at the back of Look, entitled, "The Queen of Greece Tells Her Love Story."

* * * *

NEWSWEEK reports the remarkable success story of Henry Ehrlich, who lived here before the war as correspondent for the Boston Herald. After leaving the Army, Ehrlich went to work for Look as a reporter and last week was promoted to managing editor, succeeding the late Jack Guenther, killed in the Utah plane crash.

* * * *

"WHAT Makes Sammy Baugh?" asks Bob Addie, Times-Herald sports columnist, in Sportfolio. Addie tells the story of the Redskins' famous 33-year-old passer, including his attempt to become a baseball player made after his first season with the Redskins. Half the $200,000 he made after his return to football has gone "into taxes and into Texas," says Sammy, who has built up a ranch in off-season months.

SLINGIN' SAM

"When I find I'm taking too much punishment, I'll quit," says Baugh, "but I'll throw as long as they let me and as long as I can."

* * * *

GEOFFREY HELLMAN describes his wartime OSS spy training in the New Yorker. Sent off to one of several schools for espionage and sabotage run near here by the Office of Strategic Services, Hellman relates his utter confusion at trying to be someone he wasn't in the company of several others learning the same thing.

As John Martin, the author was required to go to Baltimore, get a job in an essential war industry, establish an alibi for a given hour, and draw a map of a specific intelligence area. Hellman was obviously never cut out to be a spy.

* * * *

COL. ROBERT R. McCORMICK, publisher of the Chicago Tribune, recently visited Tokyo and walked in the garden with Emperor Hirohito. "Reported the Colonel," says Time's press section, "whose occasional sarcasm and constant, majestic deadpan sometimes pass muster for a sense of humour: 'The Emperor said he hoped in the future the relations between Japan and the United States would be as warm as they have been in the past.'"

Four Authors To Speak at Next Post Luncheon

Four authors will discuss themselves and their books at The Washington Post's book and author luncheon at 1 p. m. November 25 at the Statler Hotel.

They are James Ramsey Ullman, author of "The White Tower" and "Kingdom of Adventure: Everest"; Corinne Griffith, silent screen star who wrote "My Life With the Redskins"; Edith Sulkin, whose travels in Europe are recorded in "Continent in Limbo"; and Edward Steichen, famous photographer, whose pictorial work during the war earned him the Distinguished Service Medal and whose book, "Blue Ghost," about the U. S. S. Lexington, has recently been published. Tickets, $3, are now on sale at book stores.

Coffin Corner

By W. G. Rogers

TOO MANY WOMEN. By Rex Stout. (Viking; $2.50.).

Nero Wolfe's assistant, Archie, is turned loose in New York to unravel the hit-run death of a young efficiency expert whose supervisor suspects murder. Well he's right, and then there's another, and finally the ponderous orchid fancier directs solution from afar as cops run in circles. The standard blueplate with the expected trimmings.

POLITICS IS MURDER. By Edwin Lanham. (Harcourt, Brace, $2.50.).

A temporary New York City councilman manages to make a single appearance in legislative session before being stabbed fatally with a samurai sword. Then a stuffed tomcat, demised much longer, disappears from a barroom. This is of the tough-talking genre of mysteries with politicians, dizzy dames, Mickey Finns and flip talk until comes the solution.

ONE MORE UNFORTUNATE. By Edgar Lustgarten. (Scribner's; $2.50.).

A Soho pickup gets herself killed in particularly bloody manner, and the law's eagles proceed to build their case against the respectable young married man who became involved with her. The story centers about the trial, with flashbacks and side glances to the big shots and little pips tied to the assassination. Maybe the surprise ending will leave you, as does the potboiler writing, a trifle tired.

Might Call This Henty Plus Sex

SIR PAGAN. By Henry J. Colyton (Creative Age. 376 pp. $3).

One might describe the appeal of this gusty novel of the first crusade as Henty plus sex. While not as lucidly written as Henty's derring-do (packaged for boys), it has that "manly tone" for which he was famous.

The author is not a stylist, but he has done a great deal of solid research in the history of the era.

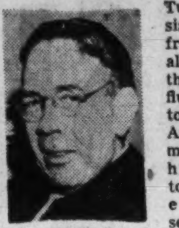
'A Book to Cherish'

DeVoto Again Looks to the West

By Sterling North

ACROSS THE WIDE MISSOURI. By Bernard DeVoto. (Houghton Mifflin. 483 pp. $10.).

BERNARD DEVOTO stands an excellent change of redirecting the entire emphasis of American history. Building upon F. J. Turner's thesis that the frontier has always been the most influential factor in shaping American democracy, he has managed to make several Eastern seaboard historians look positively silly in their academic and provincial naivete.



DE VOTO

Actually there have been few historians who have properly evaluated the immense importance of the fur trade in shaping the evolution of our Nation. Outstanding among these are Francis Parkman, Hiram Martin Chittenden and Bernard DeVoto.

Chittenden's "The American Fur Trade of the Far West," first published in 1902, is still the definite work on the subject, although much new material has been unearthed since.

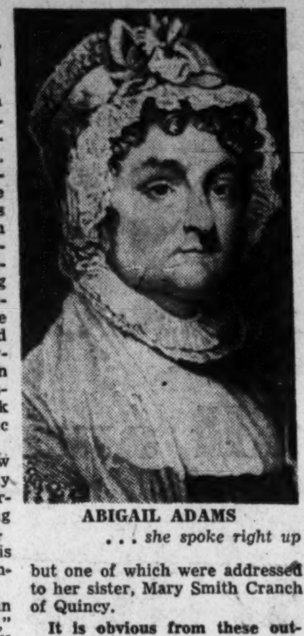
Chittenden named the top decade of the mountain men such as Jim Bridger and Kit Carson as 1830-1840. DeVoto narrows this to 1833-1838, after which the trade in beaver pelts fell off as rapidly as the vogue for beaver hats which had given it economic stability.

This volume would be of first importance even had it not been illustrated with the on-the-spot sketches and watercolors of Alfred Jacob Miller. They are a fitting accompaniment to DeVoto's vivid prose and make the book a thing to cherish.

NEW LETTERS OF ABIGAIL ADAMS, 1788-1801. Edited with an introductory by Stewart Mitchell. Houghton Mifflin. 281 pp., $5.

ABIGAIL ADAMS, wife of the second President of the United States and mother of the sixth, seems to have been a witty, opinionated, literate and charming woman, who, however, must occasionally have seemed a tyrant to her servants and a bigot to her husband's political opponents. Certainly no one could accuse the first mistress of the White House of failing to speak her mind.

Mitchell, director of the Massachusetts Historical Society, has selected for publication 141 of the 250 hitherto unpublished letters of Mrs. John Adams, all but one of which were addressed to her sister, Mary Smith Cranch of Quincy.



ABIGAIL ADAMS
. . . she spoke right up

It is obvious from these outspoken letters that Abigail shared virtually all the prejudices of her unbending husband. She detested Hamilton, also Jefferson, whom she considered a visionary in government and "no believer in the Christian system." She is, of course, eager for the passage of the alien and sedition bills, distrusting not only foreigners but non-New Englanders as well.

She found the natives of Philadelphia lacking in morals, and censored even Federalist women who showed "more of the bosom" than a decent matron should. From Philadelphia in 1791 comes the sad lament about servant girls: "not a virtuous woman amongst them all and most of them drunkards." Abigail believed the Philadelphia of 1797 to be "as vile and debauched as the City of London, nay more so . . ."

Abigail had read rather widely for a woman of her day. In her letters we find many quotations from (or references to) the Bible, Shakespeare, Milton and Sterne, with occasional references to Pope, Mrs. Thrale, La Fontaine and Edward Moore.

Of the cities in which she lived during these years, Mrs. Adams liked raw young Washington least, Philadelphia only slightly better. She loved Richmond Hill and admired New York City. But her greatest concern and affection were for her home in Quincy, her beloved house and garden. Today this house, known as the Adams Mansion National Historic Site, is administered by the National Park Service.

ROSEANNA M'COY. By Alberta Hannum. Holt. 256 pp. $2.75.

THERE are said to be only seven plots in all fiction, and one of the best of these is the Romeo and Juliet story—love between the offspring of two feuding families.

MISS HANNUM

Substitute the Hatfields of West Virginia for the Montagues, the McCoys of Kentucky for the Capulets, and you have the simple architecture of Alberta Hannum's beautifully written, tragic little novel.

Mrs. Hannum knows the essentials of the Scotch-Irish, Appalachian culture. She handles the poetic dialect with restraint and dignity. Few writers since Elizabeth Madox Roberts have been able to picture a hill girl with the fidelity which this writer brings to the emotions and aspirations of Roseanna McCoy. Her prose is cool and clear.

The climax of the novel narrowly avoids melodrama, but is suitably tragic and completely convincing.

Gentle Book Of Dowson's Prose Issued

THE STORIES OF ERNEST DOWSON. Edited by Mark Longaker. University of Pennsylvania Press. 122 pp. $2.

ERNEST DOWSON, who died in 1900 at the age of 33, is best remembered for "Cynara" and other exquisite lyrics.

He is one of the few poets, however, who cared more for his prose than his verse, and this collection of 14 short stories and prose poems brought together by Mark Longaker deserves its place alongside Dowson's poems.

The poems and prose should be inseparable, for they complement each other in their intangible grace and sadness. Despite the passing years, the stories retain the power to evoke emotion. To read them is to be enveloped in a feeling of sadness, of nostalgia for other days.

That Dowson's work should be pervaded with sadness is, of course, understandable enough. He came of a family in declining finances. His parents were tuberculous; his mother committed suicide, and both Ernest and his brother were doomed to early deaths by tuberculosis. Added to that, an unhappy love affair preoccupied most of Ernest's mature years.

It is little wonder, therefore, as Walter Pater, a contemporary, said of the Renaissance, that love and death were his themes, and his work as slim as his life was brief.

Boswell's Defense

THE HOODED HAWK, OR THE CASE OF MR. BOSWELL, by D. B. Wyndham Lewis. (Longmans, Green, $4).

In this biography, Lewis comes to Bozzy's defense, and with the help of the (American) Isham papers presents a witty, colorful and strong argument for his client.

He was certainly no more convivial than his times obliged him to be; he was pleasant company at a prim teatable or in a coffee house.

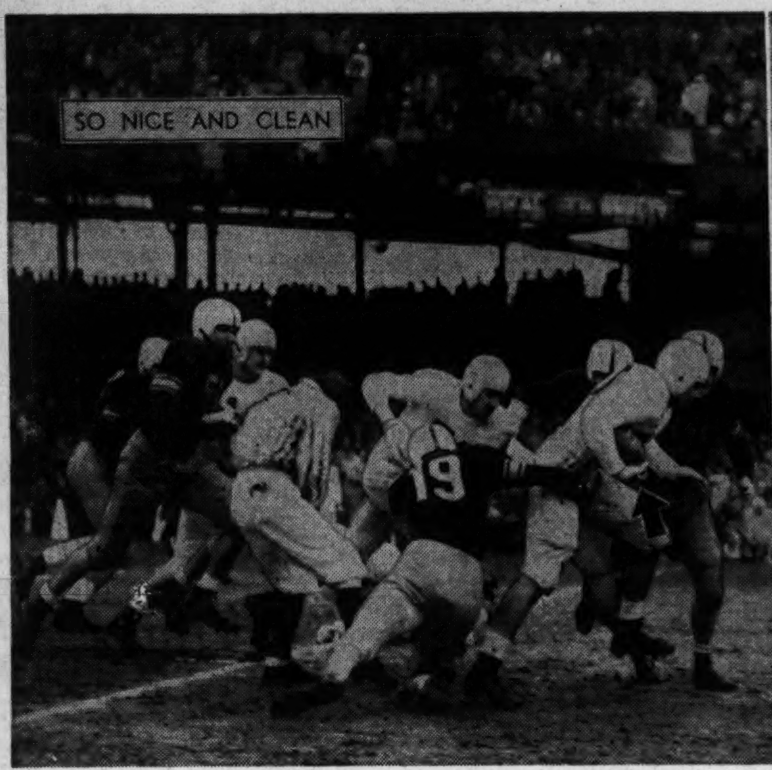
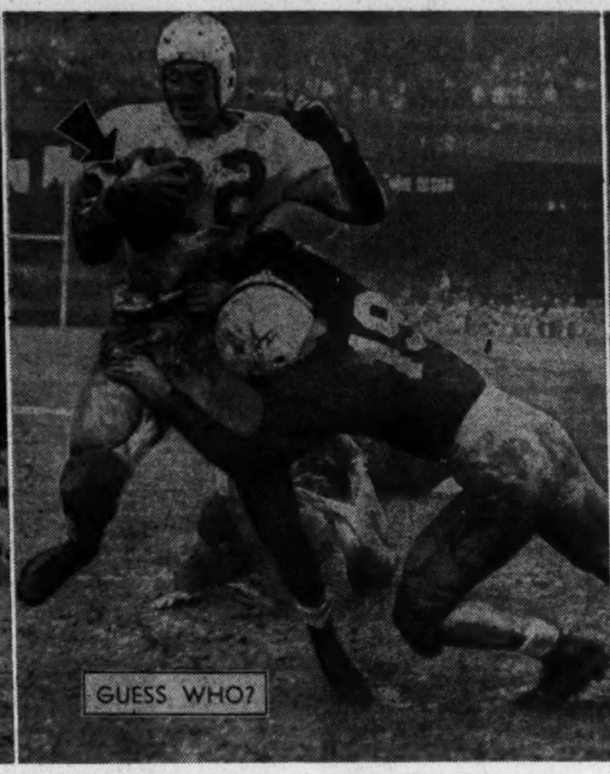
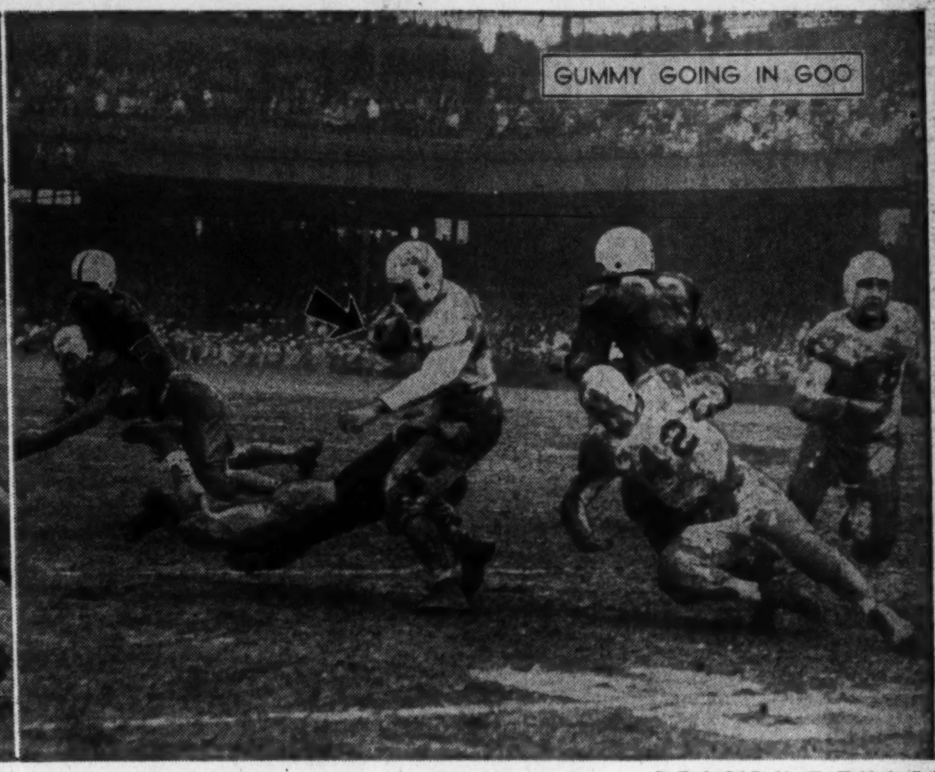
Army Ties Penn; Terps, Navy Beaten



WALT PUPA OF TA HEELS, GOES TO WORK ON FIRST PLAY OF GAME



CHARLIE JUSTICE TACKLED BY MARYLAND'S JOE TUCKER



JUSTICE AGAIN BEING BROUGHT DOWN BY VIC TURYN

By Charles Del Vecchio—The Washington Post

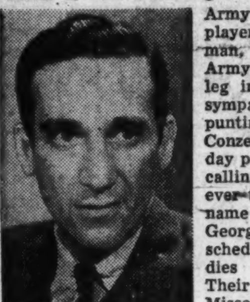
These pictures tell the story of the muddy conditions under which the Maryland-North Carolina game was played yesterday at Griffith Stadium. The Tar Heels had better traction and won, 19 to 0.

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

To Whom It May Concern:

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 15.—Penn had not only the advantages of weight, height and speed over Army's football team today but, ironically enough, the edge in military experience as well . . . seven of Penn's starting line-up were vetreans of World War II. Army coaches like to tell the West Point players of the courage of another West Point man, Col. Red Reeder, now attached to the Army athletic department. After losing a leg in the European theater, Reeder told sympathetic surgeons, "Well, it wasn't my punting foot, anyway" . . . Coach Jimmy Conzelman of the Chicago Cards the other day paid tribute to Bill Dudley of the Lions, calling him "one of the six greatest backs ever to play football. Regretably, he didn't name the other five . . . Navy is dropping Georgia Tech and Penn State from its 1948 schedule but you could hardly say the Middies are replacing them with breathers. Their new opponents will be Michigan and Missouri . . . The Cleveland Browns who have been averaging home crowds of 55,000 this season, have sold out their park for tomorrow's game with the San Francisco Forty-Niners, and 5000 standees will boost the crowd to 75,000 . . . When they play Ray Flaherty's New York Yankees at Yankee Stadium later in the month, a new record for pro football attendance will be set.



POVICH

JOE LOUIS' TRAINER, Mannie Seamon, has banned the champion's favorite recreation, golf and bowling, during training for his December fight with Jersey Joe Walcott . . . Those two sports, he says, are inconsistent with loose-muscle action . . . One of Louis' sparring partners, Bob Garner, says: "Joe hits harder with a left jab than the ordinary fighter does with a right cross" . . . Alexandria, Va., with a swollen population of 84,000, has been offered a franchise in the Piedmont League, but can't have it because of the encroachment of the territorial rights of the Washington Club . . . The Redskins, who play at Detroit tomorrow, have never lost to a Detroit team in the six games they have played since the Skins moved to Washington in 1937 . . . Television Announcer Bob Wolf is being yoo-hooed by Uline Arena fans at the Capital's basketball games. Before every game he has to apply pancake make-up in full view of the crowd . . . It was a notable week in pro football, lacking even one challenge by All-America Conference Commissioner Jonas Ingram, who has been consistently snubbed by the National Football League . . . When Lu Gambino was starring for the Cicero, (Ill.) High School team, he was affectionately known as Dumbo Gambino.

GEORGE STIRNWEISS of the Yankees admitted the other day that he had a recent salary conference with General Manager George Weiss, but added, "That's off the record" . . . He forgot he was on the air, on Steve Douglas' radio program, when he said it . . . The Nats drafted Forrest Thompson, southpaw pitcher, from Atlanta last week, recalling that the last pitcher they drafted from Atlanta for $7500 was an excellent investment. His name was Dutch Leonard . . . The Pacific Coast League's claim to major league status got a jolt last week when big league clubs deemed only five Coast leaguers worthy of being drafted among the 26 they got from the minors . . . Baseball Commissioner Chandler went far out on a limb with his decree that any club or club official who signs a high school player will be suspended for a year. He took the action despite doubt of his authority to interpret the rule as he sees fit.

Paul Douglas, former sports announcer before he became a leading man on Broadway, now seems headed for the title role in the upcoming movie of the life of Babe Ruth . . . The American League treasury was so swollen last year that the clubs got a rebate on the league's share of the gate receipts from the daily games.

SIX BROOKLYN FOOTBALL players were so air-sick on the chartered plane that took them to Cleveland for last week's game with the Browns they returned East by train, at their own expense . . . In the first football game ever played by a Penn team, the contest with Princeton in 1874, Penn players took the field attired in white cricket suits . . . Sid Feder, the Associated Press' top sports writer for a decade and war correspondent, is now in partnership with Fred Corcoran, in the promotion of Babe Didrikson and Ted Williams enterprises . . . Comedian Henny Youngman, dining with Didrikson recently, was chatting about his own golf game. "I broke 70 yesterday—that's a lot of club," he said . . . Buddy Young, used chiefly as a decoy by the Yankees all season, is now being groomed as a pass thrower . . . Billy Foxx, kayo conqueror of Jake Lamotta, won't fight Lightheavy Champ Gus Lesnevich until summer when they will draw a half-million dollar gate . . . Johnny Lujack is on the draft list of the Chicago Bears, but any All-America Conference team that outbids the Bears can sign him.

Celtics Hand Caps Second Straight Loss

The Boston Celtics defeated the Washington Capitols, 73 to 69, at Uline Arena last night. It was the second straight loss for the Caps, last year's Basketball Association of America Eastern champions.

The teams were tied, 40 to 40, at halftime.

TechUpset by 'Bama, 14-7

Birmingham, Ala., Nov. 15 (AP).—Alabama bounced Georgia Tech from the list of Nation's perfect-record teams today, 14-7, as Harry Gilmer turned in one of his brighter pitching performances.

A capacity crowd of 35,000 watched Gilmer pass the favored Yellow Jackets dizzy in the first half, when he cmopleted seven of eight tosses. He had five straight without a miss to carry the Tide 57 yar ds on a first-period 69-yard scoring drive.

After scoring the first touchdown himself on a plunge, he htrew two more passes to End Rebel Steiner in the second period, the final for 6 yards and a tally to climax a 22-yard scoring movement. He completed 11 of 13 passes for the day.

Georgia Tech Rallies

Georgia Tech, seeking its eighth straight victory, rallied in the second half with two freshmen backs, Bob McCoy and Red Patton, carrying the offensive brunt. After repulsing the Tid etwice in the shadow of the goal, the Jackets drove 85 yards to a score with McCoy going over from the 3. Allen Bowen converted to keep alive Tech's chances for a tie.

With 12 minutes remaining after their drive, the Jackets roared 58 yards to the Tide 36 in a final, desperate offensive, but lost the ball there on downs. In Alabama's first scoring drive, Gilmer passed four yards to Bill Cadenhead, 17 to Steiner, nine to Hugh Morrow, 22 to Cadenhead and eight to Jim Cain. The last went to the Tech five. A penalty put it on the one, and Gilmer knifed over. Morrow, placement expert for the Tide, converted.

Tide Recovers Fumble

A break in the second period gave the Tide the ball on the Tech 22 when Mike Cassidy recovered Dinky Bowen's fumble on a punt return. Gilmer threw to Steiner for 13 yards and, on the fourth down, Gilmre passed six yards to Steiner in the end zone. Morrow's placement made it 14-0 at half time.

Tech came out in white uniforms for the third period, having played the opening half in blue shirts and gold pants. The Jackets tried an on-side kick but the maneuver backfired. Tech was penalized 15 yards and Alabama was given the ball on the Tech 40 after it appeared Tech had successfully executed the tricky kick at the Alabama 45.

Maryland Wilts in 4th, Tarheels Win, 19-0; Cadet Line, Mud Hold Penn to 7-7 Deadl

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 15.—The Penn football team that was rated a seven-point favorite over Army had to scrounge for the tying touchdown today to avert its first defeat of the season and achieve a 7-7 deadlock.

Before 78,205 fans who sat in an afternoon-long drizzle, the Quakers were hobbled by a wet field and the militant defenses of the Army eleven.

For the first time this season, Penn trailed in a football game—victims of an Army touchdown early in the second quarter when the West Pointers in their one surge into Penn territory went all the way from their own 12.

Stuart Scores From 10

Bob Stuart, 175-pound Army halfback, capped that 78-yard drive with a spectacular 10-yard sprint through Penn's middle on a delayed buck, and Capt. Joe Steffy kicked the extra point.

But there was fury in the Penn team that received the succeeding kickoff, and in 10 plays from their own 33 the Quakers scored. A 3-yard buck by Sub-back Ray Dooney was the clincher, and Ed Lawless booted the tying point.

Every other scoring threat of the Quakers was turned back by Army. Penn, discouraged by its early attempts at sweep plays when Tony Minisi and Bob Deuber found the footing treacherous, reverted to power plays and passes.

Penn Pass Falls

At the finish it was Penn pounding goalward in a last desperate attempt to win the game, and marching from its own 20 to the Army 30 on spectacular running plays by Minisi and Schneider.

A roughing penalty against Kuyk of Army gave Penn time for one more play before the final gun, and from the Army 30 the Quakers spurned a field goal attempt with Evans' long pass falling incomplete on the goal line.

Penn won the statistics clearly with 15 first downs to Army's 6, but the Cadets scarcely trifled with passes, throwing only six and completing three. Penn's passes posed no great threat to the Cadets who intercepted 3 of Penn's 20 heaves, of which only 7 were completed.

The first Penn threat came to

Notre Dame Held, 26-19

Evanston, Ill., Nov. 15 (AP).—The dogged, mud-splashed Northwestern Wildcats, humiliated by five defeats in seven starts, almost made a myth of Notre Dame's football invincibility today, but the desperate fighting Irish shook off the surprise for a 26 to 19 victory, their seventh in a row.

Playing on a soggy field in a drizzle, the Wildcats marched 81 yards for one touchdown, turned a pass interception into another, and then sent a sellout throng of 48,000 to their feet in the last quarter when third-string Peewee Day filched Frank Tripucka's aerial and pranced 18 yards for a third marker.

Northwestern fumbled the ball seven times, and lost it on four occasions. Two of the bobbles were recovered by the great Notre Dame tackle, George Connor, at opportune times.

Irish Rush 184 Yards

The Irish, who netted 284 yards by rushing while holding Northwestern to 49, passed to three touchdowns and drove 60 yards on th eground for the fourth. Only twice did they fumble away the slick ball, and lost it once. That time came late in the final period when Terry Brennan let it escape from him on the 3 yard line after the Irish had marched 50 yards. End Stan Gorski pounced on it to end the threat.

Four players scored for Notre Dame as the Irish rolled up a 20-6

At the outset of the first quarter Fullback John Panelli brushed 5 yards around end for the touchdown. Center Bill Walsh then recovered Tom Worthington's bobble on the Northwestern 18, and Johnny Lujack, after failing on a series of passes, hit Brennan on a fourth down aerial for another score.

In the final minutes of the opening period, Art Murakowski stole Lujack's pass and raced 22 yards to the Irish 20. On the first play of the second stanza, Don Burson passed 13 yards to Don Stonessifer, Maryland's victory balloon, pricked heretofore only by Duke, was exploded in full view of 22,151 Griffith Stadium onlookers yesterday as North Carolina made the most of three breaks to triumph, 19-0.

The bruising Tar Heels, repulsed twice within the Terrapin 15-yard line, packed all of their scoring in seven minutes of the final period, two of their touchdowns stemming from Maryland fumbles and the third on a 32-yard pass interception.

Bogged down by the gooey turf and a persevering, ball-hawking Tar Heel defense, the Terrapins were unable to muster a single offensive threat all day.

Terps Stopped at N. C. 44

Their deepest penetration was to the North Carolina 44 which they reached twice. In their other venture into Tar Heel territory, they got only to the visitors' 45, much to the dismay of the spectators who sat through the afternoon drizzle hoping to see a Charlie Justice-Lu Gambino offensive show.

But the performance failed to materialize insofar as "Bambino"

Gambino was concerned. Marked from the second he made his first appearance, the hulking pointmaker was able to make only 18 yards in 13 tries.

Justice, directing the power-laden Carolina single-wing, averaged almost six yards a crack the 21 times he ran with the ball. But the offensive Oscar goes to Fullback Walt Pupa, a human battering ram, who scored Carolina's first touchdown.

Pupa Big Ground Gainer

Slashing through the middle, Pupa ate up 135 hard yards in 32 trips through the Maryland line and almost carried North Carolina to a touchdown the first time the Chapel Hill crew got their hands on the ball.

In the final analysis, however, it wasn't the 294 yards that Carolina gained that led to Maryland's downfall. The Terps brought disaster on themselves, fumbling seven times and losing possession of the ball on all except once..

Despite the slippery going, the Terps refused to junk their tricky laterals and fancy handoffs for a more conservative attack. Twice this cost them touchdowns.

All of their heroic defensive work went for naught two minutes after the final quarter got under way.

Having repulsed a Carolina touchdown bid on the 15, the Terps had scarcely cought their breaths before Carolina had the ball again, and this time they weren't to be halted.

Quarterback Viv Turyn, on the first play, fumbled on the 17-yard line and Guard Bill Wardle pounced on the slippery football like a hawk.

Pupa carried to the 4 on two smashes through the middle and on his third trip he cracked over for the tally. Bob Cox's kick was

Michigan Wins, 40-6

Madison, Wis., Nov. 15 (AP).—Michigan's Wolverines clinched the Big Nine title and a Rose Bowl trip today with a crushing 40-6 triumph over Wisconsin in a sleet-swept battle before a capacity crowd of 47,000 at Camp Randall Stadium.

The Wolverines scored two touchdowns against the outclassed Badgers in the opening period and then coasted.

The triumph almost assured Coach Fritz Crisler of his first perfect season in 10 Wolverine years with only downtrodden Ohio State remaining on the regular schedule.

Michigan, ranked the Nation's No. 2 team behind Notre Dame in the Associated Press poll, scored in every period, adding one touchdown in the second and third quarters and two in the final stanza.

Wisconsin, which confronted the Wolverines with three wins and a tie in conference play, struck for its only touchdown in the second period when reserve Halfback Jim Embach smashed across from the 6.

Halfback Bob Chappuis, Michigan's outstanding candidate for All-America laurels, uncorked three touchdown passes, two of them surprise short flips to Quarterback Howard Yerges and another to End Dick Rifenburg.

Penn State Whips Tars

By Jack Walsh
Post Reporter

Baltimore, Nov. 15.—Penn State proved conclusively that all its power isn't on paper, scoring an impressive 20-to-7 victory over Navy here today in rain-drenched Municipal Stadium before 25,000.

Thus the Nittany Lions roared to their eighth successive victory and remained the East's only unbeaten, untied major power.

Navy, however, didn't submit weakly, and gave the unofficial statistical champs more than an anxious moment or two, plus a few dents in the figure department.

The luckless Middies, in fact, amassed 11 first downs to State's 5 and rushed for 112 yards. Seven previous opponents made only a total of 63 yards on the ground against State.

Penn State was doing some rolling of its own, though, and rightly deserved triumph with two long runs for scores and another that set up the third touchdown.

Jeff Durkota, 205-pound senior from Colver, Pa., scored the first and third touchdowns on dazzling runs of 48 and 42 yards. And a guy named Joe, Larry Joe, slipped away for the day's longest gain, a 59-yard broken-field dash that set up State's other score.

Middies Score on Pass

Navy also made its tally on a spectacular play. After Durkota's first run, the Middies struck back to tie on a 46-yard pass play, Bob Horne to speedy Al McCully.

On a day much too wet and miserable even for ducks, the battle see-sawed for the first 12 minutes. At that point, a scoreless tie bet wouldn't have been a bad one.e

Navy did surprise early in the game, though, with some substantial yardage. Bob Horne threw a pass to End Art Markel that was good for 20 yards and Al McCully took a lateral another 20 yards for a first down on State's 32.

Durkota Breaks Loose

The Middies' march stalled and Reaves Baysinger got off a short punt that found a puddle to its liking, stopping dead on the 1-foot line.

State got out of that hole and later Joe Cologne got off a brilliant quick-kick from his 11 that went all the way to Navy's 23.

Bobby Williams carried the next Navy boot to midfield and set the stage for the first of Durkota's exploits.

Apparently unhampered by the Championship High School Game Pairs Unbeaten Central and Tech, Nov. 28

The meeting of Central and McKinley at Griffith Stadium November 28 will bring together unbeaten teams the first time in many years in the Interhigh championship game.

The year's biggest high school game will be played at night under the auspices of the Board of Education and The Washington Post.

Receipts will be shared by the Community Chest and the eight Interhighs. The high schools will receive $10,000 for the purchase of athletic equipment with the remainder of the receipts going to the Community Chest.

Tickets have been priced at $1.00, $1.50 and $2.00. The public sale will open Tuesday or Wednesday with all seats reserved. Tickets will be available at Griffith Stadium, the Fairway Sport Shop and the lobby of The Washington Post. High school students holding athletic cards will be admitted for 25 cents.

Clark Griffith will make the ball park available free of charge as he did for the championship game last year, which contributed approximately $18,000 to Children's Hospital.

The teams will have nearly two weeks in which to prepare for the season's finale.

McKinley has been established as a favorite to defeat Central in view of Tech's more decisive victories over mutual opponents. McKinley is unscored on as well as unbeaten in Interhigh games and ran up a 39-0 score Friday on Calvin Coolidge, last year's champion.

Tarheels' Single Wing Gets Nod—at Least on Muddy Day

By Bus Ham
Post Reporter

GRIFFITH STADIUM, on a dreary, drizzling Saturday afternoon—This game should provide a study in the virtues of the single-wing formation, as taught by North Carolina's Carl Snavely, and the Split-T, as coached by Maryland's Jim Tatum.

Before the kickoff, the field is soggy and slick. With Griffith Stadium accommodating professional, college, high school and sandlot games, a tarpaulin to protect the entire gridiron right up to game time has become a "must."

The results of this game will go well beyond victory or defeat for the Tar Heels or Terrapins. It is a test for big-time college football in Washington.

true an the Tar Heels were ahead, 7-0.

Two minutes later the Tar Heels had done it again and once more it was a fumble that opened the door for them. This time it was Gambino who fumbled, dropping a lateral from Turyn on the second play from scrimmage following the kickoff.

Four Tar Heels dived for the ball and Tackle Larry Klosterman came up with it on the Maryland 11. Once again Justice called on Pupa, and the big boy's first effort was good for two yards.

Then Justice took over himself, skirting his own left end to travel the nine yards for the second touchdown.

Secret Play Backfires

He narrowly missed going out of bounds on the goal line. It was so close that the Terps protested to the officials that he had run over the boundary stripe, but the officials thought otherwise. Cox missed his try for the extra point, just as he did on the touchdown which followed five minutes later.

Employing their "secret" play—a shift from the "T" formation into a double wing, Turyn launched a Maryland passing attack that clicked—for Carolina.

Two tosses failed, and the third, intended for End George Simler, wound up in the arms of freshman Wingback Fred Sherman, who made a snoestring catch on the 32-yard line and scooted over untouched for the final marker.

The defeat was a tough blow for Maryland to stomach as this was the one they wanted to win. They weren't conceded much of a chance, but after they had held the Tarheels for three quarters, a scoreless tie would have seemed a just verdict for their tremendous, spirited efforts.

Carolina Too Strong

But this Carolina team, just beginning to roll, was simply too much for them. Even in the sloppy, slippery turf of yesterday, they showed they were a powerhouse.

The game wasn't two minutes old before Pupa and Justice on nine tries inside the tackles and guards churned their way 54 yards to the Maryland 11.

A holding penalty set them back 15 yards and on the next move they lost the ball, only temporarily, as Center Jake Rowden intercepted Pupa's pass on the 22 and returned it to midfield only to fumble and Carolina recovered.

Terps in Defense Role

Pupa and Justice banged away again, but the Terps rose up and halted this bid on the 21 where Justice was knocked out of bounds on fourth down.

That was the pattern of the game, Maryland playing a mighty defensive role when the Tarheels made menacing gestures at the goal line.

Early in the second period, it appeared that the Terps had launched an offensive that might be productive, but it came to naught on the Carolina 44 when Vern Seibert fumbled and Mike Rubish claimed the ball for Carolina.

Turyn Offensive Standout

Turyn was Maryland's offensive standout. Faking laterals to two trailers, Fullback Harry Bonk and Gambino, but carrying the ball himself, he sucked in the Tar Heels forwards and sparked the spree that saw the Terps travel 41 yards before the fumble stopped them.

On one jaunt he twisted his way 18 yards and on the second, faking a lateral again, he got 14 more. He mixed it up with a 12-yard pass to George Evans and the Terps found themselves in Carolina territory, on the 46, not deep, but in there just the same.

But it lasted only long enough for Siebert to fumble a handoff and halt that rally.

Justice kicked over the goal on the first play and the Terps were in hot water again only seconds later. Siebert fumbled again, this time on the Terp 23, and blocking Bobby Weant recovered.

The Tar Heels tried to rustle up a quick score and took to the air. Two Pupa passes failed after they had been set back 15 for holding and on third down Joe Tucker intercepted Freshman Billy Hayes' pass on the Terp 26 just as the half ended.

Terps Fall Apart

After intermission, when Maryland began devoting closer attention to plugging up the center boulevard through which Pupa had gained most of Carolina's 107 yards in the first two periods, Justice varied his attack. Pupa continued to hit the middle, but Mr. "Choo-Choo" routed himself around the ends instead of off tackle.

This pair rumbled 31 yards to the Maryland 39 with Justice getting 19 on one clip. Then came a double reverse with Johnny Clements racing all the way to the Maryland 20 as the quarter ended.

The Terps braced for this one and held, but moments later they were inextricably in another hole, brought on by their own fumbles, and this time they didn't hold. Not once, but twice, when the Tar Heels cashed in on the breaks to unknot the scoreless tie.

Jones Goes Over From 2-Yard Line

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

Morgantown, W. Va., Nov. 15.—The unsympathetic Cavaliers of the University of Virginia scored a last-quarter touchdown with bull-shouldered Grover Jones busting over tackle from the two to help the foul weather spoil West Virginia's homecoming day 6-0, at Mountaineer Field here today.

More than 18,000 rain-soaked fans watched the bitterly contested battle on a field ankle-deep with mud.

The loss was the fourth straight for the Mountainers, who won their first four games of the season. The win put Virginia back on the victory trail after their lone setback last week to Penn.

58-Yard Drive Decides

Jones' touchdown, climaxing a 58-yard drive with a bare three minutes and 25 seconds to go, gave the Cavaliers their fifth triumph in their 49-year-old rivalry with West Virginia, the Mountaineers having won three times.

It was by no means a shoo-in for the Cavaliers after they did finally tally, for the desperate West Virginians scrambled to within striking distance in the remaining time. As the final gun went off the Mountaineers had swept through the air to the Cavalier 17.

The Mountaineers, who took the field two-touchdown underdogs, surprised the Cavaliers in the first quarter by taking the offensive and keeping it until halftime.

Mountaineers Fumble Chance

They came within 12 yards of scoring the first time they took possession. Mountaineer End Chet Spelock recovered a Joe McCary fumble on the Virginia 33, and the West Virginians rolled to the

From then until only two minutes were left before halftime, the Virginians were stuck inside their own 46. Meanwhile, the Mountaineers were rallying once to the Virginia 29, and otherwise moving around the 50.

With two minutes left before the half, two 15-yard pass completions from McCary to Bob Weir helped Virginia strike to the West Virginia 18. But there, Mountaineer Capt. Gene Corum ended the threat by recovering a McCary bobble.

The second half story saw a complete reversal of form.

A fumble by West Virginia's Russ Combs on his 18 was recovered by Virginia's center, Lockwood Frizzell and put the Mountaineers in trouble. However, when three Virginia line plays could gain only two yards, George Grimes tried a field goal from the 24. It was low and wide.

the West Virginia 35, 48 and 40, before the Cavaliers launched a drive that went all the way.

It started from the Virginia 42 and took 14 plays and 4 first downs to make it. Jones accounted for 15, Billy Pennel for 20, Bruce Bailey for eight and Joe McCary for one by land. A Pennel to Jones pass also clicked for 14. Jones slogged over from the two and Grimes' try for extra point was wide.

Game Ends on 17

The Mountaineers struck by immediately. After advancing 12 yards in two plays on the ground, they took to the air.

Tom Keane pitched over Bailey's head to Jim Walthall, who raced to the Virginia 17, where he was dragged down from behind by Bailey. Four Keane passes fell incomplete to temporarily end that threat.

The Mountaineers got two more chances with 40 seconds left when McCary again fumbled for Virginia and West Virginia's Frank Reno recovered on the 17. However, the two Keane tosses also missed their target as the game ended.

Mississippi's Conerly Sets New Record For Pass Completions as Team Wins, 52-0

Oxford, Miss., Nov. 15 (AP).—Mississippi's Charlie Conerly set a new collegiate record for pass completions today as he and his teammates mopped up little University of Chattanooga, 52 to 0.

Out of 32 tries, Conerly successfully sent 20 aerials into the hands of his receivers to bring his season's total to 120—the highest number of completions in one season in collegiate history.

Chunkin' Charley's tosses smashed the previous pass completion record of 114 set by Wilson (Bud) Schwenk of Washington University, St. Louis, in 1941. And Ole Miss still has one game to play.

Mississippi Coach Johnny Vaught pulled Conerly from the lopsided game at th half after he had established the new mark, passed for two touchdowns and run for another. The Nation's passing king collected 159 yards through the clouds and a total of 83 on the ground in five attempts.

Mississippi End Barney Poole was raring after the modern pass-catching record. Poole caught 13 throws, making his year's aggregate 48—just two short of the record of 50 made by Henry Stanton of Arizona, [illegible] season Schwenk chalked up his mark.

are in the stands as the teams come out. The attendance is going to fall short of pregame estimates of 30,000 or more. (Later, official count, 22,151—not bad on such a day as this.)

Offhand, you would say that the playing condition favors Mr. Snavely's single wing, a power formation, over the trickery of the T.

Ten minutes of the first period have passed and the only time Maryland has had the ball was for a fleeting minute after the kickoff.

WALTER PUPA, Carolina's 25-year-old, 195-pounder from Pittston, Pa., is convincing everybody, including Maryland's defenders, that he is the best mudder on the lot.

Pupa is taking Maryland's line apart on spinners or delayed smashes. He carries the ball 8 out of 10 times, going right through the shortstop position of the ball diamond on out into left center where Joe DiMaggio hits those long left-center doubles.

But Carolina's first drive spends its force on Maryland's 21, and before the half is over it looks as if Maryland might take command.

THERE IS SOMETHING for the astute football fan to note: On defense, Maryland's players are ganging up behind the center, then quickly shifting to their defensive positions after Carolina goes into its formation.

This is a Tatum stratagem designed to prevent Carolina's observers from picking flaws in his defense.

For thos eseeing Maryland for the first time, the Terrapins' handling of the ball is fascinating—but dangerous. On most of the running plays, the ball-carrier keeps the ball in his hands so that he can lateral when about to be tackled.

THIS CAUSES CAROLINA'S tacklers to hesitate momentarily before rushing in—but it also causes Maryland to commit numerous fumbles.

It's well into the third period and the press box pundits are willing to settle for a scoreless tie—unless one side gets a break.

Well, there it is: Vov Turyn of the Terrapins fumbles on his own 17, Guard Bill Wardle recovers for the Tar Heels, Mr. Pupa resumes his pounding and Carolina is across. That's the ball game.

Coming to town in a cab, the driver, listening to the radio broadeast, remarks: "Right god game, wasn't it?" Yes, it was, even under such adverse playing conditions. It was the kind of college football that Washinton has been wanting for a long time.

grief late in the first quarter after Guard Dolph Tokarczyk recovered Galiffa's fumble on the Army 25. Schneider ripped off 11 yards on a hand-off from Falcone but three downs later, on the Army 14, Penn was willing to settle for a field goal. Lawless' boot from the 22 was blocked by Steffy.

Elmer Rowan, Army's best back and colleague of Glenn Davis and Doc Blanchard last year, opened the Cadet's touchdown march with a 15-yard smack through Penn's middle.

But the big chunk was gained by Bill Scott who traveled 30 yards around left end, behind Trent's powerful blocking, to the Penn 26 where Minisi hauled him down.

Rowan Baffles Quakers

From that point Rowan confounded the Quakers, first with an 11-yard sweep at right end and then with a delayed buck to the Penn 10. Stuart's touchdown dash on the next play followed Galiffa's fakery before handing the ball off to Stuart who had a wide hole at left tackle.

Big George Savitsky, Penn's 250-pound tackle, launched the Quakers' counterattack by taking the kickoff 18 yards to the Penn 33. Ray Dooney alternated with Minisi in hitting the Army line and then Evans clicked on a 28-yard pass to McCarthy on the Army 17.

Minisi passed 11 yards to Littleton for a first down on the 3, and Dooney chugged outside right guard for the touchdown.

Penn was in jeopardy in the third quarter when Bullock intercepted a Minisi pass on the Quakers' 36, but three downs netted Army only 6 yards and a 70-yard punt by Krichling set them back to their own 20.

Al Sica, substitute back, teamed with Minisi to take Penn into Army territory in the fourth quarter, with the pair ripping 12, 7 and 13 yards through Army's middle and Minisi pitching a 7-yard pass to McCarthy on the Army 35.

On third down, however, Kellum piled Sica up for a loss and Vinson ended the Penn threat with an interception of Sica's fourth-down pass.

A feature of the game was Penn's abandonment of its single-wing after reaching the Army 25 in the opening quarter, in favor of the T-formation. The first T-play gained 11 yards, but thereafter Army piled the Penn backs up and the Quakers returned to its single wing.

Navy struck back swiftly. Al McCully, Ventnor City, N. J., back who played well throughout, returned a boot to State's 46. On the next play, passer Bob Horne found the same speedy McCully all alone at the side line.

Safetyman Bobby Williams had a shot at him but missed and McCully went all the way to put Navy very much in the ball game.

Jim Wills, former Georgetown Prep boy from La Plata, Md., tied it at 7-all when he converted his thirteenth successive extra-point try.

State insisted on another inning before intermission. Wally Triplett, Negro halfback, brought back Navy's ensuing kickoff 17 yards to State's 28.

That's when that guy called Joe went wide, fought off several tacklers and broke loose. Navy's Navy's line showed heroic quality, although its attempt to stop State was unsuccessful. From the 13, Bobby Williams ran four times for a first down on the one-foot line. Still, the Middies wouldn't quit.

It took Williams another three tries to get the bal lover. Czekaji's placement was good, but a holding penalty nullified the kick. State tries to get the ball over. Czekaj's point that might have meant something, but it was incomplete.

The Midshipmen clicked for three successive first downs before the half ended and got to State's 31 but Horne was hit, trying to pass, and State's Suhey recovered his fumble to halt the Sailors.

One of the plays appreciated by 2800 Navy buddies in that march was a 12-yard plunge by Center Dick Scott. Scott, regular punter, faked a kick and successfully impersonated a fullback.

Durkota practically eliminated Navy's chance for victory two minutes after the third period began. Jeff, starting from Navy's 42, made a run that was a reasonable facsimile of his first touchdown.

Navy Holds on 8

State charged goalward again after Hawkins' fumble recovered by Quarterback Charley Drazenovich on the Navy 40. With Triplett and Fran Rogell toting, the Lions made a first on Navy's 14.

Again that courageous Navy forward wall stiffened and after a 7-yard pass from Bill Luther to Triplett, Navy held and took possession on its 8.

Late in the game, Coach Tom Hamilton sent in Pistol Pete Williams. Pete, on the injured list before the game, made his first appearance since the Duke game.

And he immediately made his presence felt. Colone kept the ball away from State with a punt situation and Navy took over on its 45.

On the next play, Horne faded and had little difficulty finding the left end, his white jersey with the No. 46. Williams cooperated by grabbing the pass and fighting his way to State's 17 on the 38-yard play.

Williams carried it to the 12 on his next try but Bob Aillet, Horne, and Baysinger took turns throwing incomplete passes and the threat died.

Although 32,000 tickets were sold and 50,000 might have attended under more favorable circumstances, the miserable day held the crowd to an estimated 25,000.

Fully half of these seemed to be Penn State rooters. The middies still have only a lone victory and tie to show for their bruising season.

Navy still can redeem itself. All the Middies have to do is to beat Army in Philadelphia two weeks from today.

VPI Defeats Richmond, 26-14

Blacksburg, Va., Nov. 15 (AP).—The hard-running Virginia Tech Gobblers were only partially slowed by a muddy field today as they rolled to a 26-14 Southern Conference triumph over the battling University of Richmond Spiders.

Some 5500 chilled spectators in Miles Stadium saw the Gobblers pile up a 26-0 lead in the first three periods and then survive a fighting finish by their opposition which produced a tally in each of the last two periods.

Surprisingly, there was but one fumble.

Leemans to Talk At Grid Luncheon

Alphonse "Tuffy" Leemans, great fullback at George Washington University who later won outstanding recognition with the New York Giants of the National Pro Football League, will address the weekly luncheon of the Touchdown Club Monday at 12:30 p. m.

Football Coaches Jack Hagerty o fGeorgetown University, and Neil 'Skip" Stahley, George Washington, also will discuss the impending football game involving their teams.

Veterans who reduced the amount of their national service life insurance policies with Veterans Administration during 1946 chose an average of $3,432 as the amount they wished to carry.

Lions-Bears Football Game Reset for Nov. 27

The Washington Lions and New York Bears, who were unable to play Armistice Day because of heavy rain, will clash at Griffith Stadium under the lights Thanksgiving Day night, November 27, at 8 p. m. The new date was announced today by the sponsors of the game, the United Negro and Allied Veterans of America.

Stolen Pass Starts Drive To Victory

By Hugh Fullerton, Jr.

Princeton, N. J., Nov. 15 (AP).—Princeton upset the dope and upheld a jinx today by defeating Yale's favored football team, 17 to 0, in the seventieth game of collegiate football's oldest continuous rivalry.

A crowd of 49,258, Princeton's first capacity audience since 1936, saw the Tigers win their tenth Big Three championship. They routed Harvard last week. It was the Tigers' twenty-third victory over Yale in the series which began in 1873. Yale has won 37 times.

The triumph was Princeton's first over Yale since 1941 and it upheld the tradition that neither team can win more than four games in a row in this old series. Yale had won the last four as the war interrupted the rivalry.

After standing off an early Yale drive Princeton took complete charge of the game, scoring 10 points in the second quarter and seven in the third. Yale didn't make even a first down in these two periods.

Princeton's line, operating as a unit, or rather two units, shoved the Elis all over the field to make it easy for Fullback John Weber and Halfbacks Carl Leibert and George Sella to gain consistently. Leibert and Capt. Dick West also passed effectively, gaining 189 yards on 9 completed passes. Princeton Coach Charley Caldwell used separate offensive and defensive line combinations.

A pass interception started the Tigers on the road to victory at the start of the second period. Yale Quarterback Tex Furse heaved one from his own 45 and West grabbed it on the Princeton 39 and galloped back 23 yards. Princeton marched right down to score with Leibert dashing the last 8 yards through tackle.

Before the half ended, Princeton marched from its own 25 to the Yale 6 with a 39-yard pass and run, West to Sella, eating up most of the yardage. When the Yale line braced, Ken Keuffel came in and placekicked a field goal from the 14-yard stripe.

Princeton scored again and threatened on two more occasions in the third quarter. The Tigerss moved 60 yards on a continuous drive after Bob Meyer returned the second-half kickoff 11 yardss to the 40. Leibert completed two important passes and Weber finally smashed over on fourth down from the 1-foot line. Keuffel made good on both conversions.

Georgia Wins, 28-6, Over Auburn Tigers

Columbus, Ga., Nov. 15 (AP).—Outplaying their opponents in almost every department, the University of Georgia Bulldogs defeated the Auburn Tigers, 28 to 6, in their 51st football contest today. Some 22,000 fans saw the game, played on a soggy gridiron in misty, cold weather.

Georgia rammed over a touchdown on the opening period when Weyman Sellers fell on a fumble at the Tiger 13. Billy Henderson made 8 on the first play, and drove across from the one after two plunges had moved it there. Joe Geri, a fine running back today added the first of his four perfect placements.

The next Bulldog marker resulted from a 59-yard march. Floyd Reid drove the final yard on fourth down, but runs by Johnny Rauch and Henderson had taken it almost to the goal line.

A third Georgia touchdown, early in the second half, came on a 70-yard drive, with Geri crashing over on a 13-yard run up the middle. Reid added his second and Georgia's final score late in the same period after Clayton Deavers intercepted a pass from Travis Tidwell and went back to the Auburn 27.

Texas Wins, 20-0

Austin, Nov. 15 (AP).—The University of Texas Longhorns rolled over the Texas Christian Horned Frogs, 20-0, here today, hanging on to a chance for the Southwest Conference title.

It was TCU's second conference loss, and the Frogs are now out of a serious contending position for the crown.

Texas allowed the Frogs to penetrate no deeper than the Texas 33. Before the game was six minutes old, the Longhorns scored their first touchdown on eight running plays after Center Dick Harris intercepted Lindy Berry's pass on the TCU 35 and returned to the 25. Right Half Jim Canady carried five consecutive times, plunging over from the 3.

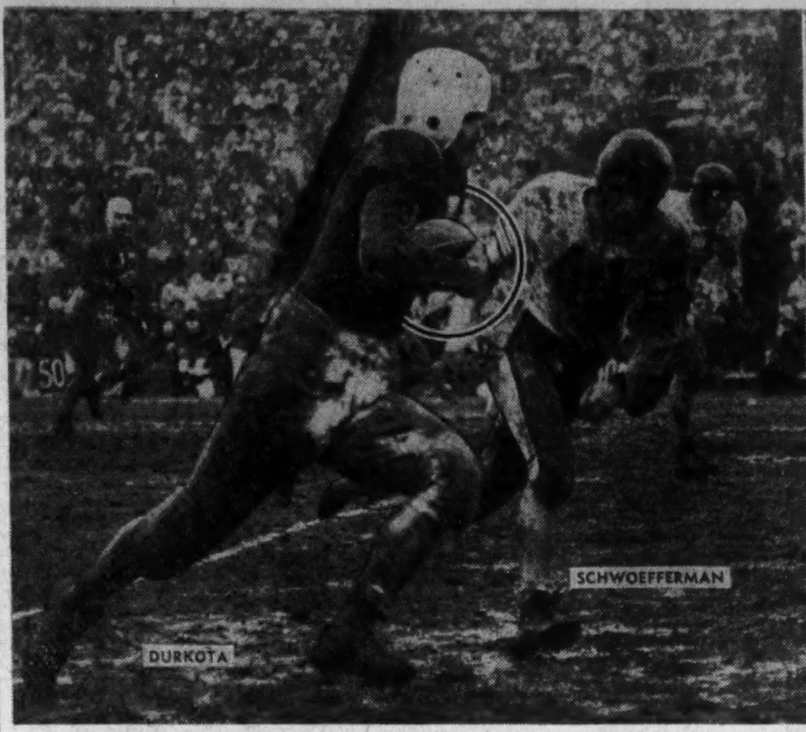
The Longhorns scored in the second quarter on a 31-yard pass by Frank Guess.

Right End Dale Schwartzkopf charged through to block a TCU punt in the final period. He pounced on the ball on the Horned Frog 45-yard line and ran it for a tally.

Middie Soccer Team Beaten

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 15 (AP).—Swarthmore's soccer team defeated Navy 4 to 2 today and sent the Middies, topnotch goalie, Al Schaufelberger, to the hospital with serious rib injuries.

It was Navy's second loss of the year and boded ll for the Middies' contest with Army next Saturday. Swarthmore already has tied the Cadets.



By Harry Goodwin—The Washington Post

OFF ON TOUCHDOWN RUNS—Jeff Durkota, a 205-pound senior, raced through Navy's defense for two touchdowns yesterday in Penn State's 20-7 victory over the Middies in Baltimore. North Carolina State Tops Wake Forest, 20-0

Raleigh, N. C., Nov. 15 (AP).—Halfback Charlie Richkus and Fullback Les Palmer, working behind an inspired Wolfpack line, led North Carolina State College to a stunning 20-0 victory over heavier and highly fovored Wake Forest here today.

The game was played before 20,000 fans in a sea of mud. After a first half stalemate, State rammed over two touchdowns in the third and another in the fourth.

Richkus, playing his last home game for the Wolfpack, set up the first touchdown when, he broke through right tackle and ran 36 yards to the Deacons 32. Two plays later, he passed from his 17 to Oscar Bozeman in the end zone.

Miway of the third period, State recovered a blocked punt on the Wolfpack 40 to launch a 60-yard scoring drive, with Palmer going over from the 2.

Harold Saunders, State center, intercepted a pass on the Wake Forest 45 and ran to the 39 to set up the next score. Two plays later, Palmer circled his right end, cut back through a host of tacklers for thetouchdown.

Harvard Beats Brown, 13-7

Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 15 (AP).—A spirited Harvard football team bounded back after three successive defeats and whipped a slightly favored Brown eleven, 13 to 7, today before 25,000 fans at Harvard Stadium.

The Crimson scored first with about a minute to go in the third period. Hal Moffie went through left guard after a 56-yard drive. Brown bounded back early in the last quarter to tie the score as Reserve Back George Paterono slipped through right guard for a touchdown.

An intercepted pass by Ken O'Donnell led to Harvard's winning six-pointer. O'Donnell ran 16 yards to midfield, Jim Kenary pitched to Hall Moffie and the play ate up 44 yards to Brown's 6. From there Paul Lazzaro bucked over for the touchdown as the clock showed only 90 seconds left.

12 Fans Injured As Washington U. Stands Collapse

St. Louis, Nov. 15 (U.P.).—A section of the packed bleachers at Washington University's Francis Field collapsed this afternoon and 12 persons were injured.

The bleachers fell when the spectators rose to watch the opening kickoff of the homecoming game between Washington and Grinnell College.

Two of the injured persons reportedly had suffered broken legs. Police said others were hurt seriously.

After the injured were removed, adjoining sections were quickly cleared.

Chancellor Compton and other school officials began an investigation. About 200 persons were in the section when it fell.

The game was not interrupted.

Out Hunting

By Jack Bell

WITH MARYLAND and Virginia upland game hunting season one day old, good results have been reported. However, out of all the smoke from gunfire there is a protest registered by sportsmen in Prince Georges County.

In practically every covey of quail, hunters observed immature birds barely capable of full flight. As a result many were shot, the hunter only to find a bird almost worthless as food.

It is believed excessive rainfall this spring prevented normal propagation of the fine game bird. Mild and dry weather evidently induced an abnormally late nesting period, thus producing the large number of immature quail in the county.

Our attention has been called to this fact by the Prince Georges County Fish and Game Association. Hunters are urged by the association to refrain from shooting these helpless young quail during the early part of the coming season.

If thus conserved, they should be in excellent condition toward the latter part of this year's shooting season.

LIKE A RAY of light out of complete darkness, Virginia's fish and game commission is really going to do something about it's complicated and confusing fish and game regulations. For some time sportsmen have appealed to the commission to do something to make hunting seasons more uniform.

It often occurs that the commission would pass regulations based on scientific data only to have them nullified by local bills introduced in the General Assembly.

The safest thing for a hunter to do is to contact the commission's offices in Richmond to verify the opening and closing dates in the county to be hunted.

Tennessee Romps, 38-13

Knoxville, Tenn., Nov. 15 (AP).—Tennessee bounded back from five defeats to outclass a power-minded Boston College team, 38 to 13, today before a howling crowd of 25,000 partisan fans.

It was the Vols' first major triumph of what has been the most disastrous season for Bob Neyland in 16 years' coaching at Tennessee.

A brilliant passing attack spelled the margin of victory, the Vols tallying four times on aerials. The powerful Eagles gained almost at will with their powerful running attack, piling up 21 first downs to Tennessee's 12, but lacked the necessary punch in scoring territory.

Boston College scored first, Jim Benedetto skirting left end for 7 yards to climax a 68-yard march. The Vols bounced back immediately, scoring on a 11-yard pass from Jim Proctor to Ken Pruett after two successive 22-yard passes from Proctor to Jim Powell.

A second-period Proctor pass, this time a 13-yarder to End Jim Miner, produced the second Vols score. Tailback Hal Littleford scampered 56 yards for the Vols' third one on the day's most sensational run. After that the Vols never were headed.

Kansas Beats Aggies, 13 to 7

Stillwater, Okla., Nov. 15 (AP).—The University of Kansas Jayhawkers chased Oklahoma's Aggies all around the field today, finally inching in with a 13-7 victory after the Aggies led through the first half.

Kansas paved the way for the Aggies touchdown in the first two minutes by fumbling on the Jayhawker 9.

The visitors came back to pick up a touchdown in the second period, then they went ahead with the winning marker in the first two minutes of the third period after an Aggie fumble on the 18 set up the score. Forrest Griffith snaked over from the 9.

Griffith also had racked up the Kansans' first score on an 11-yard run in the second.

The victory extended Kansas' string without a loss to 12 straight games. The string started when Kansas defeated the Aggies 14-14 at Lawrence last year.

Gamecocks Live Up to Name

Favored Duke, South Carolina Battle to 0-0 Draw in Mud

Durham, N. C., Nov. 15 (AP).—Duke, with eyes on next week's game with North Carolina, fuond a surprising tartar in the University of South Carolina, and was played to a scoreless tie in a Southern Conference fotball game here today before 5000 rain-and-wind chilled fans.

Clinging mud provided unsteady going for the rivals, and the weather played a big role in styming scoring efforts.

The South Carolinians, riding a four straight victory streak, paid no attention to the top-heavy favored the Blue Dukes of Coach Wallace Wade.

Early in the initial period, Coach Rex Enright's Gamecocks drove 22 yards from their own 48 to the Duke 30 where James Ttwell's pass intended for Bishop Strickland was intercepted by Fred Folgery, jr. on the Dukes 20.

The Blue Devils started a drive that carried to the South Carolina 11 before sputtering out.

The third period found each team offering determined scoring bids. South Carolina drove 63 yards but the Duke line rose up and checked the threat at its own 7.

Dick Gardinier, reserve Duke tackle, offered the Wademen their chance after recovering fumble on the Gamecock 20. However, two Folger passes were incomplete, and neither Ben Williams nor Betis Herlong could gain at the center.

Duke got another break when Ed Austin recovered a fumbled punt on the South Carolina 8, then Ben Cittadino fumbled on an end around, and End Cecil Woolbright of South Carolina recovered on his own 11.

Cards End Season

Catholic U. Defeats Shoremen, 16 to 0

By Roger Wolbarst
Post Reporter

The Cardinals of Catholic University ended their first season of intercollegiate football in seven years by whipping the Washington College Shoremen, 16-0, before 2500 hardy souls at Brookland yesterday.

It was the third straight victory for the Cardinals and was a fitting finish to a successful season which saw Coach Gene Augusterfer's inexperienced lads lose their first three games by one-sided scores, then come back to play winning ball for the rest of the year.

A pair of first-half touchdowns and a fourth-quarter safety accounted for the Catholic points, together with two successful conversions.

Joe Dunn, Gus Gersin and Bill DeYoung tore off large hunks of yardage over the rain-drenched field. Gersin's passing was phenomenal considering the soggy condition of the pigskin, which had to be dried off by the officials after every two plays.

CU struck early in the first period on an 80-yard drive which saw the Cards rack up five first downs. With Gersin and Dunn ripping around the Washington ends behind devastating blocking, it took Catholic just 10 plays to tally. Gersin carried 22 yards to the 4 to set up the touchdown, and Bill Holl banged it over.

Jackie Samperton kicked the first of his two extra points and CU could have gone home with the triumph right then.

However, in the second quarter, after Dunn ran a Shoreman punt back to midfield, CU scored again. On the second play, Gersin, the only senior on the Catholic squad, hurled a 20-yard pass intended for Joe Maiuri, but Sonny Jones of Washington batted the ball up instead of down and the alert Maiuri snatched it out of the air and romped 27 yards to score.

The rain and mud combined to make the third period a kicking duel, with Maiuri and Bill Bryan exchanging punts. This finally produced a break for the Cards early in the last quarter. John Parker of Washington fumbled and C. U. recovered on its own 49.

DeYoung, Gersin and Maiuri carried all the way to the Washington 7, where the Shoremen took over on downs. But Jones immediately fumbled and Catholic again recovered. And again the Shoremen made a great stand, taking the ball over on their own 2.

On the subsequent play, Catholic's Whitey Hubert came up fast from the secondary to nail Jones, trying a wide end sweep, in the end zone for a safety.

LSU Whips Miss. State

Baton Rouge La., Nov. 15 (AP).—Louisiana State threw the Southeastern Conference football championship race into a wild scramble today by whipping Mississippi State, 21 to 6, while Geogia Tech was being bounced out of the unbeaten ranks.

The home team pulled itself together in the last two periods after Harper Davis' 60yard sprint had given Mississippi State a 6 to 0 edge at halftime.

Charlie Devey threw a 40-yard pass to Abner Wimberly for Louisiana's first touchdown midway of the third period, and engineered the high-powered Tiger machine perfectly while Ray Coates, Bill Schroll, Dan Sandifer and Bill Collins were ripping through the Mississippi State line for gain after gain. Pevey's payoff pitch climaxed a 74-yard march along the ground.

LSU piled over on running plays for two touchdowns in the final period, one on a 56-yard advance and again on a 51-yard parade. Rip Collins squirmed the lst yard in the first drive and Coates smashed over from the one on the second.

Tulsa Beaten, 7-6

Tulsa, Okla., Nov. 15 (AP).—A spectacular 58-yard punt return by speedy George Sims for a touchdown and a perfect placement kick by Henry Dickerson gave the Baylor Bears a 7-6 victory over the University of Tulsa today before a crowd of 14,000.

Both teams scored in the final quarter, Tulsa's touchdown coming on a 69-yard march with a 12-yard pass from Leonard Makowski to Jimmy Ford as the climax. Hardy Brown's conversion attempt was wide.

Metro League Plays 2 Games At Stadium

Eastern and western division titlists of the Metropolitan Football League's 160-pound and unlimited classes clash in a doubleheader championship playoff at Griffith Stadium today.

One of the largest crowds ever to attend a sandlot attraction locally is expected to be on hand to see the Southeast A. C.-Southwest Merchants 160-pound championship game at 1 p. m. and the Car Credit-Anacostia Eagles unlimited contest at 3 o'clock.

Southeast, 160-pound eastern division winner, is favored over the Merchants, western representative, in their tilt while Car Credit, unlimited eastern division titlist and the Eagles, which reaped western laurels, are rated a toss-up.

The Southeast club took eastern honors with six wins and one loss in a red-hot race that was decided on the final day of the season last Sunday.

Special half-time shows are planned with the Elks and George Washington High School bands participating.

Tickets are priced at $1 for adults and 25 cents for children under 12 years of age. A percentage of the proceeds will be donated to Children's Hospital while the rest will be used for league expenses.

Tom Birge's 16 Points Pace Episcopal Ruot of Ganzaga

Five hundred shivering fans watched a strong Episcopal High team trample a light weight Gonzaga eleven yesterday at Episcopal Stadium, Alexandria, 35-0.

Episcopal scored twice in the first quarter after sustained drives. The first tally came after the Virginians advanced from their 49 to the Gonzaga 6. Duckett slammed through center for the touchdown and Capt. Tom Birge booted the first of five conversions. Four plays later Epsicopal scored again on a 15-yard pass from Rufe Buckley on the Gonzaga 36 to Birge on the 21. He went over standing up.

Birge scored again on the third play of the second quarter, racing around left end from the 17. Episcopal scored the final two touchdowns in the third period. Duckett carried the ball from the 9 after his team had progressed from their own 37 and Pete Eastwood scored from the 10 after Gonzaga had fumbled three plays before on their 33.

Blair Beaten, 7-0

Hagerstown, Md., Nov. 15 (AP).—Hagerstown high intercepted one of two Montgomery1Blair passes in the rain here today to win the first fotball game between the two schools by a score of 7-0.

Jack Bowman grabbed a Montgomery-Blair pass on the 40-yard line in the second period and ran the interception back to the 27.

Buck Early then broke off tackle and slithered 27 yards to the only touchdown of the game. Clyde Myers carried the ball over for the conversion.

None of the three passes tried by both sides with a wet ball hit its mark. Hagerstown made seven first downs in the mud, to five for the losers.

It was Hagerstown's fourth win as against three refeats, Montgomery's fifth loss against two victories.

Gallaudet Bows, 13-8

Montgomery Junior College beat a stubborn Gallaudet team 13-8 in an evenly fought game in Chevy Chase yesterday.

First score came when Tom Foley, Montgomery halfback returned a partially blocked kick for a touchdown. Montgomery again scored in the last quarter when Harry Huffer completed a pass in the end zone to Herb Palmer. A line buck by O'Brian was good for the extra point.

Gallaudet scored on a safety in the third quarter and a blocked kick scooped up by tackle Fred Collins.

Howard Downs Dover, 27-0

Scoring in every quarter the Bisons of Howard University defeated the Delaware Hornets of Dover State College, 27-0, yesterday before at Brooks Stadium.

In the first period, Nat Fisher recovered Art Collick's fumble on the Delaware 19 and a moment later Walt Spruill went off tackle for the first touchdown on a handout from Virgil Anderson. Harry Thompson converted.

Chris Roberson, Sandy Greene and Spruill sustained a 47-yard drive in the second, Roberson finally crashing through the line 8 yards for the second touchdown Thompson converted again.

When Delaware was penalized back to their 5-yard line in the third and Tom Moore elected to run instead of punt on the fourth down, he was stopped by Tank Banner, and the Bisons took over on the Delaware 4. A pass, Virgil Anderson to Hillary Thompson, counted six points. Thompson again converted.

Ernie Davis set up the final touchdown with a beautiful 15-yard pass to Alec Parker, who scampered 35 yards for the score. Thompson failed to convert.

Little Sammy Wins Middleburg Feature

Middleburg, Va., Nov. 15.—Little Sammie, a 7-year-old brown gelding owned by G. H. Bostwick of Long Island, won the Mary Mellon Steeplechase, a 2½-mile race over brush at the eleventh fall race meet of th Middleburg Hunt Race Association at the Glenwood Race Course today. Ridden by H. Harris, Little Sammie, by Sammie out of Little Charmer, came to the front after the leader C. Douglas Dillon's Mr. Man went down at the seventh fence.

When Mr. Man fell, Trough Hill, owned by Mrs. S. C. Clark, jr., led for a short distance but faded in the home stretch. The winner finshed two and one half lengths ahead of Ella Widner's Chance Bullet, which had trailed the field. Trough Hill came in third. The time was 4:45 3/5.

A cold drizzle continued through the afternoon, but the crowd, estimated at 1500, was considered good for the weather. The track was soft but there were few spills.

Tino Wave, a 10-year-old light-brown gelding by Valentine out of Waby, owned by Mrs. T. Snowden Richards of Pittsburg, was the only horse that finished the course in the Gerald B. Webb, jr., Memorial and cofeature on the program. Five horses started. Two lost riders and two refused fences. After the field was left to Tino Wave, he galloped home in the slow time of 7:37 4/5.

The best time of the afternoon was made in the Sunnybank, a two-mile hurdle race, when Golden Risk, owned by Mrs. Cordelia M. Scaife, set a fast pace and ketp the lead, coming in 15 lengths ahead of the other two starters. The time was 3:53 1/5, a record for this race.

The summaries:

THE OAKHAM (1½ miles over hurdles for 3-year-olds and upwards—Won by Snow King II, Bohemia Stables, ridden by Mary Pife; second, My Good Man, owned by I. Beiber, ridden by T. Fields; third, Valiant, owned by C. Mahlon Kline, ridden by W. Mallison. Time, 2:49⅗.

THE SUNNYBANK (2 miles over hurdles for 3-year-olds and upwards—Won by Golden Risk, ridden by J. Bosley; second, Look Around, owned by Mrs. Ogden Phipps, ridden by T. Field; third, Half Hour, owned by C. Mahlon Kline, ridden by W. Mallison. Time, 3:53⅕.

Ken Stribling To Box Walker In Return Bout

Undefeated for 1947, Ken Stribling, the District colored middleweight, will attempt to protect his record tomorrow night at Turner's Arena. He meets Johnny Walker of Philadelphia, a premedical student at Temple, in the feature 10-rounder.

This is a rematch, with Walker, conjueror of Smuggy Hursey, Bulldog Harris and a flock of other top notchers, out to avenge his loss to Stribling on a first-round foul several weeks ago.

With eight victories and one draw to his credit, Stribling now looms on the threshold of being the District's top fighter for 1947-48. Bouts with Bee Bee Washington and Frank Lacey are in the making, if Ken triumphs.

Frank Sweeney, anxious to meet the Stribling-Walker victor, will fight Billy Snead in th esemiwindup of five rounds.

Eddi eFranklin and Art Bethea clash in a five and Flat Top Cummings and Bobby Suma battle in a five. Other bouts: Tommy Larner vs. Miles Jones and Spike Graham vs. Jackie Ford in fours.

Ft. Belvoir Beats Camp Lee, 41-7

Fort Belvoir, Va., Nov. 15.—Quarterback Charley Morris tossed four touchdown passes here today to pace Fort Belvoir to a 41-to-7 victory over Camp Lee.

Sub Quarterback Bill Perkovic threw a fifth payoff pass and Fullback George Evans skirted end for 13 yards for another score. Right Halfback Hal Martin gave the losers their only tally when he threw 21 yards to Left Halfback Jack White in the end zone. Belvoir's Shifty Saunders made good on five of six extra point tries.

45-6 Victory

Cloud Runs Wild, W&M Routs W&L

Roanoke, Va., Nov. 15 (AP).—William and Mary's Indians mixed their "Flying Cloud" with the mud of Victory Stadium here today and came up with an impressive 45-6 victory over Washington and Lee's game but outclassed Generals from Lexington.

The Indians' "Cloud," of course, was Sophomore Fullback Jack Cloud of Norfolk, Va., who went on the wildest touchdown-making spree of his collegiate career, driving over the final ribbon four times to tally more than half of the Tribe's points.

It remained for the Generals, however, to give the shivering crowd of 3500 customers the biggest thrill of the afternoon. Twenty seconds were left, and the Indians were doing their best to get another score.

Stan Magdziak, the Indians' strong right "arm," flipped an aerial from the Generals' 24-yard ribbon that End Marvin Graham was supposed to haul down behind the goal, but Gene Bennett, a sophomore halfback, intercepted it squarely on his 1-yard stripe and danced all the 99 yards before him to the goal. Time ran out while Bennett was running.

Wayne Hands G. W. Seventh Loss, 7 to 6

By Bill Burnett
Post Reporter

Detroit, Nov. 15.—George Washington University let victory slip from its grasp here today as the Wayne University Tartars, pushing over a touchdown in the final quarter, took a 7-6 game at Keyworth Stadium.

In snow flurries, ankle-deep mud and a cloud of smoke from an adjoining railroad yard, the Colonials lost on just three plays in the fourth period to remain winless in seven games.

They had led, however, from the first 3 minutes of the second period when Jimmy Kline, freshman halfback just returned to the squad after injury-enforced idleness, took a Wayne punt on his own 26 and thundered 74 yards for a score. What robbed the Colonials of even a tie later on was Frank Cavallo's failure on the extra point.

Small Crowd at Game

A shivering crowd of just 1097 sat in despair—and snow—from then until the final period was 5 minutes old, convinced there could be no more scoring. Mud-covered backs of both teams were scrambling for a yard at a time until the payoff came.

Then, with Wayne in possession on its own 40, officials called one of their all-too-rare penalties—G. W. interference on Bruce Waha's pass—the Tartars getting a first down on G. W.'s 49.

Before the Colonials knew what hit them Fullback Virgil Florea hit the center, straightened out and was headed for a certain touchdown when Stan Burak caught him from behind. He was credited with 37 yards to the G. W. 12, and Freshman Halfback Johnny Hazely did the rest.

The 160-pound Negro speedster tore through the middle of G. W.'s line into scoring territory. Then, only a smear on the landscape in his crust of mud, Johnny kicked the point that decided it.

G. W. Dominated Play

The loss was particularly irksome to G. W. in view of the fact it dominated play almost throughout. Wayne never got a chance to play on the Colonial end of the field until it reached George Washington's 45 in the next-to-last play of the first half.

Seven Wayne fumbles were spotting G. W. chance after chance but after Kline's terrific run the invaders were playing it very safe until Wayne started a march that reached the G. W. 37 early in the third period. Three times the Colonials' Frank Kley kicked on second down during the third quarter and as the fourth opened they were moving to midfield on Joe Bernot's slant through the line.

The inspiring runs of Florea and Hazely came then and despite the desperate passing of Charlie Butler the Colonials weren't much of a threat after that. The Colonials got a last minute break when defensive holding was called on the Tartars, putting the ball on G. W.'s 40, but the game ended as a final Butler toss plopped uncaught in the mud at midfield.

Payoff Tally Is Set Up By Fumble

Columbia, Mo., Nov. 15 (AP).—Brilliant spot punting by Darrel Royal and an enemy fumble set up the winning touchdown as Oklahoma toppled the Missouri Tigers off the top rung of the Big Six Conference football standing today, 21 to 12.

Missouri, previously undefeated in three conference starts, carried a 12-to-7 lead going into the final quarter of its Homecoming Day attraction played before a capacity crowd of 28,500.

Royal, who had kicked out of bounds on the Missouri one and two yard lines earlier in the game, sliced his third fine kick out of play on the Missouri three. Tiger Halfback Howard Bonnett fumbled on a smack at right tackle and Oklahoma's Myrle Greathouse pounced on the ball on the four. Halfback George Brewer carried it over.

The Sooners pulled into a tie for the conference lead with the Kansas Jayhawks. Each has a record of three wins and a tie.

'Skins Face Weak Lions In Detroit

A Staff Correspondent

Detroit, Nov. 15.—The least important contest the Washington Redskins have ever played occurs at Briggs Stadium tomorrow when the Detroit Lions furnish the opposition in a National Football League "so what?" game.

Continued rain and possibly snow was the prediction for the meeting of Washington, holders of next-to-last place in the Eastern Division, and Detroit, the cellar club in the Western Division.

Washington's main interest in the game is to break a four-game losing streak and averting, if possible, a sixth 1947 loss which would set a season record for defeats. Detroit, even farther out of the title picture than the 'Skins, has already improved on its '46 record (1 won and 10 lost) with two triumphs in eight games.

A crowd of 20,000 is expected for a contest which has no favorite. Washington can win with a repetition of the excellent performance it turned in while losing to Pittsburgh last week. The Lions need a super-brilliant showing by Bullet Bill Dudley, their ace halfback, to take it.

Dudley, who sat out Detroit's last outing with an injured ankle, today was declared in improved condition and likely to see much action. His chief backfield aid is expected to come from a pair of fine quarterbacks, former Redskin Roy Zimmerman and Clyde Le Force.

Washington goes into its eighth game of the schedule with the services of two brand-new tackles, John Sanchehe and Don Deeks. Sanchehe came to the Redskins this week in a trade with the Lions for Guard Bill Ward, and Deeks was acquired from the Boston Yankees.

Probable line-ups:

Lions Set Back Crusaders, 10-0

New York, Nov. 15 (AP).—Columbia parlayed the good right arm of hard-working Gene Rossides and the sure right foot of Ventan Yablonski into a 10-0 triumph over the football forces of Holy Cross today while 28,000 approving customers shivered at Baker Field.

Rossides, who completed 11 of the 14 passes he threw—eight of them in a row—hurled 30 yards to sticky-fingered Bill Swiacki for the game's only touchdown in the third period and Yablonski, who kicked the extra point, added a 20-yard field goal for good measure in the fourth.

It was the fourth straight victory for the Lions in a string that started with their upset over Army and their third shutout in a row, a feat they last accomplished in 1931.

Idaho Drops Utah, 13-6

Boise, Idaho, Nov. 15 (AP).—The University of Idaho Vandals knocked the University of Utah from the ranks of the Nation's undefeated and united football teams today with a stunning 13 to 6 upset before 8000 fans who sat in a drizzling rain.

The Vandals used a plunging ground attack to overpower the Utes in the first three quarters, then staved off a fourth-period Utah passing attack that produced one counter but couldn't break through for a second.

Woody Delorme, fleet Indian halfback, scored Idaho's first touchdown in the second period, racing 14 yards to scoring territory to climax a 42-yeard drive after an earlier sustained march of 77 yards reached the Utah 3-yard line.

The Vandals scored again early in the fourth period, with Fullback Sam Theis plunging over from the one.

The Utes opened up with an aerial game in the fourth period and ripped through the Vandal defenses for a touchdown with eight minutes left to play. A 15-yard pass from Fireball Frankie Nelson to End Bill Van Sandt gave the Utes their only score.

VMI Toppled By Citadel, 7-6

Charleston, S. C., Nov. 15 (AP).—An inspired band of fighting Citadel Bulldogs upset the dope bucket in the Southern Conference here this afternoon by coming from behind in the final two minutes of play to topple highly favored Virginia Military Institute, 7-6.

After The Citadel's quarterback, Chuch Goodman, had sneaked over from the one, All-State Guard Bill Henderson split the uprights with a perfect placement kick to provide the victory margin.

Henderson had blocked Joe Gantt's punt to set up The Citadel's touchdown.

Quarterback Bill Lock set up VMI's lone score late in the third period when he intercepted a pass and returned 42 yards. Three plays later Lowden circled his right flank to streak 5 yards into the end zone. Garrington's kick was wide.

Rice Routs Aggies, 41-7

Houston, Tex., Nov. 15 (AP).—Rice's late season Owls today possessed the power that was expected of them last September as they ran over the Texas Aggies, 41-7, to hand the Cadets their greatest defeat in the 32 years of rivalry between the two Southwest Conference schools.

After moving quickly for two 71-yard first period touchdown drives, the Owls cashed in on two pass interceptions and a fumble for three more in the second and then wound things up with another in the final period when another Cadet aerial backfired.

Iowa Upsets Minnesota, 13 to 7; Illinois Crushes Ohio State, 28-7

Al Dimarco's Aerials Lead to Victory

Iowa City, Nov. 15 (AP).—Iowa, goaded into a stunning performance by the resignation of its coach, humbled Minnesota, 14 to 7, today for a stirring tribute to Dr. Eddie Anderson in his possible final appearance at the Hawkeye helm.

Victor only over North Dakota State and Indiana in eight previous games, Iowa came up with almost a miraculous Western Conference football performance to halt the favored Gophers.

Battered around by superior Gopher power led by Ev Faunce, Iowa gave up a first-period touchdown to a 63-yard Minnesota march capped by Faunce's plunge from the 2-yard line.

Then Iowa, with little Al Dimarco hurling perfect tosses in five of six attempts, struck for its first touchdown in 4½ minutes at the start of the third period. The counter came on Dimarco's riflelike toss to Herb Shoener in the far corner of the end zone.

Headington closed the scoring with a bull-like thrust through the center after a pass interception. His try for the point was blocked by Bob Healey, Minnesota tackle.

Anderson Quits at Iowa

Iowa City, Iowa, Nov. 15 (AP).—The resignation of Dr. Eddie Anderson, University of Iowa football coach since 1939, was announced today but there was a question whether it would stick.

In a brief interview Anderson indicated he would remain at his post if the athletic board of control would back him.

In a letter to Dr. Paul Blommers, Chairman of the Athletic Board Hancher said as far as I could determine, the action was taken after careful consideration and was based on Dr. Anderson's considered judgment," the letter continued.

The athletic board will hold a previously scheduled meeting here Monday night at which Blommers said the resignation would be considered. Anderson's contract extends through the 1950 season. He told Hancher he wanted to resign effective next July 1.

The coach who came here from Holy Cross College and was hailed as "coach of the year" in his first season when the Hawks won six, lost one and tied one, was paid the third highest salary among State employes last year—$12,500.

The 1947 Hawks have made the poorest record—two victories, five losses and a tie.

The university's student newspaper, the Daily Iowan, had carried several arcticles recently criticizing Anderson's handling of the football personnel.

70,036 See Illini Rally in 4th Period

Columbus, Ohio, Nov. 15 (AP).—Illinois powered and finessed its way to a 28-to-7 victory over Ohio State's hapless Bucks today before 70,036 fans, wheeling to two fast touchdowns in the final session to gram easily a verdict which had been doubtful through the first three quarters.

In the last quarter Illinois' Perry Moss passed from the Ohio 40 to Chick Maggiolo, who took it on the 10 and trotted across for the score. With less than two minutes to go Illinois grabbed the ball on an interception on Ohio's 32 and on the first play Paul Patterson wheeled around left end for the final touchdown.

The victors struck early, marching 52 yards in 16 plays the first time they got the ball, with Russ Steger, fullback, lunging over for the touchdown from the 1-yard line. Moss, star passer for the Illini, completed three of five tosses for 34 yards in the splurge.

A break gave Illinois another in the second session, Bob Cunz picking up Ollie Cline's fumble on the Ohio 35. Eight plays later Tom Gallagher faked a place-kick from the three and tossed six yards to Chick Maggiolo in the end zone for another touchdown.

The third period gave homecoming Ohioans their big chance to cheer. A clipping penalty moved the Illini back to their own 1-yard line, and Dwight Eddleman booted out to the 47. The Bucks battered the line for two first downs to the 25, and then Cline swept around left end after taking a lateral from Dick Slager, and scored standing up. The attendance set a new season's record of 448,363 for Ohio for six games, erasing the 447,178 figure set in 1945.

UCLA Crushes Huskies, 34-7 To Keep Hopes for Title Alive

Los Angeles, Nov. 15 (AP).—The resurgent Bruins of UCLA rolled over the Washington Huskies today, 34-7, to keep alive their chances of deadlocking the bitter championship battle in the Pacific Coast Conference.

Held to a 7-0 lead in the first half, the once-beaten Uclans put on steam and scored four touchdowns in the second half with a brilliant display of running and passing. A crowd of 43,777 fans attended.

The Bruins, defending champions, will meet undefeated Southern California before a sell-out crowd of 101,000 next week. Victory over the mighty Trojans would throw the title race into a tie.

Cougars Win

Corvallis, Oreg., Nov. 15 (AP).—Quarterback Tiz Miller's accurate passing with a wet ball today carried the Washington State Cougars to an upset 14-13 victory over the Oregon State Beavers before 12,400 Oregon State homecoming fans.

His tosses to Halfback Don Paul scored one touchdown and set up another to enable the Cougars to come from behind in the last half. Bill Lippincott kicked the two vital points after touchdown.

Palo Alto, Cal., Nov. 15 (U.P.)—Norman Van Brocklin, Oregon passing and kicking star, led the way to a 21-6 victory over the hapless Stanford Indians today before 15,000 rain-drenched fans.

The Indian line held in check most of the Oregon ground plays, but they couldn't cope with the accurate arm of Van Brocklin, one of the Nation's passing leaders, who threw for two touchdowns .

Purdue Whips Pitt, 28 to 0

Lafayette, Ind., Nov. 15 (AP).—Purdue's Boilermakers won their easiest football victory of the season today, beating the Pittsburgh Panthers, 28 to 0, on a wet field before 19,000 cold spectators.

Only the superior punting of Pitt's Quarterback Bill Hardisty and standout defensive play of Halfback Carl Depasqua kept Purdue from making it even worse. As it was, practically all of the Boilermakers' infrequent troubles were of their own devising—penalties and four fumbles they managed to recover for themselves.

Pittsburgh never was deeper than 5 yards in Purdue territory and it gained only 54 yards net, both rushing and passing, against Purdue's 361.

Halfbacks Harry Szulborski and Norbert Adams picked up most of the Boilermakers' yardage, but 11 backs covered ground for the winners. Szulborski, for a change, did not score, but he prepared the way with 15 runs totaling 119 yards.

Sock 'em Dead

SMU Victory Marked by Near Riot

DALLAS, Nov. 15 (AP).—Southern Methodist's Mustangs rolled on among the Nation's undefeated, untied teams, just two games short of the Southwest Conference championship, today as the Methodist beat stubborn Arkansas, 14-6, in a battle that gave a crowd of 23,000 many anxious moments.

It was not until 56½ minutes of the contest were gone that SMU was sefely past the rugged hurdle.

Penalties hurt Arkansas badly and at the game's close hundreds of fans flooded the field and Referee Jack Sisco floored one fan who jumped on his back. Thirty minutes after the game's close the fans were still on the field milling around and arguing.

It was Sisco who officiated the Texas-Oklahoma game here this year when there was a shower of pop bottles from Oklahoma fans in protest over his rulings. The game ended in a near-riot.

Arkansas stunned homecoming fans with a touchdown late in the first period. The ball went to Arkansas on the SMU 37 and Scott and Leon Campbell alternated in driving to the touchdown. Campbell made it from the 17 in a cutback over left guard. Duval Thornton missed the extra point.

Southern Methodist went ahead deep in the second period on an 81-yard drive sparked by the passing of Gilbert Johnson, who completed nine out of fifteen today for 86 yards. Dick McKissack and Doak Walker rammed the line for timely gains and Walker completed four straight passes as the Mustangs stormed to the Razorback six. McKissack made four in two plunges ,an off-side penalty put the ball on the six-inch line and McKissack rapped right tackle for the touchdown. Walker converted.

The second Southern Methodist touchdown came after Clyde Scott, Arkansas' great running back, fumbled on his 32-yard line. Walker cracked over from the two-yard line and kicked the extra point—his sixteenth in eighteen tries this season.

The real character and charm of this house are not apparent from the outside. There are many unusual interior details, which reflect the imagination and good taste of its architect-owner. A large living room and small library occupy the entire entrance floor. Downstairs, the attractive dining room opens onto a really lovely dining terrace and garden. In addition there is a cheerful modern kitchen and a bath. Above are 2 pleasant bedrooms and bath. The house is in a block where extensive renovation now underway, will greatly enhance its future value.

Hearing Date On Refund by PEPCO Set

The Public Uutilities Commission will hold a public hearing November 24 to consider Potomac Electric Power Co.'s request to stop earmarking about one million a year for refunds to electricity users.

PEPCO currently is putting aside about $95,000 a month to be returned to customers after January 1, 1948.

In its October 17 petition to PUC, the company asked permission to treat the money as regular income. Officials said approval of their request would remove the need of asking a rate boost early next year to meet rising costs.

The petition, if granted, would mean in effect, an actual increase in rates amounting to approximately 10 cents a month for home electricity users, PUC Chairman James H. Flanagan explained.

There would be no increase in the amount of monthly bills, but consumers wouldn't receive a refund at the end of the year, he explained.

Revision of PEPCO's "sliding scale" arrangement also will be considered at the hearing, Flanagan said. Both PUC and the company agree that controversial provisions of the rate-setting machinery need to be worked out in greater detail.

Scrap Workers To Vote on Pact

Baltimore, Nov. 15 (AP).—Workers at the Patapasco Scrap Corp., subsidiary of the Bethlehem Steel Co., vote here tomorrow on whether to accept a 6-cent wage increase effective on Monday.

Bethlehem announced today that terms of a tentative one-year contract will be effective at 12:01 a. m. Monday if ratified by Local 43 of the Industrial Union of Marine and Shipbuilding Workers (CIO).

The pact, settling the final phases in a strike that began June 26 and at its height idled 100,000 shipyard workers at Bethlehem yards on three coasts, was announced yesterday in Philadelphia.

Virginia Milk Board Studies Price Pleas

Richmond, Va., Nov. 15 (AP).—The State Milk Commission today took under advisement separate requests for boosts in milk prices by producers and distributors in the Roanoke and Pulaski-Giles-Montgomery County areas.

Distributors in both areas sought hikes of 2 cents a quart in retail prices. Produeers in the Roanoke area asked an increase from $5.40 to $5.90 a hundredweight, and Pulaski-Giles-Montgomery producers sought a boost from $5.40 to $5.95.

Creek Is Tapped To Supply Water For Martinsburg

Martinsburg, W. Va., Nov. 15 (AP). This Eastern Panhandle city enjoyed a normal water supply again today after 36 hours in which the supply was rationed throughout the city and entirely cut off in some sections.

Crews working all night brought water from Tuscarora Creek to supplement the usual source of supply from springs. The State Health Department approved the new source, and the water from the creek is undergoing double chlorination.

A rationing plan imposed previously allowed a full supply for stated hours during the day, during which residents were asked to fill receptacles. Schools were ordered closed as a precautionary measure, but they will reopen Monday, County Superintendent William Ropp announced.

Virginia Output Of Milk, Poultry At Record Levels

Richmond, Va., Nov. 15 (AP).—Virginia's chickens and cows are producing at record levels and the corn crop is better than had been expected, but otherwise, things are just about average down on the farm, according to the Virginia Crop Reporting Service.

The average number of layers and production per layer in October were both larger than last year, the service said, and October production was the greatest on record for the month. Total production for the first 10 months of this year, also is at an all-time high.

For the fourth consecutive month, average production per cow ranked in October ahead of the corresponding month of last year. Total production for the four months is the highest on record.

Corn production now is placed at 39,550,000 bushels, some 14 per cent above average production during the last 10 years.

Md. Bar Given New Problem On Court's Rule

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 15 (AP).—Maryland lawyers have a new legal problem to ponder by the Court of Appeals—a set of revised rules effective throughout the State, including a procedure to effect speedier justice on uncontested claims.

The tribunal, empowered by law to set up procedure for all the Maryland courts, has adopted the changes on recommendation of its standard committee on rules of practice and procedure. Judge Levin C. Bailey of Salisbury heads the group.

In a statement announcing the rules, Chief Judge Ogle Marbury said the committee had worked a year and a half on the changes "intended to clarify and simplify the administration of justice." Copies of the rules will be made available in book form.

Youth Program Red Cross Topic At 3-State Talk

Frederick, Md., Nov. 15 (AP).—Twenty-five delegates from Red Cross chapters in Maryland, Virginia and West Virginia discussed plans for a Red Cross youth program today at a regional convention of the Junior Red Cross.

Mrs. Lyle Williams of Alexandria, Va., spoke on the possibility of the Junior Red Cross sponsoring a youth program in the tri-State area.

Julian Brooks of Alexandria, general field representative, presided at the one-day convention at the Frederick YMCA. Dr. W. V. Garrett of the Frederick Lutheran Church gave the invocation.

Grandfolks Send Wedding Regrets

Baltimore, Nov. 15 (AP).—The John F. Nagels sent their regrets to the Lord Chamberlain today declining an invitation to a royal party next Tuesday at St. James' Palace, London.

The Nagels' grandson, Milton, 12, sent a wedding present—a vase—to Princess Elizabeth last summer, and on Monday an invitation to the party came.

Offers of free air transportation, hotels, furs, gowns, jewels and even a maid poured into the Nagel household. Nagel, a courthouse clerk, explained: "I wish we had been younger. We would have taken that trip."

Rededication Days Precede Freedom Train

The Commissioners yesterday proclaimed a "week of rededication to American ideals and principles" for the District from November 20 to 28 in connection with the arrival here Thanksgiving Day of the Freedom Train.

At the same time, Chairman John A. Reilly, who is president of the Washington Board of Trade and the Second National Bank, outlined a program prepared by a general committee for "Rededication Week."

The Freedom Train, a seven-car railroad unit, will travel more than 30,000 miles and visit more than 300 cities in 48 States as part of a Nation-wide program to combat indifference and cynicism towards responsibilities of American citizenship.

The idea for the tour originated with Attorney General Tom C. Clark. It is being sponsored by The American Heritage Foundation.

More than 100 historical documents, including the Constitution the Bill of Rights and the Declaration of Independence, are housed in this National Shrine on Wheels which will arrive in Union Station shortly after midnight of Thanksgiving Day November 27 for a two-day stay.

The train, manned by a specially trained guard of United States Marines, will be open from 10 a. m. to 10 p. m. each day.

In proclaiming Rededication Week, the Commissioners observed that the program "was designed to create a greater awareness of the unique blessings of the American heritage and to raise the level of citizenship through more active participation of individuals in the affairs of their Government."

Chairman Reilly anounced the following program for Rededication Week:

Thursday, November 20, will be Government Day. Government employes in the Federal triangle and Treasury Building, as well as District employes, will be dismissed at 3:30 p. m. to attenad Government Day ceremonies at the departmental auditorium at 4 p. m.

There will be addresses by Attorney General Clark and another high Government official and music by a service band.

Friday, November 21, will be Youth Day. A committee headed by James S. Beattie, president of the Junior Board of Commerce, has arranged the youth program.

In cooperation with the public schools, a special 15-minute broadcast will be made at 1 p. m. and carried into all schools which will hold general assemblies. Boy Scout and Girl Scout troops will hold rededication services at troop meetings and special programs have been planned for District playgrounds.

Saturday, November 22, will be Veterans Day. Gen. Omar N. Bradley, Veterans Administrator, is chairman of the program. Lieut. Gen. J. Lawton Collins, Army deputy chief of staff, will speak at a general meeting of combined veterans groups at 11 a. m. at the Departmental Auditorium. The Army Band will play.

Sunday, November 23, will be Freedom of Religion Day. The program for this day has been arranged by the Rev. Dr. C. Leslie Glenn. The tenets of religious freedom as they pertain to the American heritage will be emphasized in churches of all faiths.

Monday, November 24, will be Women's Day. Mrs. Howard Nichols, chairman, has announced that the role and privileges of women in America will be stressed in a series of radio programs during the day over stations in this area.

Tuesday, November 25, will be Industry Management Day. Labor union and industrial leaders of Washington will call attention to Rededication Week through special announcements and publications among members and employes. Co-chairmen are E. D. Merrill of the Capital Transit Co.; Henry Beitscher, president of the Washington Industrial Union Council (CIO), and Clem F. Preller, representing the Central Labor Union (AFL).

Wednesday, November 26, will be Organization Day. Chairman is Howard S. LeRoy. Major civic and professional groups will meet in combined sessions. Attorney General Clark will speak at a Soroptimist Club-Women's Advertising Club luncheon at 12:30 p. m. at the Washington Hotel. Kiwanis and Rotary clubs will hold a joint luncheon at the Mayflower Hotel.

The following day is Thanksgiving Day and the Freedom Train will be opened to the public at Union Station after special ceremonies. Reilly has named Joseph C. McGarraghy, chairman of the Board of Trade's Greater National Capital Committee, to arrange the ceremonies.

Christmas Bazaars Are Prelude to Holidays

Harris & Ewing

MRS. A. PETER DEWEY, head of the junior commitee of the American Aid to France bazaar, seems to be having as much fun as her daughter, Nana, as they preview toys to be sold at the bazaar Tuesday at the French Embassy.

The doll house in background will be awarded the person who comes closest to guessing the number of beans in the pot now on display at The Toy Shop, 808 17th st. nw.

4 Benefits Scheduled Tuesday

PRELUDE to "Jingle Bells." Santa Claus and the tinsel-decked Christmas tree are the annual Christmas bazaars . . . and this year there seems to be a real bumper crop in Washington and vicinity.

Featured by gay booths, turkey and ham dinners and the conviviality and good will of a county fair, most of these bazaars are sponsored by various church groups. Many have become Washington institutions. All are benefits and serve a worthy cause Nonsectarian and with universal appeal are the Pinhoe and American Aid to France bazaars, which fit into the American plan of helping unfortunates abroad.

Seldom do women work more closely and informally together than in the atmosphere of getting ready for a bazaar and practically every woman in Washington is on some bazaar committee . . . making homemade candy . . . turning out pretty aprons . . . knitting babies' booties, and all those other homey things so typical of bazaars.

Yes, the bazaar is really the Christmas shopper's heaven.

At least four are scheduled for Tuesday, which seems to be the busiest day of the week.

The French Embassy on Kalorama rd. will be the setting for the American Aid to France bazaar from 11 a. m. to 7 p. m. Among the unusual features will be the sound of the auctioneer's hammer from 5 to 7 o'clock. Gifts sent from many parts of the United States will be offered on the auction block, which will be presided over by James W. O'Brien of Sloane's, who is donating his services. Cartier's, New York jewelers, have contributed a pin called "Love's Dart;" Elizabeth Arden has sent a beautiful purse; Mme. Marguerite, Chicago designer, has made a gift of a bag for sea, land and air travel; other articles to be sold to the highest bidder include an assortment of French perfumes; gifts from Mary Chess and Henri Bendel, a complete set of Haviland china.

ANY person interested in being godparent to a French child may apply at the godparent committee table and choose a boy or girl from a list of needy children. To this "filleul" (godchild), the "parent" must promise to send a package of food or clothing twice a month for at least six months or a year. Money will be accepted from those who wish to help but don't have time to prepare the packages.

Pastries, French dressing and other gourmet specialties also will be on sale and tea will be served during the late afternoon. Mrs. Burrall Hoffman is the bazaar's able chairman. No invitations are necessary; the public is invited.

Promptly at 11 a. m. Tuesday the doors will open, too, at the parish hall of the Church of the Epiphany, 1317 G st. nw., which will be transformed into a "village for a day." Old glass and china from many of Washington's famous homes will make browsing a delight at the antique booth, toys and children's clothes will be found at the Kiddie Shoppe, in another booth there'll be bags and aprons, and a Kandy Kitchen will offer homemade goodies, a "Country Store" will be filled with jellies, jams and pickles made from cherished family recipes.

At noon, soup, salads, sandwiches and desserts will be available at the Snack Bar and in the evening there'll be a supper featuring Boston baked beans and brown bread. Mrs. J. Pervis Milnor is general chairman

MRS. FRANK COSTENBADER, center, chairman of the bazaar to be held Tuesday for Christ Episcopal Church, Georgetown, and Mrs. John Anschutz, the rector's wife, right, are impressed with the plastic ornaments made for the event by Mrs. Stuart O. Foster, treasurer of St. Stephen's Guild, which sponsors the annual benefit. Little Mark Semmes Anschutz is more interested in the prancing hobby horse which will be offered as a prize

Incidental Intelligence

'Oakie' Wife of Gen. Meyers Missed Fame But Latched Onto a Maid in Hollywood

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

INVESTIGATION NOTES. The wife of Maj. Gen. Bennett E. Meyers, now under fire by the Senate War Investigation Committee, has been referred to as a Hollywood actress. Hers is a typically American "rags-to-riches" saga. As a teen-ager with hyphenated first name of Ila-Rae she quit Oklahoma for California in tow of a pretty, ambitious mama. Dubbed the "Beautiful Oakie" and with "Rhoades" as a new, random-chosen last name she made the agents' rounds, couldn't get started. Then she met Arthur Lyons, over-40 bachelor and successful movie agent. To insure a movie test Lyons wangled a stock contract, eventually Ila-Rae was given a few "bit" roles. In the interval between her marriage to Lyons, she was lent a house belonging to one of his friends. Ila-Rae walked off with the friend's maid, a crime second to none in Hollywood and which doomed her to irrevocable movie colony unpopularity. Unable to achieve stardom, Lyons sent her on a consolation trip to New York. Equipped with swell clothes, jewelry, she discovered such glitter boites as "21," El Morocco and the Colony. She returned for a divorce and sometime later married the energetic general.

LIGHTER PROBE NOTE. At the House Foreign Affairs Committee hearings on Interim Aid eight legal aides sat behind Undersecretary of State Lovett. Working night and day it was obvious the lads hadn't had time for beauty parlor seances. Undersecretary Lovett, glancing around at his disheveled cohorts, laughed: "You look like a bunch of poets. There isn't one of you who doesn't need a haircut—badly!"

RISING SUN. Some time back this department scribbled how Nip propagandists were selling General MacArthur to the home folks, cooked up a fancy family tree linking him to some mythical Jap god. When MacArthur heard this tall tale he drew several slow puffs on his pipe, drawled, "Well, I'm son of a son of a Sun God!"

ferred to our Senate Foreign "Affairs" Committee, is credited with the following snappy retort, "You are in error, sir! In the United States we have a House and a Senate. Members of the House are young, members of the Senate are old. So it's the House which has Foreign 'Affairs' while the Senate can only have 'Relations!'"

"JUST your size!" laughs Mrs. William N. Mansfield, chairman of All Souls' Unitarian Church bazaar, as she tries a chef's apron on Lawrence Staples, executive secretary of the church. Mrs. John A. Miss Sue Meyer Feted at Luncheon

MISS DOROTHY BOOKER and Miss Dorothy Kursch were hostesses at a luncheon in the Louise Seize Room of the Shoreham yesterday. The luncheon was given in honor of Miss Sue Meyer, who will be married on November 28 to Edward Richard Page, former major in the Army. The wedding will take place in Grand Rapids, home of the bride-to-be.

Among the guests were Miss Jeannette Moore, Miss Jeanette Minnis, Miss Dorothy Toombs, Miss Ruth Ewing, Miss Joyce Reynolds, Miss Jinx Fitz, Miss Ruth Smith, Miss Dorothy Toplitzky, Miss Mary Neely Roseboro and Miss Anita Gilleo.

Potpourri of Parties

Princes, Authors and Delegates Are Honored

By Marie McNair

TWO NEAR EASTERN princes; a popular singer, a distinguished author, a honeymoon couple and a group of members of the bar. Put them all together and what've you got? Why, a potpourri of parties, and all of them taking place yesterday afternoon.

Wrapped in burnooses and the flowing garments worn by princes of the blood, Nawaf and Tallah, Saudi Arabia's teen-aged sons of King Ibn Saud, were honor guests at a small reception yesterday given by the Saudi Arabian Minister, Sheikh Asad Al-Faqih. The two boys who would be in prep school of they had been born in America, flew in from California on Friday. They expect to be off to New York today to wait for the close of the U. N. session when they'll go home with their elder brother, Prince Faisal.

Michael Bartlett, whose tenor voice is so well known on the stage, is here for the weekend and saw some of his old friends at the cocktail party yesterday given for him by Mrs. Randolph Huntington Miner. Mrs. Miner calls Michael one of her "boys," which means he's a deserving young man with a career in which she has a particular interest.

FROM 5 to 8 o'clock yesterday Mr. and Mrs. Emil Hurja's house was like Grand Hotel, for guests were checking in and out in a steady stream. Guests of honor were Marquis James and his attractive wife, Bess; Mr. Hurja's sister-in-law, Mrs. Arthur Oliver Hurja, and her daughters, Marijane and Bette. The latter brought with her a brand new husband—James Robert King, whom she married on Wednesday in Chicago. The girls had a grand time yesterday renewing friendships from the days when they made their Washington debut six years ago.

Mr. James, twice a Pulitzer Prize winner, is perhaps best known for his biographies on "Andrew Jackson — the Border Captain" and "Andrew Jackson: Portrait of a President." Bess James is the researcher in the family, although she's an author as well. This writing, roving pair recently returned from Peru, where they went to gather material on the late William R. Grace, founder of many enterprises, and were in the West in connection with still another book yet to be written. Gudren Hurja had put autumn flowers everywhere in her rambling house yesterday and she matched her red crepe gown to the red roses on the buffet table.

Among those enjoying this pleasant party were the Norwegian Ambassador and Mme. Munthe de Morgenstierne, the Finish Minister and Mme. Jutila, the Argentine Ambassador and Senora de Ivanissevich, the Minister of Luxembourg and Mme. LeGallais, the Secretary of Labor and Mrs. Lewis Schwellenbach, Senator and Mrs. Homer Ferguson, the Indian Ambassador and Mme. Asaf Ali.

Judge and Mrs. Bennett Champ Clark were there and Gen. and Mrs. Richard Cutts were up from their home in Virginia.

Then there were Admiral and Mrs. Clark Woodward, Gen. and Mrs. William D. Connor, Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Diggs, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Distler, the Agricultural Attache of the Swedish Legation and Mme. Gregor Bendez, the Naval Attache of the Danish Embassy and Mme. Kjoelsen, Representative and Mrs. Lowell Stockman, Representative and Mrs. Hal Holmes, Admiral A. J. Hepburn and his niece Mrs. William P. Mattox, Mr. and Mrs. Eric Johnston, Mrs. Harry G. Meem, Mr. and Mrs. Eldon P. King, Dr. and Mrs. Leo Brison Norris, Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Conger Pratt and Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Virgil Peterson.

CONGRATULATIONS to Juan Bautista de Lavalle were in order yesterday.

Host at a large reception at the Peruvian Embassy, Dr. de Lavalle might also have been celebrating his election as president of the governing board of the Pan American Union, which was made known last Monday.

But instead, the Peruvian diplomat, who's also a noted international lawyer, was toasting the United States lawyers who are to leave soon for Peru for the fifth conference of the Inter-American Bar Association opening in Lima on November 25.

Dr. de Lavalle took his seat on the governing board as Ambassador to the Pan American Union a year and a half ago. He served as delegate to the Inter-American Conference of Experts on Copyrights held at the Pan American Union in 1946, and that same year was named delegate from Peru to the General Assembly of U. N. in New York.

He was also president of the Peruvian delegation to the first special meeting of the United Nations to consider the Palestine case.

Elected by Congress to the Peruvian Supreme Court in 1945, Dr. de Lavalle began to be active in international affairs as early as 1910 when he was delegate to the Second Inter-American Student Congress in Buenos Aires. When he was 24—that was in 1913—he was appointed organizing secretary in Peru of the American Association for International Conciliation of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace.

Welcoming the guests with the host, who is a bachelor, was Senora de Fernandez-Davila, wife of the Charge d'Affaires of Peru.

Guests numbered more than 300 and included all the Latin-American Chiefs of Missions and their wives; the South American representatives to the Pan American Union and their wives and the Director General of the Pan American Union and Senora de Lleras as well as other officers of the institution.

Delegates and wives to the Lima Inter-American Conference from Washington who were there yesterday included Mrs. Helen L. Clagett, Mr. and Mrs. Malachi L. Harney, Miss Carolyn Just, Mr. and Mrs. David B. Karrick, Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Kelly, Miss Agatha LaLonde, Mr. and Mrs. George Maurice Morris, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Posner, Mr. and Mrs. Stephen J. Spingarn, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Turlington, Mr. and Mrs. William R. Vallance, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Bass Warner and Mrs. Dorothy Roth Wilson.

Among others there were Mr. and Mrs. Robert Anderson, Admiral and Mrs. O. S. Colclough, Richard Flournoy, Col. and Mrs. Ralph Hallett, Mr. and Mrs. Francis W. Hill, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Weigester, Judge and Mrs. George Neilson, Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur L. Gray, Mr. and Mrs. James Oliver Murdock and Judge Andrew M. Hood.

Mrs. Truman to Be Guest of Honor At Democratic Tea

Mrs. Truman will be guest of honor when the Woman's National Democratic Club holds a benefit tea Thursday, 4 to 6 p. m., at the home of Mrs. Dwight Davis, 1801 Foxhall rd. Proceeds will go toward the clubhouse alteration fund.

One of the highlights of the tea will be viewing Mrs. Davis' notable collection of English furniture and paintings.

Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, club president and chairman of the benefit affair, has announced that those who will pour tea include Mrs. J. W. Fulbright, Mrs. John Nicholas Brown, Mrs. Raymond Clapper, Mrs. Franklin Gunther, Mrs. Oscar Cox and Mrs. Joseph Casey.

Daughter Is Born To John A. Crogans

Mr. and Mrs. John A. Crogan are being congratulated on the birth of a daughter Friday in Garfield Hospital. Mrs. Crogan is the former Miss Eileen Erwin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Parsons Erwin. She and Mr. Crogan, who have been living in Detroit, recently returned and are living in Alexandria.

The baby will be christened Monica Blake for her maternal great-grandmother.

Mrs. Erwin, grandmother of the baby, who broke a leg while in Michigan several weeks ago, is back from Johns Hopkins Hospital and is now convalescing at home.

They're All 'Conversation Pieces'

By Marjorie Binford Woods

PEOPLE are bound to talk. And when they do, why not give them something unusual to gab about?

That's the purpose of "Conversation Pieces," whether they are in your home, hanging around your neck, or, like Rhoda Rubel's amusing juggling-trapeze performers—popping right out of your hat!

A tremendous pair of gorgeous jeweled earrings is the arresting peg on which conversation hangs whenever Mrs. Gustave Pabst (Beatrice) comes a-partying in her startling new Chilean acquisitions.

A priceless collection of family portraits, enhanced by wide glistening frames of ornate Peruvian silver are instant eye-catchers and tongue-looseners for guests who enter the Westchester domicile of the Admiral Clark Howell Woodwards for the first time. Charlotte Woodward's beautiful satin and velvet crazy-quilt of modernistic pattern, and the luxurious box-quilt she made for her hubby to take to sea, also come in for much talk among the couple's admiring friends.

"How long did it take you to make these beautiful quilts?" is invariably the lead-question which people ask Mrs. Woodward as they gaze in awe at the rich, colorful works-of-art, embellished with tiny embroidered flowers and fancy stitches of all sorts.

When the story comes out that it was only a three-month needling process for Mrs. W. to make each coverlet, conversation gains momentum. Listeners learn that the masterpieces were evolved at a time when their originator was ill, while the Woodwards were stationed at the Brooklyn Navy Yards in the early part of the war. Furthermore, the thousands of painstaking stitches really reacted as "medicine" for their maker and helped inspire many other Navy wives to get busy likewise with their hands while warrior-husbands were on dangerous missions.

Collects Old Cups

An example combining a personality quirk and a conversation piece is the exciting collection of 150 old-fashioned mustache cups belonging to H. Russell Bishop, Washington attorney, who sports a neatly-trimmed hairy upper-lip himself.

It all started when Mr. Bishop's mother-in-law, Mrs. Edward Greenhalgh, 2222 Q st. nw., was about to consign to the ash heap a blackened silver mustache cup, dated 1895. Nostalgic over a gold-leafed china mustache cup of his grandfather's, which had impressed him as a child, Mr. Bishop was impelled to rescue the collector's piece from the heap and make it the original of his own "collection."

Now with a multitude of Haviland, Limoges, Spode, Royal Dalton and Sevres "beauties" presented to him by friends and collected by him and his family from 22 States of the Union, the Bishops have fun utilizing the unique cups for cocktail parties, as containers for "old-fashioneds."

"The bars across the tops of the cups not only keep dangling mustaches from getting lost but they also hold the orange and pineapple slices in an old-fashioned from interfering with the drink, for port-side sippers," Mr. Bishop adroitly points out.

In pursuit of left-handed mustache cups—just for uniqueness in the collection—the Bishops have searched antiques shops far and wide. But so far, it's been to no avail.

Colorful floral patterns, birds, and silver-encrusted cups make up the bulk of the collection which the Bishops keep on display in corner cupboards of their interesting home at 2235 Q st., where twin grand pianos also provide conversation in their drawing room.

Fish Bowl Is Fun

A genuine pearl, displayed in a shiny mother-of-pearl seashell, is only one of the many "conversation pieces" which draw guests to the fish tank in the foyer of Mrs. William Pope Anderson's Carlin Apartment home. There under effective fused lighting, swim tiger fish, red wag tails, zebra-fish, angel fish, neon tetra, pencil fish, alligator catfish and snails, as scavengers. Surrounded by growing four-leaf clovers and slim-leaved green plantlife, Marguerite Anderson's "fish bowl" causes excitement at every gathering in her artistically decorated apartment.

Framed in a setting of Chinese red bamboo, and hanging just opposite the attractive bar which is a "come-hither" part of her apartment, there is a perpetual motion, waterfilled picture inclosing a fighting Siamese fish of cardinal hue.

Hats at any time are conversational. But hats built around original ideas and classical inheritances of lace, fans and feathers are especially provoking to lovers of real art. That is what is symbolized in the headgear inspired by raven-haired Mrs. A. C. (Edith) Burrows, wife of a United States Navy captain. Natively of New Orleans, this designer and originator of feminine frippery, started out at the age of 9 making "conversational pieces."

"I was so fascinated with a scarf which my aunt brought me from Italy, when I was only a child, that I shocked my parents by winding it around a white beaver hat and wearing it to a party," Mrs. Burrows recalls. Ever since then she has treasured odds and ends of imported laces, parasols and wearing paraphernalia of all kinds brought back from Europe by her grandfather, who was a minister to France, and other peripatic relatives—until now has quite a wealth of material added to her own world collection from which to make hats that are meaningful in rare beauty.

"White House Tea" is a conversational headpiece which she intends to present to Mrs. Harry Truman. It is fabricated of a rare lace collar and a garden shower of miniature vari-colored flowers.

"Many people love to display their treasures of beautiful things in cabinets in their homes, but I prefer to make them up into something useful and wearable for anyone who takes a fancy to them," Mrs. Burrows says.

Surrounded by conversational pieces in his new hobby shop, "Little Brimstone," which is a replica of his family home at Fairfax, Va., "Buster" Brown, son of the Judge Paul E. Browns, counts a pair of black shoe molds as his most interesting show piece of the moment.

In an open house scheduled today at headquarters on Lee Highway, opposite the Fairfax High School, 18-year-old Buster will meet his public officially for the first time after working for a year in his own studio making hand-tooled merchandise such as miniature silver boxes, salt boxes and letter boxes.

Actually, the project is a family one, with everyone, from 16-year-old daughter, Natalie, to the judge, pitching in. The entire county of Fairfax, also, will contribute to the gift products which will be on sale in this gift shop.

Having passed the West Point examinations for entrance next July, Buster knew of no better enterprise to follow in these intervening months than to pursue his own bent for making fun out of his home work.

Conversation pieces are definitely a facet of personality—and are the "unusual" which make you YOU.

AN old-fashioned silver mustache cup, rescued from his mother-in-law's ash heap several years ago, started H. Russell Bishop (right) on an amusing collecting hobby, which keeps conversation humming when party guests are served "old fashioned" drinks from the cross-barred cups. Here Mrs. Bishop examines the silver antique which was the original of the collection

"SECOND WEDDING," a provocative hat using a rare Brussels lace wedding hankie, is the inspiration of Mrs. Edith Burrows (standing), in her collection of head gear. Mrs. Robert Collier models the hat

A "little gem" of a conversation piece is the genuine pearl which nestles in a mother-of-pearl sea shell at the bottom of the colorful fish tank which Mrs. William Pope Anderson has in the foyer of her interesting Q st. apartment

. . . bride of yesterday

Crawford—Moore

White chrysanthemums decorated the Shrine of the Blessed Sacrament Church yesterday for the wedding of Miss Patricia Anne Moore, daughter of Mrs. John F. Moore and the late Mr. Moore, and John Lamb Crawford, son of Mrs. Charles A. Crawford and the late Mr. Crawford.

The bride was given in marriage by her cousin, William Blakely Jones. She wore an ivory satin gown made with a long train and a deep yoke of net. The full skirt was gathered at one side by a cluster of roses from which fell three tiers of tulle. Her full length veil was of French illusion and she carried her great-grandmother's lace handkerchief and a white prayer book covered with white orchids.

The matron of honor, Mrs. James Brown Morrison, jr., wore a period gown of rose velvet and carried a shower bouquet of ivy. Miss Alice Bolton was maid of honor and was gowned similarly to the matron of honor.

The bridesmaids were Miss Dana Bell, Miss Betty Jo Manfuso and Miss Mary Elizabeth Fischer of Port Chester, N. Y. They wore gowns of deep rust color velvet and carried ivy bouquets. All wore long velvet gloves matching their gowns. Junior bridesmaids were Barbara Jones and Kathleen Moore. They wore Kate Greenway frocks of white organdy and carried miniature ivy bouquets.

Warren Robert Pittman was best man and the ushers were Francis H. McAdams, Robert R. Overmyer, John Hayden Moore and Robert Dougan, jr. The bride's brother, James Gerry Moore, was junior usher.

The bride was graduated from Holy Cross Academy and attended Rosemont College in Rosemont, Pa. The bridegroom attended Loyola University in Chicago, the University of Indiana and was graduated from Columbus University Law School.

MRS. FRANCIS M. FAHY
. . . Navy officer's bride

Fahy—Barker

In the chapel at Fort Myer, Va., yesterday Miss Mitzi Irene Barker became the bride of Comdr. Francis M. Fahy, USN, with the Rev. James A. Magner of Catholic University officiating.

The bride is the daughter of John Wiley Barker of Virginia and Maryland and her husband is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis P. Fahy of New Rochelle, N. Y.

Lieut. Walter F. Barker, USA, gave his sister in marriage. She wore white satin made with a sweetheart neckline, fitted bodice and full skirt. Her finger-tip veil was worn with a coronet of orange blossoms and she carried white roses.

Mrs. Walter Duncan, who served her sister as matron of honor, wore Kelly green chiffon velvet with a matching Juliet cap and carried an old-fashioned bouquet of rust-colored chrysanthemums and yellow roses. The bridesmaids were Mrs. Morgan Anglim, sister of the bridegroom, and Mrs. Dan Frank, cousin of the bride, in royal blue velvet gowns, and Mrs. Joseph Barker and Miss Laura Curry, in fuchsia gowns. All carried yellow chrysanthemums. Dianna Marie Barker, the flower girl, wore a rose-colored frock.

Lieut. Arthur G. Falk of the Air Forces was best man and the ushers were Lieut. Comdr. Shelby C. Leasure, USN; Lieut. Comdr. W. Howard Nolan, USN; Lieut. D. C. Frank, USN, and Lieut. John C. Senter, USN.

The bride attended Benjamin Franklin University and the bridegroom attended Yale University.

Ulrich—Tweedy

Mrs. Dorothy Price Tweedy, Easton, Md., and Waldorf C. Ulrich, Plainfield, N. J., were married November 14 in Annapolis. The ceremony took place at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Harry Price, in the presence of members of the immediate family.

After a wedding trip the couple will be at home at Oaklands Cottage, Easton. Mr. Ulrich is son of the late Judge and Mrs. John Ulrich, Plainfield.

Autumn Brides

Parham—Wesley

In National Baptist Memorial Church yesterday, Miss Marvel E. Wesley became the bride of Thomas G. Parham, with the Rev. Erwin H. Potts officiating.

The bride is daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford E. Wesley, Hibbing, Minn., and Mr. Parham is son of Mrs. Thomas G. Parham and the late Mr. Parham, South Hill, Va.

Mr. Wesley gave his daughter in marriage. She was costumed in white satin, designed with full skirt and long train. Her fingertip-length illusion veil was held with a halo trimmed with orange blossoms and she carried an arm bouquet of white roses. Mrs. Frances Fisher, matron of honor, wore yellow marquisette with halo of flowers and matching veil. Her bouquet was of vari-colored pompoms. Bridesmaids were Miss Charlotte Wesley, Miss Betty Small, Mrs. Dallas Kalvert and Miss Jeannette Hughes. They wore marquisette frocks in pastel shades and their flowers were pompoms.

Frank H. Pitzinger served as best man and ushering were John A. Pitzinger, Thomas M. Beckham, Joseph Fisher and Thomas Fitzgibbon.

A reception took place immediately following the ceremony. The couple left later for a Southern wedding trip and will reside in Arlington. Mr. Parham attended Hampden-Sydney College.

Erickson—Wheatley

Miss Joan Wheatley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Fellows Wheatley, this city, and Robert Lyle Erickson, St. Peter, Minn., were married November 7 in Grace Episcopal Church in Georgetown.

The Rev. M. M. Perkins performed the ceremony, which was followed by a reception at the home of the bride's parents. Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of satin and appliqued nylon. Her veil was held with a wreath of orange blossoms and she carried a bouquet of roses with an orchid center. Miss Janice Wheatley, maid of honor for her sister, wore a blue ensemble and carried yellow chrysanthemums. Miss Betty Mounts, bridesmaid, in a similiar costume, carried pink flowers. William Mounts was best man and ushering were Charles F. Wheatley, jr., Robert Back, F. Lloyd Weaver and Charles Dalton. The newlyweds left later for a wedding trip to Atlantic City.

The bride is a graduate of George Washington University. Mr. Erickson, who is attending Medical School at the same university, served four years in the Navy.

Robert Laut Marries Miss Frances Ann Becker

Miss Frances Ann Becker and Robert John Laut were married yesterday at the home of the bride's father, Joseph A. Becker, in Takoma Park. Mr. Laut is son of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Laut, Silver Spring.

Officiating at the ceremony was the Rev. James F. King. Escorted in marriage by her father, the bride wore an ivory-brocaded satin dress, cut on princess lines with a sweetheart neckline. Her fingertip length veil of illusion was held with a crown of orange blossoms and she carried a prayer book and bouquet of orchids.

Miss Margaret Becker, maid of honor for her sister, was dressed in bronze-rose taffeta and carried a nosegay of vari-colored mums with headdress to match. Herbert Laut served his brother as best man. A reception took place immediately following the ceremony.

After a wedding trip to Florida the couple will reside in Silver Spring.

In New York

Representative and Mrs. Roy O. Woodruff of Michigan spent the weekend in New York. They attended the Metropolitan Opera Friday night to hear the "Magic Flute" and attended the opera matinee yesterday for "Tosca." This afternoon they will be in the audience at the New York Philharmonic Symphony Orchestra concert, and will return to Washington this evening.

Here From U. N. Sessions

The Ambassador of Uruguay and Senora de Blanco and their two children, Juan Carlos and Margarita, have returned to their apartment in the Mayflower from New York, where the Ambassador serves as chairman of the Uruguayan delegation to the United Nations.

Although the De Blancos will return to New York shortly to their apartment in the Ritz-Carlton, the children will remain here with their governess.

The Service Set

By Bessie Hackett

"WELCOME" and "Aloha" is the double theme of the late afternoon reception to be given in Fort Myer's Hop Hall Friday by the officers of the Military District of Washington.

Guests of honor will be Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Claude B. Ferenbaugh, who'll be leaving early in the new year for Honolulu, and Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Hobart Gay, recently returned from Munich. General Gay is succeeded by General Ferenbaugh as MDW commanding officer, the latter having been assigned as C. O. of Scofield Barracks.

Pretty Dorothy Anne Ferenbaugh will finish out the school year at William and Mary College, where she has a job in the bursar's office. She's all elated, however, over the prospect of joining her parents next summer in Hawaii. Incidentally, the Ferenbaughs are spending this weekend in the general's home town of Penn Yan, N. Y., up in the Finger Lakes district.

To the Gays, their new assignment is like a homecoming, for they were stationed at Fort Myer in 1939-40. Highlight of 15 pleasant months in Bavaria for Mrs. Gay was the wedding of their daughter, Alzina, on September 21 in Starnburg. Tall, blonde Alzina, who attended Gordan Junior High, St. Margaret's School in Tappahannock, Va., and Mount Holyoke, married her father's aide—good-looking Lieut. William D. McNaughton, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. D. McNaughton of Pekin, Ill. The wedding was in a garden and the bride's traditional satin gown came from Switzerland.

In town for a few days with his parents last week was Lieut. Hobart Gay, jr., graduated from "the Point" last year and until recently stationed in Sumter, S. C. He's Honolulu-bound and started driving West Friday.

'TIS RUMORED the peal of wedding bells and scent of orange blossoms are in store for that personality-plus brownette, Marty Duruz. However, her mother, Mrs. Willis P. Duruz, who came all the way from Oregon to visit her daughter in her Georgetown apartment, isn't giving out anything official.

Mrs. Duruz, who was one of Washington's popular wartime service wives, has reverted to civilian life since her husband laid aside his colonel's uniform and resumed his professorship at Oregon State College in Corvallis. But she still "belongs" and has been having a wonderful time visiting with old friends here, including a couple of days as the house guest of the Chief of Staff and Mrs. Eisenhower.

Marty, you'll remember, chalked up quite a record with her Red Cross activities in Italy and Africa. Since coming home she's been with the Central Intelligence Group. The admirer who's talked her into the orange-blossom idea, we hear, is a former lieutenant colonel in the Army Engineers, blond and handsome and comes from the Deep South. Also, he's just as popular with his prospective in-laws as he is with Marty. Can you guess?

THE second of the monthly dances for Air Force teen-agers, sons and daughters of Air Force officers in the Washington area, will be held at the Bolling Field Officers' Club Friday, 8 to 11:30 p. m. The dances are sponsored by the Air Force Officers' Wives Club and music is by the Air Force Band. Mrs. Earle E. Partridge, wife of Major General Partridge, is committee chairman.

Hosts for the November dance will be Col. and Mrs. Joseph A. Morris and chaperones will be Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Orval Cook, Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Richard Nugent and Col. and Mrs. David Ellinger.

JOTTINGS—Mrs. A. T. Smith, wife of General Smith, will entertain at luncheon at the Army-Navy Club tomorrow honoring Mrs. William M. Hoge, wife of Major General Hoge, Fort Belvoir's C. O. General Hoge was General Smith's engineer officer when the latter commanded the Philippine Division . . . Mrs. Ralph Glasgow returned recently by plane from Japan and is settled at 3100 Connecticut ave. Colonel Glasgow is expected back from Kyoto in January for his new assignment in the Office of the Chief of Transportation. Ralph, jr., who served as a technical sergeant in Kyoto, is now at Virginia Polytechnic Institute and his younger brother, Robert, is a senior at Western High . . . Howard Arnold, stalwart son of Maj. Gen. and Mrs. William H. Arnold, has won another scholarship. Winner of the Pepsi-Cola scholarship last summer, Howard's a freshman at Cornell, specializing in chemistry and metallurgy. Last week he was awarded a substantial five-year scholarship by the American Foundry Association. Only requirement is that during one vacation he works in any foundry of his choice.

MISS JEANNE HOOVER

. . . she's engaged

VICE ADMIRAL and Mrs. John Howard Hoover announce the engagement of their daughter, Jeanne Patricia, to Lieut. Col. James Franklin Mears, USAF.

Miss Hoover made her debut last December at a tea given by her parents at their home and was graduated in June from Georgetown Visitation Junior College.

Lieutenant Colonel Mears is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Harrison of Varnville, S. C., and was graduated from The Citadel in 1939. He served with the Fifteenth Air Force during the war in North Italy and Africa and is now stationed at Intelligence Division Headquarters.

Mrs. L. H. Brereton Gives Luncheon

MRS. L. H. Brereton, wife of Lieutenant General Brereton, entertained at luncheon Friday at the Mayflower for her sister, Miss Celia Bell, who is visiting her from England. Also in the company was Mrs. Brereton's mother, Mrs. Bertha Bell, who arrived recently from England.

Guests included Lady Goddard, Mrs. J. D. Henry, Mrs. Lawrence Williams, Mrs. Burton Hovey, Mrs. West Shott, Mrs. Walter Bryte, Mrs. Ulman Amoss, Mrs. L. B. Ocamb, Mrs. Hamilton Robinson and Mrs. Earle Partridge.

Visit in Cleveland

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Sherby have closed their country home in Beallsville, Md., for the winter, and have left for Cleveland, where they will spend several months.

of extra-smart evening dresses. A black taffeta numero, its full skirt striped with blue insets, is especially striking. When anyone asks her dressmaker's address, handsome Mrs. Harriman replies casually: "Oh! I bought it from Mainbocher in Paris back in 1937 when I was on my way to Oslo." She's kept them in a trunk, prinked them a little, now they're smarter than anything her friends pick up for $400 or $500! Mrs. Harriman, for the fourth time president of the Women's National Democratic Club, is presiding over next Tuesday's tea party at which Mrs. Truman will be guest of honor. Mrs. Dwight F. Davis, whose collection of English paintings and furniture rates star billing, is lending her house for the occasion. Proceeds will go towards an alteration fund for the New Hampshire Avenue Clubhouse. Even during darkest Republican days it was kept going, paid off its mortgage, but now new fire precautions make expensive alterations necessary. Pouring tea will be such feminine Democratic luminaries as Mrs. Will Clayton, Mrs. William J. Fulbright, Mrs. Francis Sayre, Mrs. Oscar Cox, Mrs. Joseph Casey, Mrs. Franklin Mott Gunther.

THERE ARE FOUR pieces of furniture with quite a history in the salon of the Netherlands Embassy. Three are Louis XVI armchairs, one's a low table. All belonged to the new Ambassador and Mme. van Kleffens before the war. But when the Nazis looted Holland their house was completely looted. Shortly after VE-Day charming Mme. van Kleffens was dining with British Major General Clark, chief of the SHAEF Mission to the Netherlands. He was billeted at Clingendaal, a fine house which Seyss-Inquhart, the German commander, had occupied. After dinner Mme. van Kleffens gestured towards the chair on which she was sitting. "If you don't mind, when I leave I'll just take this chair with me," she remarked calmly to the startled general. The old housekeeper was called in to corroborate that it had been brought to Clingendaal by Seyss-Inquhart. The other chairs, the table were recognized by Mme. van Kleffens' sisters in local antique stores. The proprietors, realizing they were stolen, surrendered them without a murmur. Now, cleaned, reupholstered they're quite at home in Washington.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Parents Oppose Their Heroic Prince Charming Son's Chivalrous Love of Fine Girl From Bad Background, but His Sister Is Very Sympathetic

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: My brother, Mike, 18, is a senior in high school, an honor student, an outstanding athlete and very popular.

Almost every girl in school would like to go out with him, but for five years, ever since we moved here, he has been crazy about Joyce, a very nice girl who is, unfortunately, from an absolutely no-good family.

Her parents are often drunk and the mother makes her do most of the housework and take care of the seven younger children. Her two older brothers left school and have jobs and her parents are trying to force Joyce to quit school too; but she is smart and wants to graduate and try to get office work, —and she will do anything to accomplish this.

She is my age, 15, and I have learned to like her better than any girl I have known. She is a perfect friend. I have introduced her to many of the other friends I have made here, and they all like her and think she and Mike are a wonderful couple.

Parents Predict Bad End for Girl

MIKE has told me more than once that it almost kills him to see her so badly treated at home and that he intends to marry her when he is 21 and take her away from that terrible family. I know he means it; he has always had a mind of his own and knows what he wants.

However, my parents are beginning to realize how much he loves Joyce and they are always nagging him to go out with other girls, declaring that a girl from such a family is bound to turn out badly.

Mike was to enter dad's real estate business after graduation, but dad has said that if Mike ever mentions marriage to Joyce, he will have to find other work. And mother, though personally fond of Joyce, says she couldn't tolerate the idea of getting mixed up with that family.

Sister Says Girl Has Great Pride

MIKE works part-time as a radio announcer now, and he could make it a full-time job later. Although the pay would be small, he tells me he will do it if necessary, and marry Joyce—and let the family make the best of it.

On the other hand, if Joyce ever finds out how things are, I know she would refuse to marry him although it's plain that she loves him more than you would believe a 15-year-old girl could love a boy. It isn't puppy love; even mother admits that.

I want them to be happy, as they have been in the past, without this opposition from my parents; and I would hate to see them always apart from our family. What do you suggest in this case?

J. W.

Nothing Achieved By Tense Confabs

DEAR J. W.: This is dramatic stuff, of course—Cinderella and Prince Charming in plain modern clothes. That's why your imagination is so captivated by the situation; why you are so intensely the sentimental advocate of the young lovers' side of the case.

Being a real life proposition, not a fairy tale, there is no guarantee of a happy ending to Mike's and Joyce's love story, however. Who can say what the future holds for them on that score? Not I, for the simple reason that the outcome depends almost entirely on their respective characters—not yet fully formed, tested and proven.

On the other hand, I'm convinced of this: These tense earnest confabs between you and Mike, in which you are figuratively breaking lances against your parents' opposition, aren't accomplishing anything. Indeed your speculative crusading may be likened to children's trying imaginatively to scale a mountain, or cut a road through a forest, seen in the distance.

Grow in Patience; Then Carve Future

THE BEST suggestion I can offer Mike and Joyce is to wait in patience, with banners of honor, faith and courage high, until they are both of adult age, before trying to formulate final plans concerning themselves—as individuals or collectively.

"Many waters cannot quench love, neither can the floods drown it," Scripture says; and if their devotion is based on positive affinity, it will always endure growing in empathy and certitude as they grow in years and stability of character,—so that at say, 23 and 26, they will find it a richer mutual treasure even than it is today.

Brightening Your Life

Hospital's Color Crusade Will Cure Home's Drab Look

By Dorothy Draper

One day I was approached with the question: "Have you ever decorated a hospital?" As usual, brimful of courage, my answer was: "No, but I'd like to."

After I had signed the contract I realized I, who had been so healthy all of my life, had never been a patient in a hospital.

As I am a great believer in finding out things for myself, I called up a doctor friend of mine who arranged for me to go to bed in a private room of a New York hospital for three days. This seemed the speediest way to get started.

After my first hour in bed I realized that the ceiling played an important part in a patient's life. A big crack and a dilapidated light fixture decorated the center of my ceiling. Dingy ecru scrim curtains tried their best to shut out what light there was. Indifferent tan cretonne curtains completed the job. I wondered how a real patient could ever reach the reading light switch.

Faded, spotty pieces of green carpet made reluctant patches on the floor. When I went out into the hall I realized they were just a continuation of tan. And when my lunch arrived on an old chipped black tray with its thick china I began taking notes.

Needless to say, I emerged a crusader. Hospitals, I decided, seemed dedicated to disease, not to health and the thought of getting well.

Experts said the perfect color for hospitals was green. We didn't use it, because what woman wants green when she is ill? We used clear, cheerful colors—white walls with blue or pink ceilings, pale-gray walls with pink ceilings. No vivid colors, but soothing, happy ones.

I'll just list some of the things we did: Installed reading lights with good bulbs and long chains; used beds of Colonial design, but with all the convenient hospital features; put make-up kits and mirrors on the wheeled bed tables; hung crisp, ruffled muslin curtains at the windows with gay swags of flowered chintz; added a really comfortable armchair and ottoman; used black and white marbleized linoleum with a small white cotton rug that could be sent to any laundry; painted the bathrooms white with stencils of green leaves and shiny red apples "to keep the doctor away"; put washable flowered wallpapers with white background in the long corridors; included pink bed trays and durable, but not thick, china with bright green bands, pink roses.

When clear, fresh colors cost no more than drab ones, and cheerful rooms are more healthy than dreary ones, why not start a "cure with color" crusade in your own home?

Arnolds Hosts at Cocktail Party

Maj. Gen. and Mrs. William H. Arnold were hosts at a cocktail party at their War College quarters last night, honoring Col. and Mrs. Henry L. Jones 2d, who arrived yesterday from Wilkes-Barre, Pa. General Arnold and Colonel Jones served in the Fourth Corps together and most of the 40 guests also were in the Fourth Corps with them.

Jangos Plan Luncheon, Hat Show

Mrs. Kenneth C. Royall, Mrs. John L. Sullivan and Mrs. W. Stuart Symington, wives of the Secretaries of the Army, Navy and Air Force, respectively, will be honor guests at the luncheon November 25 at the Army-Navy Country Club launching the invitation-membership program of the Junior Army-Navy Guild Organization. The "over 18s" and associate members and their guests will meet at the club at 12:30.

Special feature will be a showing of hats designed by Philip Robertson and modeled by Jangoes. Mrs. Robert Chaplin, chairman of the membership program, will be assisted at the luncheon by Mrs. Ralph Walker, entertainment chairman.

Membership in the organization is open to wives, daughters, sisters and granddaughters of officers serving, or who have served, in the armed forces. Because of transciency of membership, Mrs. John W. Bowman, president, announces that the executive committee has set aside a certain period of each year for consideration of those qualified and interested in joining.

Luncheon reservations may be made by calling NAtional 5809 and must be in by Friday.

Miss Brown Plans Housewarming Tea

Miss Mildred Brown will give a housewarming tea tomorrow at her new studio, 720 Seventeenth st., the occasion also celebrating the ninetieth birthday anniversary of her father, Herbert Holcombe Brown.

Miss Brown is currently working on a portrait of Mrs. Gardiner Luce and of Jack Hoff, son of Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Hoff, who had a distinguished flying record during the war.

Bazaar Season Opens at Churches and Embassies

for Epiphany bazaar and Mrs. Ze Barney Phillips is associate. Other committee chairmen are Mrs. O. L. Kaiser, country store; Mrs. Thomas Mitchell, aprons and bags; Mrs. William Robinson, Kiddie Shoppe; Miss Ruby Mechlin, linens and cottons; Miss Phyllis Snyder, homemade cakes; Mrs. Wistar Balderson, antiques and "white elephants"; Miss Margaret Erno, Kandy Kitchen; Miss Mildred Archer, fortune telling; Miss Marybelle Mitchell, decorations; Mrs. George Beatty, luncheon; Mrs. Rachel Rohrbach, supper; Mrs. George Hinman and Mrs. Edward J. McCormack, publicity.

RESIDENTS of old Georgetown will meet Tuesday at the annual bazaar for historic Christ Church, which will be held in the parish hall from 11 a. m. to 10 p. m. There'll be booths of books, cosmetics, aprons, household articles and, of course, homemade cakes and candies. A light luncheon and tea will be served. The bazaar is sponsored by St. Stephen's Guild of which Mrs. Robert C. King is president. Mrs. Frank Costenbader is chairman of the bazaar.

Over in Alexandria, the Parish Guild of St. Paul's Episcopal Church will hold two bazaars on Tuesday—one in the parish building from 2 to 6 p. m. for the children and the other, from 2 to 9:30 p. m. for adults, in Norton Memorial Hall.

The children's section will be peopled by nursery rhyme characters. Mother Goose herself will greet the youngsters and Peter-the-Pumpkin-Eater will guard the giant pumpkin filled with grab-bag presents. Jack Horner will have his huge pie in an English-fair booth and apple-bobbing will take place behind the "ship I saw a-sailing" which had "apples in the hold." The Queen of Hearts will dispense refreshments and there'll even be a postoffice window for letters to Santa Claus.

At the grown-ups' bazaar, supper will be served from 5:30 to 7:30 for those who work all day and can only shop in the evening. Christmas wrappings and cards will be available and the hand-dressed dolls include many of interest to collectors.

UPSTAIRS and downstairs and in every nook and cranny, the DAR Chapter House at 1732 Massachusetts ave. nw. is buzzing with activity in preparation for the annual bazaar to be staged there Wednesday by the Daughters of the American Revolution Chapter House Corp., of which Mrs. Charles Carrol Haig is president.

The bazaar will be held "from 11 to 11." Lunch will be served at noon, card tables will be set up at 2 p. m., dinner will be available from 5 to 7:30, and cards may be resumed again at 8. And all day and evening, of course, the many booths will be open for business. Mrs. S. Dolan Donohoe is general chairman and Mrs. William S. Kenyon is in charge of all booths.

A holiday bazaar will be held at St. John's Episcopal Church, Norwood Parish, Wisconsin ave. and Bradley blvd., Chevy Chase, Md., on Wednesday from 1 p. m. to 9 p. m. in both parish halls.

Each booth will represent a national holiday and will be sponsored by the various church organizations.

Antiques from the Washington's Birthday booth will delight the interested, and lovely gifts will be found at the Christmas booth. Aprons for all occasions will be at the Valentine booth, candy at the St. Patrick's table, food at the Thanksgiving booth and a supper will be served by the Couples' Club depicting Labor Day.

Thursday may be a little confusing. Two All Souls' bazaars are scheduled that day—one by All Souls' Episcopal Church at Cathedral ave. and Woodley rd. nw., and the other by the Women's Alliance of All Souls' Unitarian Church, 16th and Harvard sts. nw.

Special features of the bazaar at the Episcopal church will be the country store and a cafeteria which will serve lunch from 12 to 2 p. m., tea from 4 to 5 p. m. and a light supper from 6 to 8 p. m.

The All Souls' Unitarian Church bazaar, headed by Mrs. William N. Mansfield, will be a two-day affair—Thursday from 5 to 9 p. m. and Friday from 12 noon to 9 p. m. Turkey dinners will be served both days from 6 to 7:30. A dessert bridge will be held at 1 p. m. Friday, sponsored by the Unitarian Bridge Club members. Mrs. William A. Rhodes will tell fortunes by palmistry. All kinds of attractive aprons, children's wear and other handiwork, plus homemade sweets, will fill scores of attractive booths. Reservations for the dinners must be made in advance with Mrs. Grace J. Landon, DE. 0418.

REMINISCENT of the famous Shepherd's Market in London will be the booth by that name at the Christmas bazaar to be held at the British Embassy on Tuesday, December 2, for the benefit of the Pinhoe Community and Child Health Center, Devonshire, England. Rosalie E. de Voto is coming down from New York to set the stage for the bazaar in the stately embassy on Massachusetts ave., which the British Ambassador and Lady Inverchapel are opening for the benefit.

Mrs. Wayne Chatfield-Taylor, chairman of the benefit, gathered committee members together earlier this week, assigned booths and discussed final plans for the sale. Men will find booths displaying good pipes and other smoking accessories, ties and scarves . . . Tea will be served from 4 to 7 p. m. . . . packages to foreign lands will be packed and mailed . . . holiday travel reservations made by land, sea or air—everything to make things easier for the Christmas shopper.

Hood College Club Slates Luncheon

Miss Bess Davis Schreiner, Washington-Baltimore subscription director of the Theater Guild, will be the guest speaker when the Hood College Club of Washington opens its fall activities with a luncheon meeting at the Iron Gate Inn November 22 at 12:45 p. m.

Down Virginia Way

By Nina Carter Tabb

THE ELEVENTH fall meeting of the Middleburg Hunt Race Association was held yesterday afternoon on the Glenwood Park course and was a most successful event with a large attendance here to see the seven races called during the afternoon.

There are numerous visitors here for the weekend who attended the races and also the benefit dance given last evening by the Middleburg Hunt at Burrland near Middleburg. The large old house was decorated for the occasion and tables were arranged about the lower floor of the house to seat the guests for supper served at midnight.

Yesterday many luncheons and cocktail parties were given in honor of the visitors here and today there are numerous luncheons and cocktail parties being given.

Yesterday Mr. and Mrs. Daniel C. Sands and Miss Charlotte H. Noland entertained the judges, officials and some of their friends at a luncheon given at the Covert, home of Miss Noland. Mr. and Mrs. C. Oliver Iselin, jr., entertained at cocktails yesterday at their home, Wolver Hill, near Middleburg and are giving a luncheon today.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Mackenzie Tabb have arrived here from their home in Lexington, Va., and are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Robert F. Turner, near The Plains. Mrs. Martha Wilson York is having a luncheon today in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Tabb before they leave for Lexington this afternoon.

Garden Club Elects

Mrs. Houghton Metcalf entertained members of the Fauquier and Loudoun Garden Club Wednesday at her home near Upperville. The guests were served luncheon and afterward were taken on a tour of Mrs. Metcalf's greenhouse. Mrs. Warner Snider, president of the club, presided at the meeting at which officers were elected. Mrs. William Fitzhugh Rust of Leesburg was elected president. Other officers elected were Mrs. Nathaniel H. Morison of Middleburg, first vice president; Mrs. Morris Parrish of Marshall, second vice president; Mrs. W. Hunter de Butts, treasurer; Mrs. John Tyssowski of Marshall, recording secretary; Mrs. Thomas Fendall of Leesburg, corresponding secretary.

Invitations have been received from Mrs. Llewellyn Powell of Alexandria, Va., for the marriage of her daughter, Anne Boone Powell, to Samuel Marshall, fourth son of Col. and Mrs. Samuel Marshall of Unison, Loudoun County, Va. The wedding will take place on Saturday afternoon, at 4 o'clock in Trinity Episcopal Church, Shepherdstown, W. Va. Following the ceremony a reception will be held at the residence of Mrs. Harrison Schley, in Shepherdstown.

Tea Will Honor Miss Witmer

Miss S. Kathryn Witmer, the new director of nursing at Children's Hospital, will be the guest of honor at a tea given by the board of lady visitors on Tuesday from 4 to 6 o'clock at the hospital.

Miss Witmer is not a stranger to Washington because for a time she served in the Surgeon General's Office. During the war she was chief nurse of the nursing section of 814 Hospital Center in Paris and left the Army with the rank of major. She is a graduate of the Johns Hopkins School of Nursing.

Mrs. A. Chambers Oliphant, president of the board of lady visitors, will receive with Miss Witmer. Those who will serve tea are Mrs. Howard C. Davidson, Mrs. Ernest G. Draper, Mrs. Charles H. Maddox, Mrs. Allan E. Walker, jr., Mrs. Frederick H. Brooke, Mrs. W. Chapin Huntington, Mrs. J. Clifford Folger, Mrs. Charles D. Hayes, Mrs. Stanley F. Reed, Mrs. Warren D. Robbins, Mrs. Samuel F. Beach, Mrs. Robert Clement Watson, Mrs. Charles D. Drayton, Mrs. Travis T. Brown, Miss Vera Bloom and Mrs. R. B. Wigglesworth.

Garden Club Sees Films of Flowers

Colored movies showing plants actually sprouting from the earth and flowers bursting into bloom illustrated the lecture given Friday by John Nash Ott, jr., before members of the Georgetown Garden Club. The meeting was held in the parish hall of Christ Church.

Mr. Ott, a Chicago banker who gave up banking to pursue his fascinating hobby of speeded-up filming of plant life, was accompanied to Washington by Mrs. Ott. The president of the garden club, Mrs. R. H. A. Carter, presided at the meeting and introduced the speaker.

Writers to Get Tips on Juvenile Fiction

Two authors of juvenile fiction—Mrs. Christine K. Simmons and Miss Margaret Jean Bailey—will be guest speakers at a meeting of the Writers League November 20, 8 p. m., at 1851 Columbia rd. nw.

Following the reading of a published juvenile short story by Hilda Marsden, a Government employe and author of juvenile books, the league will hold an open forum centering around juvenile fiction requirements and techniques.

Others to appear on the program are Deborah Lincoln Ralph and Douglas M. Rideout, the latter a veteran of World War II and student in George Washington University. Rideout's radio play, "The Shawl," which was awarded first prize in the 1946-47 Writers League radio drama contest, was presented by George Washington University on October 27 and 28.

The Writers League, a local group of semiprofessional writers, meets biweekly at 1851 Columbia rd. nw. Visitors are welcome.

Scientific Plating

HAVE YOU EVER TRIED OLD EXETER SILVER POLISH? . . . It beats them all in the Scout's opinion! Recently developed by the SCIENTIFIC PLATING CO., it's especially recommended for silver-plated ware to protect it from quick tarnish and the harsh treatment of improperly formulated polishes. The master craftsmen at this shop have gained a wide reputation for excellent repair work too, and can clean, polish, and carefully restore worn, dented pieces to look like new! Prices are reasonable and they provide prompt, courteous service, free pick up and delivery. Phone DU. 2798 for estimates. SCIENTIFIC PLATING CO. 3611 M St. N.W. (in Georgetown) 1 block beyond Key Bridge. Open evenings.

WHAT TO NAME THE DIMPLED DARLING . . . often poses a problem for new parents. To assist in this matter the Scout has secured some cunning BABY-NAME BOOKLETS which she will gladly send FREE to all expectant mothers who live in Washington or near-by communities. They contain 1800 suggested names for little boy or girl babies. In addition lists horoscopes, birthstones and many other useful, helpful suggestions. To obtain a gift copy for yourself or a friend address a postcard to Peggy, The Shop Scout, c/o The Washington Post, and on the back put your names, addresses and phone numbers. You'll receive your booklets in the mail shortly!

Vassar Club Plans Teas, Fashion Show

Members of the Vassar Club of Washington from the classes of 1886 through 1947 will meet this week at a series of decade meetings. They will discuss plans for the club's scholarship benefit which annually contributes to the support of two Washington girls at Vassar. To maintain the fund, the club this year is planning a fashion show to be presented Friday, January 30 at the Statler Hotel in cooperation with Julius Garfinckel and Company.

The decade meetings, which are gatherings of alumnae in 10-year groups, will begin tomorrow, with a tea for alumnae of the 'thirties at the home of Mrs. John H. Ferguson, 3405 O st. nw. On Tuesday, Mrs. Leonard Block of 2119 Leroy place, nw., will be hostess to the 'twenties. Alumnae from the classes prior to 1910 will meet on Wednesday, at the home of Mrs. Avery Coonley, 3501 Newark st. nw.; and Miss Barbara Hinrichs, 3214 Newark st. nw., will welcome all members of the classes of 1940 through 1947 on Thursday.

Winding up the series will be a tea on Monday, November 24, for the classes from 1910 through 1919 at the home of Mrs. Julius A. Furer, 2101 Connecticut ave. nw. All the teas will be held from 4:30 to 7:30. Mrs. Elting Arnold is decade chairman.

Clarks Feted

Mr. and Mrs. Blake Clark were the guests in whose honor Arthur I. Saul entertained at cocktails Thursday at the United Nations Club. The party was also in celebration of Mr. Clark's latest book, "Hawaii, the 49th State."

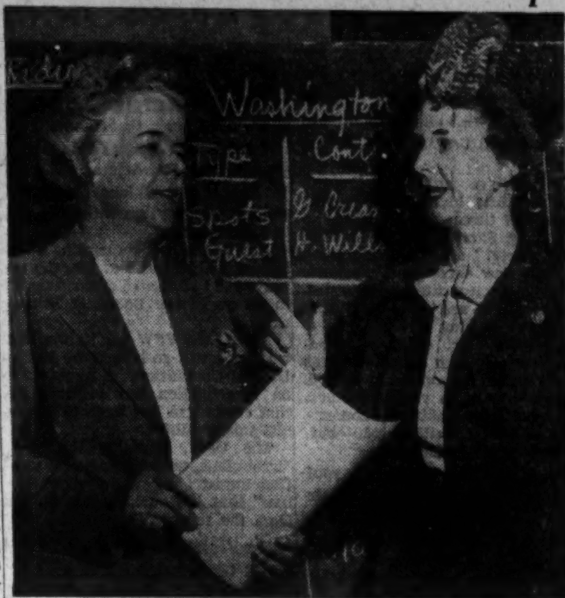
Sorority Invites Club Women To Public Relations Workshop



By Gene Jones—The Washington Post

Busy with preparations for Theta Sigma Phi's workshop on public relations to take place all day Wednesday at Statler Hotel are (left to right) Mrs. Minier Hostetler, vice president in charge of the workshop, and Miss Janette Harrington, national president. The sorority's workshop is being sponsored by the League of Women Voters in the Washington area

A workshop on public relations will be conducted Wednesday by the National Capital Alumnae Chapter of Theta Sigma Phi, honorary journalistic sorority. The League of Women Voters of the Washington and nearby Maryland and Virginia areas will be sponsor for the all-day conference. Forum meetings will be held morning and afternoon at the Statler Hotel, and luncheon will be served at 12:15 at the YWCA restaurant.

Invitations have been issued to women's civic, religious, political, educational interracial and fraternal groups in the area. Organization representatives attending the workshop as delegates will receive copies of Theta Sigma Phi's new public relations handbook for the use of club publicity chairmen. The handbook was prepared by a committee headed by Mrs. Ellen Hilton Young. It gives specific do's and don'ts for club women handling publicity material; gives charts showing deadlines and requirements of Washington daily newspapers and dailies and weeklies in nearby communities.

Maj. Gretchen Thorp, president of the Theta Sigma Phi Washington Alumnae Chapter, will open the Workshop meetings, and Mrs. Frieda Wyandt Everett, 1947 "headliner" achievement award winner of Theta Sigma Phi, will serve as moderator.

Dealing with the press will be the main subject of discussion, from 10 to 11 a. m. Miss Frances Lide, club editor, Washington Star, will speak on "Working With Women's Pages." Miss Martha Strayer, Washington Daily News, will talk on "Working With News Sections." Mrs. J. Reed Bradley, editor and owner, Bethesda Record, has "Working With Community Papers," as her topic, and Mrs. Marjorie Binford Woods, feature writer, The Washington Post, will add the fillip of "Play All The Angles."

The discussion on radio outlets will be opened by Harold Fair, program director, National Association of Broadcasters. Other speakers will be Mrs. D'Alton B. Myers, radio bureau, League of Women Voters; Mrs. Esther Van Wagoner Tufty, radio commentator; Miss Alice Keith, National Academy of Broadcasting; and Henry Mustin, correspondent WTOP.

At the luncheon, Miss Janette T. Harrington, national president, Theta Sigma Phi, will address the group on "Public Relations—The Basis of Community Action." Afternoon sessions at the Statler will be concerned with "Direct Appeal."

Reservations for the workshop and luncheon may be made at the D. C. League of Women Voters headquarters, Republic 5778.

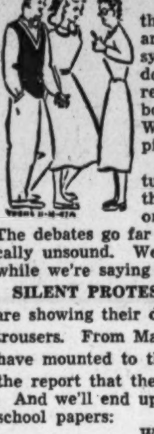
Tricks for Teens

By Nancy Pepper

All the fervor you used to give to that "Crosby vs. Sinatra" question (who won, anyway?), you are now devoting to the big issue of short skirts vs. long skirts. We hope one side wins out soon, because the suspense is affecting your school work and breaking up lifelong friendships.



HEADLINE STUFF—We've just read through the first issues of about fifty high school papers, and practically two out of three give big space to symposiums on the Long Skirt question. "What do you think of long skirts?" asked the inquiring reporters, and with very few exceptions, what the boys thought should have been written on asbestos. Well, they can always go to see a Betty Grable picture if it's legs they're looking for!

PROS AND CONS—The skirt dilemma is actually the subject of serious high school debates this term. And don't think the opposing side is only concerned with the loss of its visual pleasure. The debates go far afield to prove that the longer skirt is economically unsound. Well, there's a lot to be said on either side—but, while we're saying it, the skirts are coming down anyway.

SILENT PROTESTS—The Casanovas in Corduroys (boys, to you) are showing their disapproval of the long skirts by rolling up their trousers. From Madison, Wis., comes the report that boys' trousers have mounted to three inches above he ankle; from Seattle comes the report that they've risen to six inches above the ankle.

And we'll end up with an Odd Ditty culled from one of the high school papers:

Women's styles are changing,
Skirts are long this fall;
Tall boys will not look so long,
Short boys won't look at all

Close Harmony

No matter what the teen columnists say against this "going steady" business, it's still flourishing on high school campuses (and off campus, too). We asked one girl how she started going steady, and she told us it all began when her big moment asked her to give him all her Friday nights. Seems that's as definite an offer to go steady as "will you be my bride?" is a proposal of marriage. It's also a guarantee against any more dateless weekends. She accepted.

MIX MATCHES—Those boy and girl sweaters knitted in a sensational crest design have clicked with steadies everywhere. You can buy them in stores and now all you have to do is find some one to wear them with.

HEART WARMERS—It's a new custom to sew a tiny red felt heart on your pet sweater and on his—right over your own hearts. On your heart you embroider his initials and vice versa. The trick is to make the hearts almost as tiny as a fraternity pin.

WARM SPELL—He gives you one of those silver bracelets with dangling letters that spell out his name and an enameled disc at one end in his school colors. If he hasn't discovered them yet, you could drop a hint next time you're downtown with him.

KNIGHT OF THE GARTER—There's certainly nothing new about wearing a lady's garter. The Knights of Old started it; and your Saturday Knight is taking it from there, with modern improvements. Nowadays you split a pair of garters between you and each wears one over the left arm to show that you're doing anything but feudin' and fightin'.

Help NOT Wanted

On Saturday nights when I haven't a date
The family should be more considerate.
I inwardly burn
At mother's concern
And dad's playful joking
I find most provoking.
When brother is gay,
I'm filled with dismay.
To woe and to grief my spirits are geared,
Hard tho' they try, I REFUSE TO BE CHEERED!

Jabberwocky and Jive

RICKY TICKY—It's a new adjective, but we haven't found out whether it means "good" or "bad." Can you spread some light on the subject?

KEEP LIVIN'—It's the vice versa of "Drop Dead." You usually use it instead of "Good-bye."

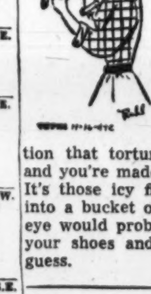
WHO LET YOU OUT OF THE APPLE?—A subtle way of inferring that you think some one is a worm.

TAKE POISON—Modern version of "Drop Dead."

If you want to know how we get this way, we'll give you Jack Parr's popular answer, "Because all our clothes are made that way." Now, aren't you glad you asked?

Sisters Under the Skin

SORORITY SISTERS, we mean—once the terrible ordeal of initiation has been passed. Now, we're strongly against unpleasant and dangerous initiation practices such as washing hair in ink—but we support any rites that are just clean fun. We say "thumbs up" to these:



RUMMAGE WRECK—Every member of the sorority brings an outlandish article of clothing to your initiation rites, and you have to parade down Main Street, wearing every single piece. One teen we know found herself passing the Whistle Brigade at the corner drug store wearing the following items: A pillowcase over her head, bloomers, diapers, sun glasses, fake mustache (not her father's, natch.), three pairs of knee-length socks, a shower cap (on top of the pillow case), garden gloves and size 9 sneakers. She was everybody's Ugly Child.

MAKE BELIEVE MENACE—It's your imagination that tortures you most with this one. You're blindfolded—and you're made to shake hands with a rubber glove filled with ice. It's those icy fingers, for sure. Then you're made to reach down into a bucket of ice water and take out a peeled grape. A human eye would probably feel just like it. Then, you're made to remove your shoes and walk on a tray of slimy noodles. It's anybody's guess.

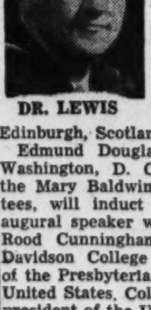
Lewis to Head Mary Baldwin

STAUNTON, Va., Nov. 15.—Dr. Frank Bell Lewis will be installed as president of Mary Baldwin College on Tuesday in William Wayt King Memorial Auditorium. Dr. Lewis holds degrees from Washington and Lee University, Union Theological Seminary of Virginia and Duke University, and has studied at the University of Edinburgh, Scotland.



DR. LEWIS

Edmund Douglas Campbell of Washington, D. C., president of the Mary Baldwin board of trustees, will induct Dr. Lewis. Inaugural speaker will be Dr. John Rood Cunningham, president of Davidson College and moderator of the Presbyterian Church of the United States. Colgate W. Darden, president of the University of Virginia, will extend greetings from colleges and universities.

Dr. Lewis succeeds Dr. L. Wilson Jarman, who resigned because of poor health in 1946. In the interim, Mrs. Thomas H. Grafton, dean of the college, was acting president. The new president comes immediately from Davis and Elkins College, West Virginia, where he was professor of Bible and philosophy. He was born in Greenbrier County, W. Va., in 1911.

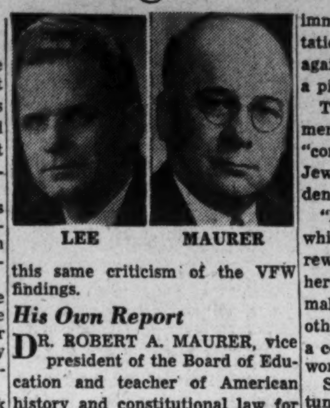
As a senior college, Mary Baldwin has had two other presidents: Dr. A. M. Fraser, who became president in 1923, and Dr. Jarman, who took office in 1929.

Without Exciting Comment

'Target Book' Long Used in District

By Elsie Carper
Post Reporter

"BUILDING CITIZENSHIP," the text book that the District Veterans of Foreign Wars wants Congress to investigate, was used in its various editions in District schools for 14 years without exciting comment.



LEE MAURER

During the past six months it has been the object of four lengthy reports and two heated discussions in meetings of the Board of Education.

Now if the VFW has its way the text book will go before the House District Committee. A request for an investigation was referred by that committee last week to a special subcommittee.

The VFW, branding the book "irreligious, un-American and pro-Communist," declared it "imperative" that the book be withdrawn from the schools.

'Excellent Text'

USE OF the text is defended by George J. Jones and William M. Brewer, heads of the two history departments in the school. They find the book "an excellent and wholesome text" that "deserves the high place it has won among school systems all over the country."

The VFW view is supported by Adelbert W. Lee, a member of the Board of Education, who first drew the text out of obscurity back in May when he charged that "much of the subject matter is presented in a manner critical of our Government and its functions and leaves much doubt in the minds of students as to the wisdom of our present Government."

Lee's attack launched an investigation of the text by Dr. Hobart M. Corning, superintendent of schools, and by other members of the board.

A report, prepared by Jones and Brewer and indorsed by Corning and all members of the Board of Education except Lee, charged that Lee picked out "many brief statements from the context of a good textbook, and that he has drawn from them . . . inferences which fail to set forth a true picture of this book." Jones and Brewer make this same criticism of the VFW findings.

His Own Report

DR. ROBERT A. MAURER, vice president of the Board of Education and teacher of American history and constitutional law for 46 years, was moved by the criticism of the text to draw up his own report. His findings were:

"A thorough-going analysis of governmental organization . . . that goes back to the historical beginnings and objectives, and covers all those matters which pertain to Federal, State and local government in this country which would be of interest to thoughtful-minded students . . . It will make any American boy or girl proud of the country in which they live."

In their answer to VFW findings that the book is pro-Communist, Jones and Brewer state:

"A careful search reveals 17 pages of the book on which Russia, Russians or communism is mentioned. We do not think that looms very large in a book of more than 700 pages, especially when the majority of those references are of such a minor and incidental character that they are not even cited in the index of the book."

No Statements of Praise

SPECIFICALLY the VFW charges "there are no statements in the book from immigrants praising our county." The organization cites two quotations from immigrants unfavorable to America.

The school officials answer that the section in which the quotations appear is largely devoted to America's successful work with immigrants and that the two quotations are a "wholesome warning against too rosy and complacent a picture."

The VFW describes this statement that appears in the book as "contrary to the teachings of the Jewish faith and every Christian denomination:"

"If there is another world in which a man will be punished or rewarded for the way he lives here, there is a strong force to make him live better than he otherwise would. Perhaps this is a comparatively low motive, but it works with a great many people."

School officials say it is unfortunate that this statement appears, since it touches on religion. Any bad effect is overshadowed though by "by the wholesome tone" of the rest of the section.

13 Objections

IN all the VFW objects to 13 passages in the book including the question of whether the student would like to live under a Communist form of government.

School officials have an answer to each objection and to the latter say:

"It shows a strange lack of confidence in our own way of life, as well as in the teachers and pupils in our schools, when criticisms so often recur to the inference that out pupils are in serious danger of arriving at an un-American answer to such questions as part of their school work."

Chair Shifting Is Called Clew To World Amity

Charlottesville, Va., Nov. 15 (AP). Sir Alfred Zimmern, founder of the Geneva School of International Studies, revealed that he determined the success of secret League of Nations committee meetings by inspecting the position of chairs after proceedings were closed.

"If they were all neatly arranged along the table, it had been a useful meeting," Sir Alfred said. "But if they were turned this way and that, facing anywhere but toward the table, with a tendency to coalesce into groups, then the verdict, in the words of Milton, was 'no light but rather darkness visible.'"

Now in the United States on an indefinite stay as visiting professor at Trinity College, Hartford, Conn., the British statesman spoke while visiting the University of Virginia.

Red Cross Experts To Study in America

New York, Nov. 15 (AP).—Foreign Red Cross experts will have an opportunity to study in this country through an arrangement of the League of Red Cross Societies providing 60 study visits and 70 scholarships.

The foreign students will be named by their national Red Cross organizations and screened for final selection by the American Red Cross.

Your Questions on Homemaking

I planned to send a pair of extra-long wool blankets, which have never been cleaned or laundered before, to a commercial dry cleaner, but read in a leading magazine that blankets should never be dry cleaned. If true, how can I clean them, avoiding excessive shrinkage and keeping them soft and fluffy? I have access to the apartment house washing machine, but would have to dry the blankets in the indoor laundry room which is rather damp and airless. R. T. B.

Authorities seem to agree that washing blankets does leave them softer and fluffier than having them dry cleaned. To wash them successfully, fill the washer with warm water and a mild soap or cleanser especially made for washing wools. Run the machine a minute or two to dissolve the soap and wash one blanket at a time. In washing, run the washer three minutes, no longer. If the blanket is very soiled empty the washer, refill with fresh soap and water and wash two or three minutes longer. Put blanket, folded in fours, binding end first through the wringer set at loose tension. Rinse well and dry. It is much better to dry blankets out of doors on a breezy day. Maybe you can arrange to use some friend's yard for drying them. Shake the blankets to fluff and straighten them to pull in shape during the drying process.

I have a clothes rack which, when I hang clothes on it, streaks them with black. I've washed the rack with soap water, but it doesn't seem to help. Is there any other way I could clean this? It is made of wood. E. N.

Scrub your rack with a stiff brush and soap or a damp cloth dipped into kitchen scouring powder. Rinse well. The wood of the rack is no doubt porous from so much washing, so when it is not in use, cover it to protect the rods from soot settling on them.

My husband is making a necklace out of buckeyes for our little girl. How should we varnish or otherwise finish the nuts so that they will not deteriorate? E. W.

TOMATOES and other vegetables, when broiled along with shoulder lamb chops, serve as succulent meat extenders. Their satisfying flavor helps stave off the request for "just one more chop, please," thus helps out in the conservation campaign and in keeping food bills down

Be sure that the nuts are thoroughly dry, then give them several coats of good quality wax, rubbing very well after each coat.

Is any special kind of paint needed to paint fiber rugs. P. M. O.

Use a good quality of house paint thinned with turpentine in the proportion of one part of turpentine to three parts of paint. Awning paint may also be used. Work the paint thoroughly into the fiber with a paint brush. The surface under the rug should be well protected with a thick padding of newspapers before you start painting.

My baby's nursing bottles have gotten little black specks on the bottom inside. The brush evidently can't get at these. Is there some way I can get rid of them? E. N.

The best way to remove black specks from nursing bottles would be with a brush. Perhaps a new brush with longer and stiffer bristles is the answer. Also, shaking some grains of rice in the bottles with the soapy water might help to dislodge the specks.

Sketch Club Shows Art Work In Exhibition at Leesburg

Leesburg, Va., Nov. 15.—One hundred and fifty people attended the private showing on Friday evening of the first annual exhibit of the Hot Sketches Club of Loudoun County. Eighty pictures lined the walls of the recreation room of the Baptist church here. where the exhibit was held. These included landscapes and portraits in oil, well-known buildings, street scenes and landscapes in water colors, etchings and charcoal drawings.

Miss Eleanor Swenson, assistant curator of the Corcoran Gallery of Art, was a guest of the evening and speaker. Maj. H. B. Lawrence, president of the Hot Sketches Club, greeted the guests. The exhibit was open to the general public on the following day.

The exhibitors included Mrs. Frances Allen, Mrs. Maxine Cole, Mrs. Laura N. Dupuy, Miss Vivienne Hooppaw, Mrs. Bella C. Kaplan, Maj. and Mrs. R. B. Lawrence, Mrs. Evelyn Marshall, Mrs. Vinton Liddell Pickens, Miss Jane A. Pohl, Mrs. Katherine Slappey, Miss Betty Tiffany and the guest artists; Miss Evelyn Wynn and Douglas Brown.

Attend League Meetings

Nine members of the League of Women Voters of Loudoun County attended the convention of the League of Women Voters of Virginia at Charlottesville on Friday and Saturday. These were Mrs. J. Stewart Smith, president of the local league; Mrs. Festus Foster, State board member and its program chairman; Mrs. Philip E. Bradley, chairman of the State nominating committee; Mrs. G. Donald Gartrell, Mrs. Frederick Stabler, Mrs. John Gibb, Mrs. Howard Gray, Mrs. Warner Snider and Mrs. R. S. Wood. The highlight of the convention was the banquet on Friday night at which President Colgate W. Darden of the University of Virginia was speaker.

Jens Christian Meinich of Oslo, Norway, a representative of the Norwegian Red Cross, was a weekend guest of Col. and Mrs. E. W. Clark. Mr. Meinich is spending several months in America to visit Red Cross chapters and learn of the work of the organization.

Mr. and Mrs. Logan O. Tschiffely, of Thurmont, Md., are receiving congratulations on the birth of a daughter on November 8, whom they have named Kitty Stewart. The Tschiffelys have another child, a son. Mr. Tschiffely is formerly of Loudoun County and has many relatives here.

Arthur S. Jenkins, jr., and S. Fred Popkins, students at Virginia Tech, spent the weekend at their homes in Leesburg.

Mrs. William Yowell and daughter, of Manchester, visited this week in the home of the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. D. Phillips.

Mr. and Mrs. Milton K. Markman moved this week to Twin Oaks, property which they purchased recently from the John Roystons. The Markmans have owned and resided at Fruitlands, near here, for several years.

Daly—Harrison

Miss Margaret Jane Harrison and Edward Francis Daly were married at St. Francis De Sales Church yesterday with the Rev. George Gingras officiating at the nuptial mass at 9 a. m. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ambros R. Harrison and her husband is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Daly of Oswego, N. Y.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of white brocaded satin fashioned with a tunic that extended into a circular train. Her fingertip veil was held by a tiara of seed pearls and she carried a white satin prayer book with a white orchid and shower of lilies of the valley.

Miss Eleanor Harrison was her sister's maid of honor wearing ice blue satin with a matching headdress of ostrich plumes. She carried a sheath of American beauty roses.

William J. Daly of Oswego, N. Y., was his brother's best man and the ushers were Charles J. Coward, also of Oswego, a brother-in-law of the bridegroom, and Howard Brown of Takoma Park, Md.

A reception was held afterward at the home of the bride's parents. After their wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Daly will reside in Washington.

Smith—Murranka

Mr. and Mrs. Burton E. Smith are to reside in Washington following their wedding trip to New York. The bride is the former Miss Bertha Murranka, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Murranka of Trenton, N. J., and her husband is the son of Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Smith of Washington.

Their wedding took place November 1 at Holy Trinity Lutheran Church in Trenton. Adam Murranka gave his sister in marriage and the Rev. C. L. Roth officiated.

The bride wore white embossed satin made with a sweetheart neckline and a skirt fashioned with a bustle. She carried white chrysanthemums.

Miss Lois Revolinsky, the bride's only attendant, wore old rose embossed taffeta and carried bronze chrysanthemums. Cathy Parker, niece of the bride, was flower girl.

Edgar Smith of Washington was his brother's best man, and the ushers were Robert Smith of Washington, another brother, and W. Lewis Parker of Trenton.

Steele—Riggott

The wedding of Patricia C. Riggott, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Russsell H. Coles of Craig, Colo., and Ira E. Steele, son of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Steele of Levelland, Tex., took place November 8 at Calvary Methodist Church of Washington. The Rev. Orris G. Robinson officiated and a reception at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Dulaney in Arlington followed.

The bride wore a beige suit and matching hat trimmed with brown feathers and a corsage of talisman roses. Mrs. Ruth Dulaney, matron of honor, wore a beige suit with royal blue accessories and yellow roses. Cloyd Rolfe was best man.

Garby—Cahoon

The marriage of Miss Mary Elizabeth Cahoon to Dr. Rodes Carl Garby took place yesterday in the Baptist Church, Clifton Forge, Va. The bride is daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Houston Cahoon of that city, and Dr. Garby is son of Mrs. Carl DeWitt Garby and the late Dr. Garby, Washington.

Officiating at the ceremony was the Rev. Welford R. Brooks. Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore white satin, designed with basque bodice, full skirt and train. A Juliet cap of satin and seed pearls held her finger-tip-length veil and she carried a bouquet of roses and stephanotis. Mrs. William J. Hagood, matron of honor, wore a dress of American beauty taffeta and her bouquet of fall flowers matched her tiara. Carol Anne Hawkins was flower girl for her aunt, wearing white organdy with American beauty sash. She carried a miniature colonial bouquet of rosebuds.

Dr. James Kelly served as best man and ushering were Maxwell, Milton and Ernest Cahoon and Dr. James Sites.

After a reception the couple left for a Northern motor trip and will reside in Washington after December 1. The bride is a graduate of the School of Nursing, Medical College of Virginia, and served 15 months with the Army Nurse Corps in Southwest Pacific and Japan. Dr. Garby, who was in the Navy during the war, is a graduate of George Washington University Medical School.

Pangborn—Anderson

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Michael Bertha, Chicago, announced the marriage Friday of the ir niece, Miss Ruth Elinor Anderson, to Mark White Pangborn, jr., Washington. After a month's honeymoon in Florida the newlyweds will reside in Arlington.

Pearson—Faucett

With her father, the Rev. Glenn B. Faucett, officiating, Miss Nancy Lee Faucett was married to Frederick Joseph Pearson at East Washington Heights Baptist Church yesterday. Mr. Pearson is the son of Mrs. M. T. Pearson of Washington.

The bride wore white satin fashioned with a long train. Her veil fell from a tiara ornamented with orange blossoms and she carried white roses.

Mrs. Frank Becker, wearing a ruffled dress of moss green with matching feather headdress, was matron of honor. She carried talisman roses. Misses Mary Ann Coates and Jean Smith, the bridesmaids, wore ruffled frocks of peacock blue and gold with feather headdresses. Carrye Elizabeth Cooper was flower girl and Robert and William I. Cooper were ring-bearers.

The bridegroom's brother, Robert Charles Pearson, was best man and the ushers were John Faucett, the bride's brother, Ed Martin, and Richard Dwyer, jr.

A reception was held at the church by the bride's parents, the Rev. and Mrs. Faucett. The couple left for a wedding trip and will live in Washington on their return.

James Jordan, Jr., Weds Miss Morsell

The marriage of Miss Marguerite Eleanor Morsell to James Awdry Jordan, jr., took place yesterday in the Sixth Presbyterian Church, with the Rev. Earl Franklin Fowler officiating.

John Broome Morsell gave his sister in marriage and attendants were Mrs. Frederick B. Dorton, Baltimore, and James E. Andrews, jr., Cambridge, Md.

The bride is daughter of Mrs. William Sewell Morsell and the late Mr. Morsell, Calvert County, Md. Mr. Jordan is son of Mr. and Mrs. James Awdry Jordan, Cambridge. After a Southern wedding trip the couple will reside in Washington.

In New York

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Clarendon Smith and Mrs. and Mrs. Arthur Clarendon Smith, jr., are spending the weekend in New York and are at the Waldorf-Astoria. Mr. Smith and his son will attend the convention of the Mayflower Warehouse Association.

Fennell—Guiffre

Miss Jeannette Therese Guiffre was married to Francis Xavier Fennell at a nuptial mass November 13 at St. Anthony's Church. She is the daughter of Mrs. Mildred Guiffre of Washington and her husband is the son of A. S. Fennell, also of this city.

The bride, given in marriage by her uncle, Selby C. Harr, wore a wine-colored suit with a pink feathered hat and a corsage of white roses. Miss Rita Guiffre served as her sister's maid of honor, wearing a beige suit with a blue feathered hat and a corsage of red roses.

Thomas A. Fennell, brother of the bridegroom, was best man.

A wedding breakfast was served afterward at Hotel 2400.

After a wedding trip to New York the couple will live in Del Ray, Va.

Yates—Nelson

Mr. and Mrs. Harold William Yates, who were married November 8 at All Souls' Unitarian Church, left afterward for a wedding trip through New England. They will live in Baltimore, where Mr. Yates is doing graduate work at Johns Hopkins University.

Mrs. Yates was Miss Rosalie Jane Nelson and is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard W. Nelson of Alexandria, Va. She was graduated this year from Goucher College. Her husband, who was graduated in 1945 from Johns Hopkins, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin F. Yates of Hagerstown, Md.

The Rev. Gilbert A. Phillips officiated at the candlelight ceremony. The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore ivory satin, a veil and a coronet of heirloom lace. She carried white rosebuds and orchids. She was attended by Miss Lois Johnson as maid of honor and by the Misses Elizabeth Glover, Barbara Armiger and Elaine Tull as bridesmaids. They were costumed in smoke blue velveteen period gowns with matching veils.

The bride's brother, Dr. Merrill F. Nelson, was best man and the ushers were Julius Turner, Walton White, Harvey Smith and Robert Heefner.

Following the service a reception was held at the bride's home.

Eide—Liepold

Mrs. Louise Liepold, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Barron of Windom, Minn., and Robert E. Eide, son of Mr. and Mrs. Einar Eide of Minneapolis, were married November 8 in the sacristy of St. Matthew's Cathedral. They left afterward by plane for a honeymoon stay at Sea Island, Ga., and will live at 1424 R st. nw. when they return.

The Rev. William Awalt officiated.

The bride wore a beige crepe afternoon dress with brown accessories and a corsage of brown orchids. Miss Doris Jarrett of Washington, serving as maid of honor, wore aquamarine crepe with rose accessories. Jack Gibson of Madison, Wis., was best man.

A reception for 50 friends was held afterward at the Hay-Adams House.

The bride has been employed by the War Department since 1941 and is now with the Manpower Board. The bridegroom, who was graduated from University of Minnesota and is a member of Delta Sigma Pi, is with the General Accounting Office.

Color Psychologists Create Office Space With Paint Brushes

SPOT lights and brilliantly illuminated pillars black out a pipe-cluttered ceiling to reclaim 13,000 square feet of wasted basement space for a modern showroom in New York City

By David G. Bareuther

NEW YORK, Nov. 15 (AP).—The housing problem for New York business firms, which has rivaled that of families, is now being solved in many cases by a modern adaption of camouflage.

Waste space is being transformed into showrooms and offices through the use of clever color schemes.

Ends of hallways make comfortable reception rooms and executive offices, and style salons have expanded their capacity for buyers; also restaurants have stepped up their "turnover" and cocktail lounges have induced patrons to linger longer—all by careful use of colors.

One of the biggest color projects in New York actually added 13,000 square feet of floor space to the furniture showrooms of one firm without enlarging its building in crowded midtown Manhattan. And this was accomplished largely through optical illusion.

With business increasing and no place to handle it, the company handed its expansion headache over to two young men, Maurice and Joseph Mogulescu.

Pulling new offices and display space out of a paint pail is the Mogulescus' self-professed art.

Puzzle: Find the Pipes

BUT THEY hadn't expected to encounter any business firm as crowded as furniture display floors can be. They were ushered through rows of sofas, love seats, breakfronts, gatelegs and down into a dark, low-ceilinged basement. This, they were told, was the only space left in the entire 23-story building.

It was a hopeless prospect as a place to attract customers. Under the entire low ceiling was a tangle of pipes, wires and conduits, serving some 300,000 square feet of business space stacked above them. This maze could not be disturbed. It could not be covered with a false ceiling, for there was no headroom to spare.

"Well, we couldn't jack up a 23-story building to get a roomier basement," explained Maurice Mogulescu, "so we decided to do the trick with color."

You enter that same basement today and see no pipes—but they're still there. You have a feeling of height above your head. There doesn't seem to be a ceiling—and there isn't.

Skyscraper basements usually present a forest of pillars that support the buildiiing, but here you don't see them—they have been camouflaged into brilliant pedestals and canopies of light, centering attention on the furniture below them. Between these bright structures hang spotlights, accentuating colorful carpets and rugs.

Colors Sell Products

LOOKING closely into the space overhead, and allowing your eyes to adjust themselves from the light and color that floods the floor, you find the pipes—hundreds of them, painted black in a black cavity.

Directed attention achieves the illusion. Colors blend from one shade to another as the visitor wanders through 25 spacious rooms created out of that dingy basement. Wall panels can be shifted to alter the size, shape or color of any one of the 25 rooms that open from the main display section.

"Color sells merchandise," Maurice Mogulescu contends, "and that is why he employed it in this way in this showroom. There is a reason behind every color that is used.

"Red and orange, for instance, induce action. That is why red is always used for fire escape signs and orange for alerts. Greens, on the other hand, are nature's own

Home Boom Slowed By FHA Order

By Conrad P. Harness

THE furious building pace in new homes and apartments over the Nation appears to be headed for a slow-down.

All FHA offices were directed Wednesday to discontinue at once accepting applications for emergency mortgage insurance on veterans' housing.

The order was necessary because the $4,200,000,000 limitation set by Congress to make 90 per cent loans to builders on construction of housing units for veterans had been reached.

"Loans insured, commitments issued and applications in process now approximate the total authorization," said FHA Commissioner Franklin Richards.

Insured loans already approved by the District FHA office under the program will provide 10,502 new dwelling units financed with FHA insured mortgages in excess of $80,629,200, according to James A. Hewitt, local FHA office director.

Most of the large apartment projects under way or planned during the past year came under the emergency program of insured mortgages.

Arlington Apartments

THE TWO latest local projects to be approved are two apartments in Arlington, which will provide 48 units for veterans.

Lorcom Arms, with 36 apartments, will be built at North Woodrow and 21st sts. by Thomas J. Broyhill. It will be financed by the State Mutual Life Assurance Co. with a mortgage of $303,000 to be insured by FHA under the veterans' emergency provisions of the National Housing Act. It consists of three-story buildings containing 12 units of four rooms and 24 of five rooms.

Quincy Gardens Apartments, with 16 units of four and one half rooms each, will be built on Quincy st., Arlington, by James McBride, sr., Esther Burke, Wallace C. Lem and R. H. Rollins. It will be financed by the Metropolitan Mortgage Co. with an FHA-insured mortgage of $129,000. It consists of two-story walk-up structures.

The two units brought to 103 the total of such projects approved locally under the FHA emergency program.

The 90 per cent mortgage feature of the program proved highly popular with builders. It was anticipated that the $4,200,000,000 insurance authorization would be adequate for FHA Title VI operations through March 31, 1948, but the accelerated rate of applications was higher than expected.

During the last six working days prior to the stop edict, more than 160 million dollars in Title VI ap-

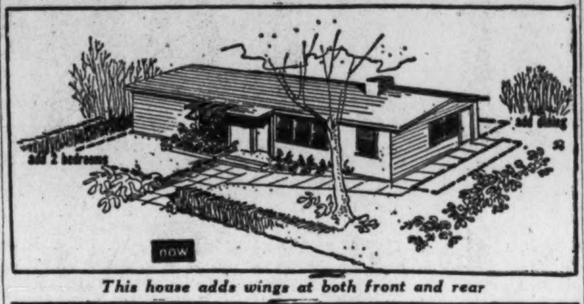
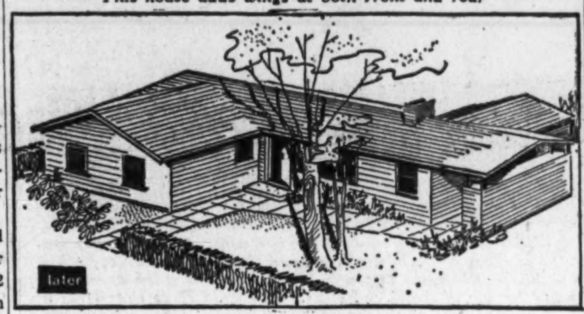
Uncle Sam Advocates Expanding Home Plan



This house adds wings at both front and rear



The final house is designed with good exposure for all rooms

THE Government has jumped on the "expansible house" bandwagon.

Housing and Home Finance Agency has published a 32-page illustrated booklet now available for distribution which contains six expansible floor plans.

HHFA sees the expansible house as the savior for the moderate income families in need of housing.

Six schemes for "houses that grow," each a complete home at all stages, are illustrated in the booklet. Each basic unit contains a living room, bedroom dining space, kitchen, adequate closets and storage space, together with heating equipment, hot water and laundry facilities.

Each is planned for the addition of bedrooms and other rooms at minimum costs as the family needs increase.

Homes erected under the plans are eligible for several types of Government mortgage insurance. The VA will guarantee up to $4000 on the purchase of such a home.

"The important thing about an expansible house," said Raymond Foley, HHFA administrator, "is that it be originally designed so that it can be enlarged with a minimum of structural change and expense and yet produce a completed home that is properly designed for family living requirements.

Copies of "Planning the Expansible House" are available at 20 cents each from the Superintendent of Documents, United States Government Printing Office, Washington 25, D. C.

353 Homes Under Way In N. E. Project

A 4½ million dollar construction program calling for 353 homes has been launched here by Steuart Bros., Inc. Two separate projects are included in the program, according to Curtis Steuart.

Two hundred and two homes are under way on a 20-acre tract at 8th and Emerson sts. ne., Steuart said. Forty are nearly ready for occupancy. The dwellings are all semidetached, brick, two-story, full-basement, two-bedroom-type homes, priced at $9850 to veterans.

The project was begun last February and many homes were sold to visitors who inspected the construction site, Steuart stated. A model home has been finished at 623 Emerson st. ne.

A second project involving 150 detached, two-story, three-bedroom brick homes is planned for a 30-acre site at Eastern and Michigan aves. ne., by the builders.

Steuart predicted the latter project would be completed within 18 months. The homes will sell for around $15,000. Leon Chatelain, jr. is the architect. Seventeen homes are now in progress, seven of them under roof.

Lustron Signs Pact With Labor

Chicago, Ill. Nov. 15.—A unique two-year labor contract for the mass production of porcelain enamel homes has been signed by the Lustron Corp. and international officers of the American Federation of Labor.

The contract provides:

Uninterrupted factory production of Lustron homes and their efficient erection at the building sites.

Reduction in the number of building trades from the customary dozen or so to three.

Avoidance of jurisdictional disputes between crafts.

Five-Room Bungalow

Carl Strandlund, president of Lustron Corp., said the agreement was the first ever reached in the low-cost housing field and would aid the company in reaching its proposed output of 30,000 units per year.

The Lustron home is a five room bungalow of "life-time porcelain enamel." It will be sold through dealers in each city at $7000 each, including erection charges, but not including land.

The homes will be foctory produced in a former airplane plant at Columbus, Ohio, where the Lustron Corp., has leased one million square feet from the War Assets Administration. Machinery is now being installed.

Strandlund said his firm expected to be turning out pilot homes this spring for shipment to dealers over the country.

Financing Completed

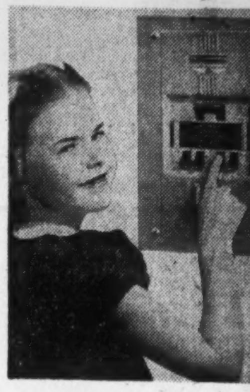
The Lustron Corp. recently completed its financing with a total capitilization of $16,341,000 of which $15,500,000 was a loan from RFC.

Labor leaders at the contract meeting included Richard Gray, international president of the Building Trades Department; Gordon Freeman, vice president, International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, both of Washington; George C. Ottens, international representative of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America; and Martin P. Durkin, of Washington, general president of the United Association of Journeymen and Apprentices of the plumbing and pipefitting industry of the United States and Canada, A. F. of L.

Introducing the 'Multi-Breaker'

'Flip of the Wrist' Replaces Fuse Box

THE old-time fuse box in the basement has about seen its day. The push-button age has made it old-fashioned for milady to fall down the basement stairs when a blown fuse darkens the family manse.



When such a disaster occurs nowadays, mom sends junior to the new type fuse box in the kitchen, where he flips a switch and behold, we have light!

This new type fuse protection isn't so new. It's been known in the building game for the last 10 years as a "multi-breaker." However, in the construction industry, it takes well over 10 years for anything new to be widely accepted.

Post-war demands for the "multi-breaker" have far exceeded the supply. Clyde J. Nesser of Cutler-Hammer, Inc., pioneer electrical manufacturers, says his office sells about 100 per month locally but could do much better if the factory output was increased.

Fuses blow out when wires become overloaded. When you plug in a radio, you add more load to the wire. Every lamp and electrical appliance which is added increases the electricity flow that comes through the wires that run like blood vessels through the home.

When too many appliances are turned on, something has to give way. It would be the house wiring were there no overload protective device guarding the circuit. In such cases, in most homes, the fuse blows and someone has to replace the blown fuse in the fuse box. If fuses aren't on hand, it means a trip to the store for replacements.

The new type "multi-breaker" resembles a panel of light switches. It's so simple and easy to operate a 6-year-old child can restore service.

In place of the old-fashioned fuse, a small metal device inside the sealed and tamper-proof case maintains electrical service as long as the current is normal. When the current reaches a point that is dangerous, this small metal device twists out of position, cutting off the current and throwing one of the small levers in front out of position.

To restore service, you simply return the lever to the "on" position which resets the small device inside the case. That's all there is too it. No trips to the store, no dark trips through a littered basement, no fuss or bother—just one simple flip of a switch.

Numerous firms manufacture the unique systems. Most cost around $10 each. Old homes can be modernized with "multi-breakers" installed in the same place as the fuse panel. Such an installation requires very little time and the least expense as ordinarily no additional wiring is needed.

The real character and charm of this house are not apparent from the outside. There are many unusual interior details which reflect the imagination and good taste of its architect-owner. A large living room and small library occupy the entire entrance floor. Downstairs the attractive dining room opens onto a really lovely dining terrace and garden. In addition, there is a cheerful, modern kitchen and a bath. Above are 2 pleasant bedrooms and bath. The house is in a block where extensive renovation, now under way, will greatly enhance its future value.

Builders Use All Emergency Insuring Funds

plications had been received by field offices over the Nation.

Processing these cases will be continued as rapidly as possible.

No Immediate Effect

RICHARDS pointed out that discontinuance of receiving applications would not necessarily mean the immediate slowing up of construction starts, but rather the acceleration of such starts in the near future due to the unprecedented volume of aplications which resulted in the exhaustion of the authorization.

The slow-up was expected to come when the aplications were processed and no new business was forthcoming from builders.

This action with respect to Title VI applications, Richards added, does not in any way affect modernization loans or loans up to $300 in the small home insurance program, nor did it affect the regular long-term financing under which loans might be made up to 80 per cent of the assessed value of the home.

Building organizations are expected to ask Congress for new funds to continue the program when Congress reconvenes in special session tomorrow.

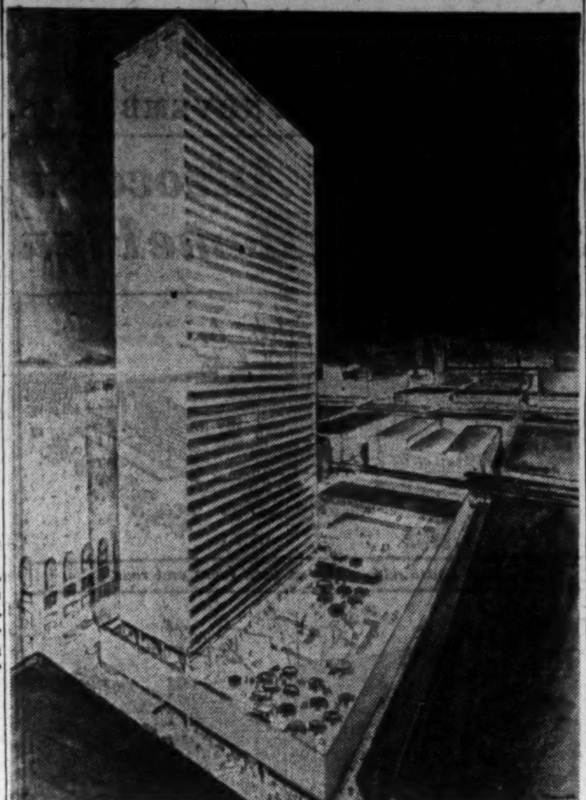
Without such aid builders would be forced to seek conventional financing and would be forced to put up a greater portion of capital than under the FHA program.

Doctor Pays $150,000 For Apartment House

Sale of a 22-unit apartment house at 2151 California st. nw. for $150,000 was announced yesterday.

Dr. S. Schwartz, 1912 R st. nw., purchased the property from Conarbe, Inc., through Sidney S. Brown and Samuel Spruce, real estate dealers.

Streamlined Structure



ARCHITECT Nathaniel A. Owings is applying the streamlining technique of the modern train and airliner to a proposed office building in Chicago. Depicted in this sketch is a structure composed largely of metal and glass. The main shaft rises from a park area created on the roof of the third floor level. The tower would contain offices. First floor would house stores and a theater. Basement second and third floors would be used for parking autos

She Paints on Textiles

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—Though June Gough started her career with lofty ideas about art, she was soon sidetracked by the pleasures of seeing many women wear and use her designs. One of her pictures painted on a play skirt of a window drapery began to seem more worth while than a canvas in an exhibition, of which, during the last 10 years, she had several of her own.

Like most people who start something, Miss Groff first painted on fabric because she wanted to wear it herself. She went on because it was fun.

After she had mastered her medium she decided for wider circulation. Setting up business in a Revolutionary barn, she developed her own printing process—one that reduces prices but keeps the illusion of fresh, bright water color paintings, with the brush strokes scarcely dry.

For the last few seasons play clothes, mostly by Clare Potter, have been taking over Miss Groff's fabrics, many with their stiff little figures looking like the work of an eager, talented child. Country tablecloths—custom order—and draperies, decorated for an average-length window and ready to hang—have also had considerable success.

Because of what she calls its "dull, earthy surface," Miss Groff likes best to paint on all cotton textures. She has done a few miraculous-looking velveteens, and just now she is starting to experiment with cotton taffeta. Hand-blocked, it will go into stand-alone dance dresses for spring.

colors. They soothe—give a sense of well-being.

"Cool greens can make you want to stay in place," he continued. "You will see them used more and more in comfortable cocktail lounges. Red, yellow and orange, however, will speed you along. These shades are so successful in pepping people up that they have proved to increase restaurant business by speeding up the noonday turnover.

"After a hot cup of coffee served in a red room, you'll call for your check and want to get out of 'that hot place.'"

But colors in business are treacherous, Mogulescu warns. Bluishgreens, he says, are so cool that they have made employes and customers feel cold.

Some Make You Sick

"ABSENTEEISM in industry has been successfully combatted with color," he said. "Women employes are especially sensitive to color. Bad color combinations can make them feel sick. Iron-grey walls in one factory gave the employes' skin such a sickly blue pallor that when workers looked in mirrors they actually felt ill. A warm beige paint job improved morale, cut down sickness and absence and reduced the acident rate.

"Modern factories have machines painted in bright agreeable colors to make products stand out in contrast. This improved visibility not only prevents accidents but also makes less fatigue. Workers take more pride in cheerful surroundings and consequently production is increased."

"Manhattan Island could get along for 10 years or more without building another skyscraper if present space were used to its maximum efficiency," Mogulescu says.

Fairfax Child Service Increases Consulting Staff

Fairfax County Child Consultation Service, 1057 W. Broad st., Falls Church, recently has added four new staff members, bringing its total organization to six.

Mrs. Harriet M. Stanton, graduate of Wellesley and Columbia, will serve as a psychologist. She previously has worked with the Danvers, Mass., State Hospital and the New York State Psychiatric Institute and Hospital.

Miss Lillian M. Snyder is the new psychiatric social worker. She is a graduate of the University of Illinois and the Smith College School of Social Work. She has had experience in Chicago, St. Louis, Galveston, Tex., and New York. During the war she was overseas with the American Red Cross for two years.

Two new secretaries, Mrs. Regina Hall and Mrs. Vera Moody, both of Falls Church, also have been appointed.

Now It's $25 Per 7-800

$3 Per 1000 Was Cost of Bricklaying In 1804

OLD John Evans must be spinning in his grave.

What with bricklayers receiving $25 a day and laying maybe 700 to 800 per day, and lathers getting $20 per day for 30 bundles.

If John Evans could see the prices paid today for building materials and labor he'd probably let out a "Wow!" that could be heard in Baltimore.

Evans was an authority on prices in the Washington building game—back in 1804. That was the date of publication of his "Builders Universal Price Book."

For $1 you learned what each local building trade should charge for services, plus construction tidbits such as:

"Foundations should be drained and kept dry."

"Timbers should be free from sap and rotten knots." (The VA has often wished a small segment of modern builders would learn that statement.)

The layman could glance at Evans' literary product and learn, for instance, what each item in the production of 1000 brick should cost. To name a few:

"Digging clay, 15 cents; tempering, 40 cents; wheeling, 40 cents; moulding, 75 cents; off-bearing bricks, 20 cents; setting of bricks in kiln, 40 cents; labor in burning, 40 cents; three eighths of a cord of wood for burning, $1.80; sand, use and wear of tool and plank, casualties in the weather and burning and sundry accidents, 50 cents; extra labor in making of stock bricks, $1.90; casualties in weather and burning, $1.90; picking and sorting out, 20 cents. Which brought the manufacturer's cost of 1000 hand-picked bricks to $9.

"The clay, interest of money, superintendence and profit is to be added," wrote Evans.

$31 Per Thousand Today

WITH common brick costing $31 per 1000 on today's market, the brick manufacturer of 1947 hasn't done bad, considering the value of the greenback in 1804 and now.

Modern-day builders would no doubt like to see the return of the day when bricklayers asked $3 per 1000 brick laid "in walls." For "arches, vaults and drains" the cost was $4 per 1000. Most present-day bricklayers receive 10 times that much.

The building mechanic of 1804 evidently was paid by his work output, not by the hours he worked. Here are more prices quoted by Evans:

Slaters' prices: dressing and sorting the slates, $2 a square (100 square feet). Lathing, pinning, slating and painting, $4 per square.

Carpenters' prices: ground joist and ceiling joist, $1 a square; partitions framed and braced, $1.50 a square; plain roofs without collar beams, $1 a square.

Shingling, 6-inch courses, $2.30 a square; construction of dormer windows, $7 each; arched dormers, $12. (You'd be awfully lucky to get two dormer windows installed today for under $100.)

Floors, 1 inch rough, full width jointed, $1 per 100 square feet; $1.50 if tongue and grooved; common rough stairs, each riser, 60 cents.

Evans wrote this word of caution to builders and architects, which still holds good today: "Negligence in building chimneys has consumed many buildings. No timber should be laid in the back of fireplaces, or nearer than nine inches of the sides—or five inches of a flue, nor any wood plugs drove into the brick work of the flues back or breast."

In Homes, Anyway

Gals Know What They Don't Want

San Francisco, Nov. 15 (AP).—Now, will the men who build homes for others, just bend an ear toward the little woman who has to live in them?

What she wants, Mrs. Arthur Mauerhan of Berkeley, Calif., told the women's council of the National Association of Real Estate Boards today, is:

A separate dining room, with doors to assure privacy, and opening onto a garden.

A laundry on the main floor—not in the basement.

A fireplace located on the long wall with at least 10 feet of unobstructed wall space opposite.

And some of the things she does not want, Mrs. Mauerhan said after polling 300 members of the Berkeley Women's City Club, are:

Fireplaces, windows, sinks and bathtubs in corners.

Steps between rooms.

Rough-textured plaster walls.

Bathrooms opening into two rooms.

Front-door chimes and peep holes.

Odd-shaped windows, "especially those small, high windows on either side of a fireplace."

And don't forget, cautioned Mrs. Mauerhan, modern architecture still has not alienated the American woman's preference for traditional colonial or Cape Cod.

Munyon Uses Name Coined From His Own

It didn't take Real Estate Salesman James M. Munyon long to figure out a name for his company when he decided to go in business for himself. The Jayem Realty Co. is now doing business at Room 410, Bond Building.

Jayem, of course, stands for J. M., Mr. Munyon's initials.

Import Bulb Hearing Set For Tuesday

Hearings to consider possible further restrictions of importations of foreign nursery stock and bulbs are to begin at 10 a. m. Tuesday in the auditorium of the South Building, Department of Agriculture. Many garden clubs are expected to send representatives to present their views.

Many flowering plants and bulbs come from Holland, which has sent two experts, Dr. C. J. Brieier and Dr. B. J. Hermans, to testify as to the high standards of disease and pest control maintained by that country.

H. G. Dekens, representing the Plant Exporters Association of the Netherlands, has arrived in Washington for the hearing, and representatives of the growers of the famous Dutch bulbs also will be present.

The hearings will be continued on Wednesday and views of gardeners and other interested persons will be heard.

Tight Windows Save Much Fuel

The crack around the average window sash is equal in space to the size of a common brick. In the average home, this means the total space from which heat can escape is equal to 22 bricks or a hole big enough for a person to crawl through.

Such leaks should be stopped with weather-stripping. If this is done and storm windows are installed, fuel savings for each window so protected each season will amount to 100 pounds of coal, 8½ gallons of fuel oil, or 12 gas therms. In the average house with 22 windows, this means more than a ton of coal, 187 gallons of oil or 264 gas therms.

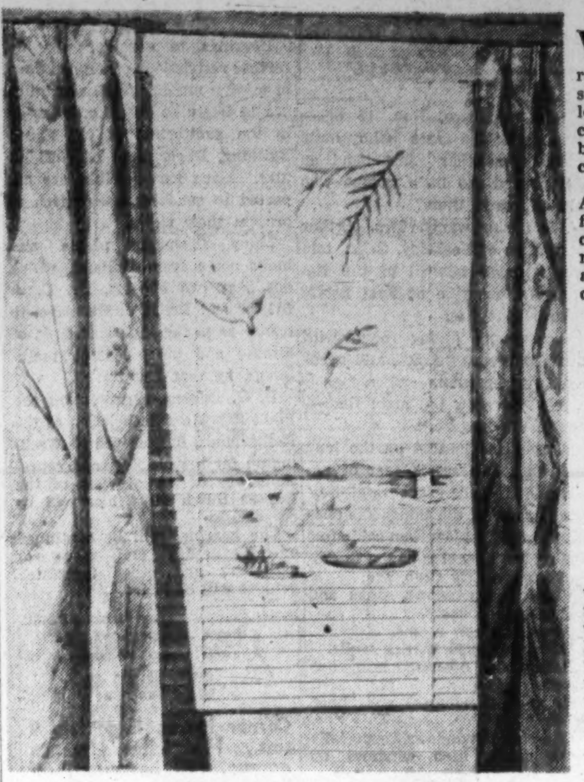
Stump-Removal Now Made Easier

Lacking a bulldozer for getting rid of stumps, the advice of the General Electric Co. is to bore holes around the center, 2 inches deep, about ¾ inch in diameter and fill them with saltpeter.

Pour water in the holes—repeat the dose after several weeks, and then wait several months. At that time build a fire on the stump. The saltpeter will have penetrated to the roots, furnishing oxygen which will enable the fire to consume both stump and roots.

Designers Come to the Rescue

There's Something New in Venetian Blinds



Decorative blinds are a new fad

By Geri Petri

VENETIAN blinds, most of us agree, are practical and decorative in their own right, but present an annoying cleaning problem. Right at the window, they collect dirt and dust with no trouble at all, especially in the smoky city, and show it off just as easily.

We called on the Venetian Blind Association in New York City, to find out what ideas they had for cleaning blinds and keeping them neat looking. Their suggestions and news of improvements we pass on to you.

To overcome the nuisance factor of tangling with cords and tapes while trying to dust or wash, designers have produced blinds with removable slats. These slats are notched and laced at the ends with cord, instead of through the middle. With this new arrangement, snap the cord to the side and each slat can be slipped out in a jiffy, cleaned and replaced. As you'd expect, such a blind costs a little more than a regular blind.

Gum-backed tapes offer a tricky way of overcoming old, soiled tapes. Regular dusting of the tapes with a brush or whisk broom will keep them in good condition; in time, however, tapes do take on that drab, not-so-clean appearance from imbedded soil.

Press-On Tapes

RATHER than have the tapes replaced entirely, you can do the repair work yourself. Simply press gum-backed tape in place over the original. These tapes come in various colors so, if you like, choose one to contrast with the blinds or harmonize with the color scheme of the room.

To simplify the cleaning of Venetian blinds, the first step suggested by a member of the association is to rub the blinds to a gloss with a good quality furniture polish.

They will be much easier to keep clean because dust and grime seem to slide off a hard protective finish. There is danger in using a floor wax on blinds, we are told. Unless it is painstakingly applied, it wil lump, catch dust and complicate refinishing.

Laundry Service

FOR dusting, the round brush attachment of a vacuum cleaner is close to ideal. A two or three-fingered brush that will clean both sides of several slats at once or a roller disc with removable pads also are recommended. Soiled blinds can be washed with a soft cloth dipped in a mild solution of soap or cleansing powder.

Venetian blind laundries are available for those not inclined to do the washing themselves. These laundries will call for your blinds, wash them in special shower stall equipment and return them in a few days. Worn tapes and cords will be replaced, if desired. Like regular laundry and dry cleaning establishments, here's another service you can look to for help in combating ever-present cleaning chores.

Having taken some of the "nuisance" out of keeping these blinds spic-and-span, manufacturers are adding color and decorative motifs to slats and tapes. Ivory and eggshell shades are the most popular, but now blinds can be made in almost any color you like.

Even more decorative are Venetian blinds with patterns and designs air-brushed on the slats. Colorful and washable, they can add charm and life to a room, particularly a kitchen, nursery, game room or sun porch.

Rent Rises Must Figure Out to Penny

New Orleans, Nov. 15 (AP).—A rent increase of 15 per cent means just that and not two cents more.

J. A. M. Wilson, New Orleans real estate man, told the National Association of Real Estate Boards that he had all papers returned by the local rent director because the rent was listed at $48.90 instead of $48.88.

He argued that rents were set at the nearest amount to avoid handling pennies and that this often resulted in tenants getting a two-cent bonus, but he was overruled.

The leases had to be redrawn and resubmitted and the rent now stands at $48.88.

Bubble Gum Magnate Plans European Sales

New York, Nov. 15.—Andrew J. Paris, chewing a stick of the bubble gum he manufactures, has left by plane for Europe to espouse the cause of blowing bigger and better bubbles among the small fry on the continent.

Paris, a Detroit resident, was armed with 30 pounds of samples and said he would open offices in Paris and Brussels.

With an appreciative gleam in his eye, he estimated that between 25 million and 30 million American children now chew the gum.

Exclusive Realty Co. Says:

Finding Buyers for Your Property is Our Business

READ—PROFIT!

THIS IS NOT JUST ANOTHER REAL ESTATE ADVERTISEMENT but a lesson to home owners who wish to SELL THEIR PROPERTY; want to place it in the capable hands of a broker who is PROGRESSIVE and very much in earnest about finding a GOOD MARKET for you. That we possess these characteristics is proven by the fact that we are spending money in advertising to accomplish these ends. Let us inspect your property so as to know it "first-hand" and help you to fix a selling price that will be fair all around and most likely to result in a satisfactory sale. WE, AS REAL ESTATE SPECIALISTS, are in a position to know buyers, to ADVERTISE THE PROPERTY EFFECTIVELY, to get the best terms and TO CLOSE A SALE where others fail. Too many brokers merely list property and it gets "lost" in their files—"waiting" for some customer to turn up who may want it. This is one thing we do not do; it is not fair to the property owner! It isn't fair to the prospective buyers. It is NOT BUSINESS-LIKE or efficient and it does not get good results, except in a hit-or-miss way.

If a property is worth listing, it is worth doing something about. In order to better acquaint property owners as to our method of selling we wish to inform you as prospective sellers that we will put all our time, effort and advertising into the sale of your properties. To do this, we must have exclusive listings. It is to your advantage, because an exclusive listing means that you have something valuable to sell, whereas if a property is listed with many brokers, it seems as though the owner were trying hard to get rid of something that has not a high market value. We can get results, our methols are not just "rubber-stamp"—the "same old thing" that everybody else uses, the old way of putting a "For Sale" sign on a property and then waiting patiently or impatiently for a buyer, is as out of date as the high-wheel bicycle.

While we do not want to promise anything we can't perform, we do say that we believe that our knowledge of real estate, our plan of advertising, our ideas for interesting buyers, place us in a position to give you quick and efficient service on an exclusve basis. If your property is on the market, it will certainly pay you to put it in the hands of a broker who does not wait for buyers, but who has a time-tested plan for finding buyers and selling real estate! We are not merely interested in listing properties, but in selling them.

Metal Paint Cuts Radiator Output

The practice of coating hot-water and steam radiators with metallic paint is extremely wasteful of fuel. The metallic paint acts as an insulator, in some cases holding as much as 15 per cent of the heat within the radiator.

For that reason radiators should be painted with a good oil paint or enamel. Flat wall paint has greater resistance to blistering and peeling than other kinds. Before repainting, as much of the metallic paint should be removed with a wire brush and the new paint spread on thinly while the radiator is cold. Do not turn on the heat until the paint is completely dry.

Realty Round-Up

THE GOVERNMENT'S top housing official, Raymond Foley, Home and Housing Finance Agency administrator, has been greatly disturbed by the plight of minority groups in obtaining suitable housing. Some months ago he quietly appointed five Negroes to the newly created posts of "racial relations advisers." The appointees have been learning the ropes of the housing game and are now ready to go to work.

Their main job will be to interest Negro bankers, builders and real estate developers in building more homes and apartments for Negroes. Foley said this service is in line with the announced policy of FHA to assist industry and local communities in solving the serious housing problems of minority groups.

Clarence R. Johnson, with headquarters in New York City, is the racial relations adviser for the Zone 1, which includes the local area. He will work directly under the FHA Zone 1 Commissioner.

FHA Commissioner Franklin Richards pointed out that his agency has already chalked up success in the development of several large scale housing projects for minority groups.

"Notable examples," he said, "are Suburban Gardens and Mayfair Mansion, in Washington; Day Village, Baltimore, Brookfield Gardens, Richmond; Princeton Park, Chicago, and Clinton Park, Houston."

WHA, Builders Tangle

The October-November issue of the Washington Housing Association's "Housing Letter," just published, contains an exchange of correspondence between WHA and the Home Builders Association of Metropolitan Washington.

The building group opposed WHA's endorsement of a Senate bill authorizing life insurance companies in the District to invest a portion of their assets in real estate.

"It is our view that it is not the function of an agency supported by public funds (Community Chest, Ed's note) to endeavor to lend support to controversial legislation," wrote Larry Hanson of the Home Builders.

Besides, Hanson continued, today's unsettled market is a very poor place for the investment of insurance company funds.

WHA's J. B. Wyckoff poohpoohed Hanson's stand. "Investment housing constructed with insurance company funds such as by Metropolitan Insurance Co. in Queens, New York, has proved so successful during the depression and ensuing years that Metropolitan is greatly extending its investment in housing."

Regarding WHA's policy on controversial legislation, Wyckoff wrote: "It would be surprising indeed if a housing association failed to take a stand on measures which would contribute to a supply of good housing when it is urgently needed in the community."

The exchange of letters are fine examples of restrained word-slinging.

Forty-one apprentices were registered during October by the Operating Engineers Union No. 77, Gino J. Simi, district director of apprenticeship, has announced. There are now 49 beginners in training under such training, of which 20 are veterans.

Realty Financing Up

Nonfarm real estate financing, embracing loans of under $20,000, reached almost $1,023,000,000 during September, the Home Loan Bank Board estimated yesterday. A slight increase over the previous record reached in October, 1946, this is the highest total of mortgage financing for any month since such figures were first assembled by the board in 1939.

About 200,000 additional workers will be needed in the construction industry next year to permit an anticipated increase of about 1.5 million dollars in new construction, according to Doug Whitlock of the Building Products Institute.

FALL home building starts continue, with indications of full capacity spring production. Construction is being pushed in 250 new houses in North Miami. In Providence 45 houses were started in the last week of October. A Charlotte, N. C., firm, which is producing a four-room brick veneer house to sell to veterans at $6800, finds that it can't build them fast enough to meet the demand, the Nareb market comment letter said yesterday.

Total of new home building permits in Chicago area this year will probably reach 23,000. Detroit builders estimate 1947 starts there will be more than 12,000. Surveys, plats and regulations for 106 new subdivisions have been filed in St. Louis this year. Lustron Corp. expects to be in assembly line production of all-steel houses at the rate of 30,000 by next August. About 3000 new dwellings have been built in the Dallas-Fort Worth area this year.

Higher costs still figure in reports from builders. A Charlotte, N. C., firm states that it has had an over-all increase of 2 per cent in material costs in the past 60 days. A Louisville report indicates prices are up due to increased costs. A Texas survey finds more

EXTENSIVE glass areas designed to admit the low winter sun are shown in local Architect Alfred Kastner's sketch of the solar house for the District area featured in the book, "Your Solar House." The first floor contains the living and dining areas, extending across the entire south face of the house. Upstairs are three bedrooms, a dressing room and two bedrooms. The roof surface forms a shallow water basin around a solarium. Both the first and second floor rooms on the south side are largely glazed while roof overhangs shield the windows in summer. Government Stocks Slump in London

London, Nov. 15 (AP).—A heavy slump in government stocks, especially low interest issues, led a general decline in the stock exchange following Hugh Dalton's replacement as Chancellor of the Exchequer by Sir Stafford Cripps.

Only home rails, to be nationalized on January 1 with the consequent issue of government stocks to pay for the railroads, were able to keep the upward trend exhibited yesterday in the wake of Dalton's extraordinary budget.

Wintering Suggestions for Garden

HERE are some "how-to" suggestions for putting your garden to bed for the winter with assurance of a safe, healthful rest for your plants, from Better Homes and Gardens magazine.

LAWNS: Lawn mowers should be set to cut as high as possible, but continue to mow regularly until the grass stops growing. KcKep leaves swept up at weekly intervals to avoid smothering grass.

HEDGES: Removing leaves and trash caught at the bases of your hedge and fence eliminates a fire hazard. Use soil if hedges in your area should be mulched. Hedges should be trimmed until spring, but you can rebuild fences now with little disturbance to nearby plants.

PERENNIALS AND BIENNIALS: You'll probably have less disease and fewer insects next year if you cut old stems to the ground and burn them now. Tender plants can be moved into your coldframe, or mulched with leaves, or hay held down by stakes, wire or branches.

ANNUALS AND VEGETABLES: Fall spading is best for ground you expect to use next year for annuals or vegetables. The winter frost will break up the clods and leaves your soil in the best condition for seed-sowing next spring. Insects exposed to the oold will be killed.

VINES: Three-year-old rose canes should be cut off before climbers are wrapped or laid down and buried for the winter. Wisteria, ivy, and euonymus need protection against rabbits. Use screen wire to cover the lower three feet of each vine. Be sure to push wire into the ground.

TREES: Newly set trees need guy wires to resist winter winds, and all trees need protection against raids by bark-hungry mice and rabbits. Push screen or wire netting two inches into the ground to foil attempts at an underground attack by pests.

Cold Frames Useful All Year Around

Every complete garden needs a cold frame. It is a most useful tool, not merely in the spring, but all year around. If you lack this aid to garden success, fall is a good time to build it, and the illustration shows how it may be constructed and put to immediate use for rooting winter flowering bulbs.

Hyacinths, early tulips, narcissi and daffodils are the principal ones which need a dark, cool situation to encourage early root formation. Bury them in the frame bed in the pots you expect to grow them in, and when roots have developed sufficiently bring them indoors for the quick growth of the tips and blossoms.

The frosts of late fall bring to mind problems of harboring perennial seedlings. If you planted them late they will no doubt need some additional protection, and the cold frame will provide it. The best all-around method is to pot the plants, and set them into the frame. Such treatment assures them a few more weeks of growth, and will enable them to benefit from extra warmth in the spring and get an early start. They will also be easily transplanted.

Two lovely perennials which are difficult to grow without protection are the foxgloves with their stately spires, and the canterbury bells. Although they are perfectly hardy so far as cold weather is concerned, they are very susceptible to wet weather, and thawing and freezing.

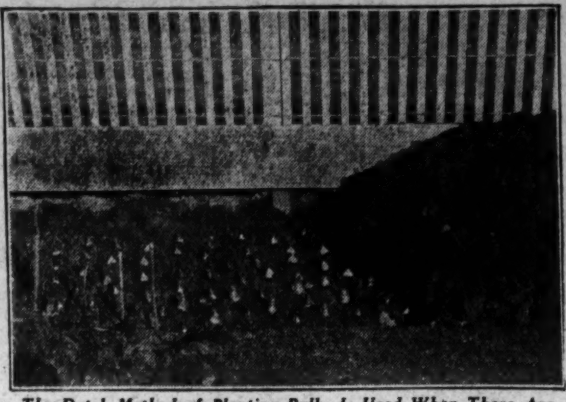
THE GARDENER

Two Planting Methods Keep Bulbs Over Winter

There are two methods of planting fall bulbs. When planted in the perennial border, among other plants, a hole should be dug for each bulb with a trowel. Be sure that the hole is large enough so that the bulb rests on the soil, and there is no air pocket beneath it.

The soil should be packed firmly around and above the bulb, and planting may be done as late as this is possible. Even if there is a crust of frost on the surface, so long as the soil beneath will crumble easily, planting can continue. But when the ground freezes deep enough to prevent this, it is too late to plant.

If an entire bed, or border space is to be planted to bulbs, it may be excavated to the required depth, and the bulbs placed on the floor of the excavation in the desired arrangement. This is a necessary method when tulips are to be used to form a pattern, in the style still popular in Europe and formerly practiced here. Even if no pattern is desired, this is a good way when there are no established plants in the area to interfere with it.



The Dutch Method of Planting Bulbs Is Used When There Are No Other Plants to Consider

This is called the Dutch method, because it is used in Holland not only for garden beds, but also in the tulip fields. When the soil is filled in above the bulbs, it should be heaped up an inch or two higher than the surrounding surface to allow for settling, and prevent a depression in which water might stand.

Wet soil is the great enemy of all garden bulbs. They will not grow in wet soil, and soon decay. They should never be planted in a place from which water does not drain away quickly. If there is no such place in your garden, then make an elevated bed, six inches above the garden level, in which to plant your bulbs.

Cold does not injure hardy bulbs; but wet soil will destroy

DU PONT Self-Cleaning House Paint STAYS WHITE

Yes, "Self-Cleaning" Du Pont House Paint is so formulated that, as time goes by, a microscopically fine white powder forms on the surface. Heavy rains wash the powder away, taking dust and dirt with it and leaving the surface clean and white again. Excessive accumulations of dirt (particularly in sooty industrial communities or in heavily shaded locations) may delay or interfere with this process. Because this "Self-Cleaning is gradual, the wearing qualities of the paint film are not abnormally affected...It starts white...It stays white.

Heated Sunrooms Help Warm House

Many persons close up their sunrooms during the winter to save fuel. This should be done, of course, if the room is not heated. However, most sunrooms today have radiators or warm air grilles.

In such cases the householder will find that by leaving the sunroom open to the rest of the house and using it normally all winter, it will help warm the home, provided there is sufficient radiation to compensate for the wide expanse of windows. The very location of the average sunroom takes advantage of the sun's rays and these add to the warmth of the house, together with the added radiation.

Tips on Home Items

THIS MAN is carrying under one arm, one 60-pound carton, containing 1000 square feet of Infra Accordion insulation, a new lightweight aluminum foil product, which the maker states, insulates against heat, condensation, vapor, vermin, mold and fire. It has been installed in several local building projects.

Speaking of aluminum products reminds us of Broma, a new type chrome finish, ready mixed aluminum paint now on the market. It can be applied on metal, wood or concrete by either brushing, dipping or spraying. The average coverage capacity is said to be between 600 to 1000 square feet per gallon. The paint was especially developed to resist adverse weather conditions in exposed places such as steel constructions, oil and water tanks, roofs, machinery, maintenance work, truck and trailer bodies, etc. Kenyon Bros., of Bethesda, are manufacturers' representatives.

As long as we're on the subject of aluminum, we'll tell you of other new products in that field. Hailed by the manufacturer as the first basic improvement in ironing tables for a century is an aluminum-topped table which provides a strong, rigid surface that will stand heavy pressing and at the same time is light enough to eliminate the hazard of tipping. The surface of the top is perforated with as many as 745 small holes that allow moisture to escape, speeding up the ironing operation.

"Broilmaster" broils a steak in 5 to 7 minutes in an ordinary frying-pan, its maker claims. Merely put meat in frying pan (no greese) place Broilmaster over the pan, plug it in a socket and in a few minutes the meat is tastily broiled. Unit doubles as an electric stove when used with a base.

Aluminum windows, venetian-type aluminum awnings, floor mops, mail boxes, commercial outdoor display signs, roof tops for farms and lawn sprinklers are only a few of the new aluminum products now on the market.

"Flush-Wall" radios are for people who like their news and music within arms' reach. This type radio fits where the name says—in the wall. Antenna is concealed in the walls. It is a standard 5-tube, A.C.-D.C. superheterodyne with a plastic or masonite panel. It is hinged and swings out for needed repairs. It could be installed by the kitchen table, bathroom, bedroom or any other section of the home.

Added home protection is afforded by the "Magic Mirror Door Detective." Easily installed in any wood or metal door, of any thickness, it enables residents to see all callers clearly, without being seen, while the caller sees only his own reflection in a shiny mirror. It also features a new patented dome view-adjusting back, built-in speaker and automatic safety lock. Sold in many hardware and department stores.

Wizards of Electricity Invade Boudoir With Wired Sheet

By Harriet Morrison

THERE'S no stopping the electrical industry. Not satisfied with having run through the kitchen and electrified every activity commonly associated with the culinary arts, it has now scampered delightedly into the boudoir.

Here the magicians have systematically stripped the beds under our very noses. For a while we were down to one electric blanket. But now the Westinghouse people have gone so far as to remove the blanket, leaving us cowering under one wired sheet in this brave new world.

As if this were not enough they have neatly implicated the Air Force in this electrical invasion of slumberland.

The new sheet is wired, fully insulated and is equipped with an automatic temperature control, plus a Neon signal light. The "neutral-colored" muslin may offend the fastidious who prefer pristine white, but it can be dunked in the washer any time and hung over the line to dry since all the electrical parts are completely waterproof.

Can't Electrocute You

ALL the miracle sheet seems to lack is a differential temperature control that will allow Mr. A to roast on his side of the bed and Mrs. A to sleep in cool comfort on her side—a new selling point for one of the electric blankets.

The sheet can't harm you or burn down the house with you in it. Westinghouse has armed itself with credentials from the Underwriters' Laboratories, an austere organization whose decrees are respected by the entire industry. This prim group has fully approved the heating element wires that are sewn into the 70-by-84-inch sheet.

Here is where the Air Force enters the picture. The method used to sew the 150-watt heating element, consisting of a bunch of wires, to the sheet, was originally developed for the Air Force and was used in flying suits worn by flyers who penetrated the stratosphere.

It may not be long now before we can climb into an electrically wired nightgown, while giving the Air Force due credit and curl up on a floor cushion that is also connected to the nearest wall outlet, turn the switch and sleep anywhere in the house.

Beds Next to Go

BEDS may be on their way out. They take up space when space in houses is at a premium. Architects, too, have long given the impression that finding room in a house for a linen closet with enough room to hold 10 or 12 blankets was an utter bore. Coping with one wired sheet would be easier for the architects and for the person who makes the bed.

Shopping Center Ground Broken

Ground was broken Wednesday for erection of a 16-store-shopping center at Old Bladensburg and Colesville roads, in Silver Spring. The owners, Woodmoor Services, Inc., hope to complete the structure in eight months.

Leases have been signed for an Acme Super Market, auto accessory and hardware store, clothing store, electrical appliance shop, beauty parlor, barber shop and valet shop. Frank S. Phillips, leasing agent, said some store and office space was still available.

E. L. Daniels Co. of Arlington, Va., is the builder.

War Hurts Cotton Exports

During World War II world exports of cotton goods declined to about two and a half billion yards a year compared with about seven billion yards a year before the war.

Waste Motion in Rural Chores

Efficiency Experts Advising Farmers

By Lawrence N. Eldred

CHICAGO, Nov. 15 (AP).—American farmers, who work an average of 65 hours a week—and most of it in the barnyard—are beginning to wonder whether they are running an efficient operation.

They are asking themselves such questions as:

Which way do my cows face? Are my gates and doors well located? Will a machine do this job better than my muscles? How should my pigs eat and drink?

Answers to questions like these are giving today's farmer a new blueprint for shorter workdays, higher hourly income and more pleasure.

Despite field work reductions of 30 to 80 per cent, the farmer still works an average 65-hour week. Government surveys show chores and barnlot routine make up 75 per cent of the work week on dairy farms. The University of Illinois found farmers in the heart of the Illinois cash grain area worked 62 per cent of their week around the buildings and feedlots instead of in the grain fields.

So the Nation's agricultural schools and experiment stations are using stopwatches and measuring tapes on our food producers to help them do their jobs faster and easier.

Borrow From Industry

THAYER CLEAVER, agricultural engineer at the University of Illinois, said studies have been completed of dairy farms in Illinois, Indiana and Wisconsin showing appreciable differences in the amount of time consumed for feeding, milking and caring for the cows.

Most dairy barns are built to accommodate two rows of cows, facing either toward the outer walls or in toward the center alley. Those facing in require 14 per cent more time for the milking operation than those facing out, it was found.

At the University of New Hampshire, time and motion studies, long a handy device for discovering labor-saving methods in manufacturing industries, were reduced to algebraic formulas for dairy barns.

The milking operation covering 40 cows totaled 2420 feet to and from the milkhouse at one end of the barn if the cows faced in, but if they faced out this distance was only 1840 feet, the testers discovered. The saving in steps amounts to more than 100 miles a year.

R. H. Wilcox, associated professor of agricultural economics at Illinois, noted that "most of the time spent on the farmstead is for preparing cattle and hog feed, in the actual feeding, in hauling and spreading manure, and in milking and caring for the milk.

"Man labor is second only to feed as a cost item in livestock production and dairying, and there are still many places where labor savings can be made.

"It is not unusual for a farmer to spend $2000 to $3000 for a new kind of machine to save time in the field. But is is hard, oftentimes, for him to see that the same amount of money spent improving the inside building arrangement or even in moving buildings to get the livestock near the stored feed, would save more total man hours in a year's time than would the field machine."

As examples of what efficiency can do, he added that milking machines reduce man labor on the dairy herd by 15 per cent.

Demand Is Up to 50 Per Cent

Five Ways Oil Heat Users Can Save Fuel

1. Keep your home from becoming too warm. Fuel consumption increases about 3 per cent for each degree in excess of 70. Besides wasting fuel, overheating endangers your family's health.

2. Maintain proper humidity, since moisture in the air makes you comfortable at lower temperatures. Tanks in furnaces or on radiators need regular refilling. Pans of water will do the job

3. Bedroom doors should be closed at night to keep the rest of the house from becoming chilled by open windows. Don't heat the outdoors. Close off seldom-used rooms, storage spaces.

4. Shut flues in fireplace when not in use. An open chimney sucks warm air out of your house. Also keep registers, vents or other openings closed in unused rooms to prevent drafts.

5. Weatherproof your house as far as your means will permit. This may include caulking around doors or windows, weatherstripping, installing storm windows and insulating.

Weekly Report Of Realty Market News material and labor available, although both are still short.

Sales are stepping up in the Tacoma market, with new business and industry coming in and population rising. Good listings moved rapidly in a brisk late October market in Providence. One Tulsa firm reports October sales volume $100,000 higher than its September total.

A recent survey by a Los Angeles bank finds that 230,000 people there plan to invest in residential property now or in the near future. It indicates that the market for homes priced above $15,000 is expanding, but that the biggest demand is for small houses priced around $5000.

Home loans insured by FHA in the Tampa area in July, August and September totaled $6,399,820 as compared with $1,372,700 for the same period of 1946. Life insurance companies invested 46 million dollars in FHA mortgages in August—more than double the total for August of last year.

New construction, along with higher real estate values, has added more than three billion dollars this year to the assessment rolls of 49 major population centers, according to a report by the National Association of Assessing Officers. The Home, Farm and Property Owners Association of Allegheny County (Pittsburgh), Pa., is urging the city to spread the local tax base by adopting a municipal wage tax, amusement tax, and mercantile tax on wholesale and retail businesses.

Construction of a new two-million-dollar shopping center in Dallas is expected to be under way in January. Work is progressing on three new General Mills plants in Los Angeles, Lodi, Calif., and Kankakee, Ill. September sales of lumber and building materials dealers were 41 per cent over the level of September, 1946, the Department of Commerce reports.

Old Floors Improved By Use of Strips

Old floors with wide cracks should have the cracks filled with thin strips of wood driven into the cracks or glued or nailed in place, if the cracks are wide enough to permit such treatment.

Next, the wood strips should be sandpapered even with the rest of the floor, and remaining crevices and the smaller cracks in the floor filled with prepared crack filler, obtainable from paint dealers. The cracks should be slightly overfilled to allow for shrinkage. When the filler is hard the excess filler should be sandpapered to an even surface.

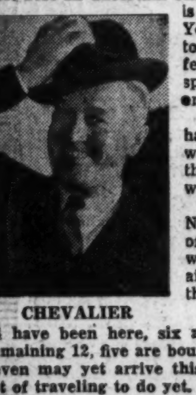
High Costs Put Those Revivals Into National

By Richard L. Coe

LAST JANUARY 1700 players in the United States had stage jobs. Today about 1000 are working, less than 20 per cent of Equity's membership.

At best an uncertain one, the theater profession today is bothered and bewildered. New York producers met last week to look into the cause of their fears; Equity has formed a special committee to study unemployment.



CHEVALIER

The fabulous invalid always has pulled through before and will again. The fact remains, things are now in an uncertain way.

Many people ask us why the National is having such a spate of revivals and old shows. It would be easy to echo them airily, but the cold facts are that the National's doing fine.

Of 32 shows now on the road, 14 have been here, six are definitely coming. Of the remaining 12, five are bound for New York and the other seven may yet arrive this season, though they've got a lot of traveling to do yet.

Of New York's current 30, four or five are in their death throes. The hits (roughly 16) are likely comers but far in the future. The fates of the rest are in the balance, but they'll certainly stick it out in Manhattan till after Chrismas spending.

A Fine Season

THERE are only—and this is the really discouraging topper—four shows in rehearsal and one of these is for a road tour by truck of "The Late George Apley."

Yes, around the Lambs' and the Players' there's talk of future castings and Equity's Library Theater movement (for New York only) may equal last season's record of 56 productions in little theaters of the New York Public Library branches.

All this doesn't mean the public won't go to to a good play. Far from it. The National's had a fine season—nothing like the war years, to be sure, but just try and get balcony seats for next week's "Song of Norway." All by himself, M. Chevalier pulled into the boxoffice more than $18,000 for his week's stay, which had only one matinee.

The Theater Guild subscription may be down from the peak war years, but 12,000 subscribers is a juicy guarantee for two-week stands. Washington is a particularly sought-after show stop; all the managers finagle to play here. And just try and get tickets to Gotham's big hits.

So what's the matter?

Like you and you and you—and us—it's the high cost of living that's got the producers down.

Sets Expensive

TIGHT union practices are one thing. It was considered a sheer miracle two weeks ago when Gant Gaither was able to raise the curtain on Jane Cowl's revival of "The First Mrs. Fraser" for only $20,000. Single sets are almost a must for script-searching producers. Costs of simply making scenery are five times what they were a few years ago. With only one set, "Command Decision" is doing the remarkable job of paying off its $60,000 production cost within the first three months.

Another production expense you may not often think of is railroad fare. Trucking to and from stations and theaters is dear enough, but recently the roads have been claiming that with their streamlined trains they can't attach additional baggage cars. That means special trains. While this doesn't apply in these parts, it's a decided factor in booking a big show on a Nation-wide tour.

With costs so high, managers are timid about new scripts. They are reading them like crazy.

Here the effects of the war seem to be felt. The older crop of playwrights either is busy with other ventures or doggedly trying to recapture former inspirations. The newer writers appear to have been sidetracked by wartime duties, not only from writing but from familiarizing themselves with theater technique enough to turn out even a promising play. One producer told us that in discussing a script with one young man, he discovered the

Ervine Plays Leave N. Y. Critics Cold

By Jack O'Brian

NEW YORK, Nov. 15 (AP).—St. John Ervine, the London playwright, received the uncommon honor of having two of his old plays revived here during the last few days/ one, "The First Mrs. Fraser," on Broadway with Jane Cowl starred; the other over the National Broadcasting Company's East Coast television network. Neither was very good.

In fact, the suspicion rises that "The First Mrs. Fraser" was not of much moment when it premiered here in 1929. I asked one of my colleagues, who had been occupying a reviewer's pew when Grace George first starred in the comedy, how it seemed in 1929. "It seemed 18 years old then," he said, I thought a bit petulantly. As presented to Broadway first nighters with Henry Daniell in support of Jane Cowl, and the ladies given the dubious attractiveness of the "New Look," it still seems somewhat seedy dramatically.

Not having been on hand that 1929 evening, I couldn't agree retroactively with my critical compatriot as to its merits then. But at the Shubert the other evening it seemed to possess very little except the stylized affectations of Miss Cowl, so helpful in other comedies, which herein were wasted and, in fact, actually pointed up the comedy's shortcomings.

Miss Cowl fluttered and bounced, did every trick of the considerable collection she has gathered since her 1903 debut, but despite an impressively deli cate acrobatic exhibition she was unable to lend any particular impact to the proceedings.

With Henry Daniell as the first husband she now wants back from his second wife, Miss Cowl tries nobly but falls flat in a manner which shouldn't concern her too much, for the St. John Ervine comedy is fairly empty of stature, is old-fashioned in its comedy affectations, a creaky, over-stuffed play. I'm quite sure it might better have been left the nostalgic celebrity of 1929 rather than trotted out now to have its infirmities diagnosed and deplored.

Television, as a matter of fact, did even worse by another Ervine drama, "John Ferguson," which was chosen by the Theater Guild to begin its NBC network series.

CUFF STUFF: Dennis King replaces John Gielgud in "Medea," freeing Gielgud for a role in "Crime and Punishment," . . . Laurence Olivier will go to Australia for a six-month tour with his wife, Vivien Leigh—with a slim prospect of their playing on Broadway briefly afterward . . . James Merrill Herd has taken over "The Late Christopher Bean" and will tour the show, starring Zazu Pitts.

"Call Me Mister" calmly scooted past its 660th performance this week . .

Morgan Gets Riper and Riper

By John Crosby

EVER SINCE "The Bandwagon," that most captivating of all revues, I have followed with intense interest the development of Frank Morgan's laugh, a comic trick which has taken him far. In the last decade that "hee hee hee hee hee haw" of Morgan has been elaborated, reorchestrated and greatly enriched by constant practice. The tone color is warmer, deeper—one might almost say—purer, euphonious. Or possibly fruitier is the word I'm looking for.

The whole Morgan personality, which is now on display on the new Old Gold show (WTOP-CBS, 9 p. m., Wednesdays), has been ripening under the California sun for a great many years and has now reached a stage where it can't mature much further without getting wormy.

In full blossom, the Morgan character is about one third Sheridan Whiteside of "The Man Who Came to Dinner," one part Major Hoople of the comic strips, and one part goat. On the "Old Gold" show where he shares billing with Frances Langford and Don Ameche, he works all three veins indiscriminately and concurrently.

Triple Threat

ONE MOMENT he's waspish like Monty Woolley; the next he's telling preposterous lies like Major Hoople; the next moment he's being goatish. Possibly these characteristics are mutually incompatible because it sounds like three men talking at once on different subjects.

Mr. Morgan precipitates himself into the "Old Gold" show a few moments after the trumpets have subsided and spars alternately with Miss Langford, Mr. Ameche and Carman Dragon, the orchestra leader, about his pursuit of happiness, if that phrase is permissible in that context. I have a sample right here.

Ameche: How can you come in here three weeks in a row without recognizing Frances Langford's face?

Morgan: I haven't reached that far yet.

For those of you who collect the finer nuances of radio, this joke sounded much different from the same joke as expressed by Bob Hope. When Morgan says it, it's riper, fuller—well, fruitier, I guess, is still the word.

No Coaching, Please!

NOW and then a quiz master trying desperately to provoke a contestant into emitting exactly the right word will get instead exactly the wrong one. On "Guess Who," a quiz sponsored by the National Dairy Products Co., the master of ceremonies, Happy Felton, likes to ask questions which call attention to his sponsor's line of work.

"What cow," he asked the other night, "started the Chicago fire?"

"Elsie?" said the contestant inquiringly, the way those people do. Elsie is not only the wrong answer but is a name never mentioned even in whispers on that program. Elsie is the pet cow and chief advertising device of one of National Dairy Products' foremost competitors—the Borden Co.

Bob Hawk, another quiz emcee, once asked a girl to name something beginning with the letter M which you need to make mayonaise.

"Mother," said the girl.

People Say Them

I'M NOT making these answers up. People said them with every evidence of sincerity.

The quiz profession in radio is a nice way to earn a living but it is fraught with all sorts of perils. One of the worst of them was experienced just the other day by Walter O'Keefe, the emcee on "Double of Nothing."

O'Keefe was chatting with a former war nurse about her experiences in the late conflict. Carried away by the memory of those virile days, the girl began speaking a pure Anglo-Saxon popular with soldiers and with Hemingway but never, never, employed on the air.

O'Keefe shouted: "I hope you win the grand slam prize," and hustled her away.

All Actors Are Versed in Trickery

By Aline Mosby

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 15 (U.P.).—The movie stars who claim they "live" their roles are a bunch of schmoes, snorts Barry Sullivan. The truth is that all actors use tricks, he confided, that anybody can learn and copy. Some grocery clerk from Slippery Rock, Vt., could bone up on Mr. Sullivan's handy tricks of the trade and make a fair stab at playing actor, he said.

"They all use tricks. Every actor does. Why try to pretend otherwise," Sullivan bravely shrugged.

Of course, he hastily added, each actor dreams up gimmicks of his own or he'd end up like every other actor.

Very Handy

THE LOVE scene tricks, handsome Barry whispered, are the most practical. Even if you don't want to turn thespian, these come in handy in wooing skirts:

Look at the lady's lips while she's chatting. This implies you wish to heck she'd shut up so you can kiss her. It also sparks the audience's blood pressure. They know what's coming.

Then lean just your head forward to kiss her. Much more suggestive than clutching her in your arms. If you want support, use just one arm around her waist.

"Woe," remarked Mr. Sullivan.

"A kiss," he continued after a discreet pause," "is the ultimate of sex on the screen. That's all the lovemaking you can do, so it has to be good."

For the boy-am-I-mad scene:

"I always grind my back teeth together," said Barry. "That makes the muscle in the side of my face twitch. Very effective."

"If you're supposed to look menacing," continued the prof, "use a loose, lumbering walk. Panthers, leopards and Joe Louis walk that way. It lulls the audience into a feeling of false security."

To portray fear in "The Gangster," the King Bros. picture that put Barry on the sighin' bobby-soxers' list, he clutched his tummy, as if from green apples.

"Another good trick is to look at every pretty girl speculatively," grinned Barry. "Heck, the audience will. They'd think something was wrong with the actor if he didn't."

What About the Girls?

AND the female dept.?

Well, the best trick an actress can use, he decided, is to look available. Now take Lana Turner, Dorothy Lamour, Betty Grable, etc. They all do.

"They give the impression they're ladies yet they're, uh, available," Sullivan concluded with an unbusinesslike blush. "That's the secret of a movie queen's success."

Russian Is 'Hero'

As Usual We Are Morons In Red Play

By Marguerite Higgins

BERLIN, Nov. 15 (NYHT).—The Soviet army newspaper here has printed the first scene of a new Russian play about American-Soviet relations which had its Berlin premier this week. The scene is set in Germany, the villain (or political moron) is once again an American journalist, and the hero is a Soviet commander of a small German town.

The play, "Colonel Kusmin," opens at the headquarters of an American, Colonel Hill, just across from the Soviet occupation zone. Among his guests are an American, Senator Wood, and three American journalists. They are expecting the visit of Colonel Kusmin, Russian commander of the town near the American zonal boundary on the Elbe River.

As they chat, Journalist Campbell regales them with anecdotes like this: "Toward the end of the war I had to interview a prominent Englishman. When I asked how he would prefer the war to end he answered, without taking his famous cigar out of his mouth, 'Mr. Campbell, I should like to see Germany in her grave and Russia on the operating table.'"

Colonel Hill, who has fought side by side with the Russians, says furiously, "It is not right to say things like that about the brave Russian soldiers!"

Senator Deposes

ACCORDING to the stage directions, Senator Wood thereupon looks suspiciously at the American colonel and says, "I consider that one of the most serious results of the war is that the military successes of the Russians have caused some Americans to show an excessive regard for the Russians."

Journalist Lloyd says he does not think the Russian colonel will come at all because "Russians, like all Asiatics, are secretive and not very communicative."

The Russian colonel, nevertheless, arrives, and Colonel Hill gets out the vodka. They drink. Soon Journalist Campbell says to the Russian colonel, "Colonel, you are always talking about your democracy. Now if you, Colonel Kusmin, could not agree with Stalin, could you publish that in the Soviet press?"

Colonel Kusmin: "No, I don't think so."

Journalist Lloyd: "You see."

Journalist Campbell: "Why not?"

Colonel Kusmin: "For the reason that no paper would publish anything like that because the people that very day would tar and feather the editors of such a paper."

How About Religion

AT THIS POINT Lloyd asks, "What about religion in Russia? You deny the existence of God, don't you?"

The Russian colonel: "There are people whose God looks like this" (taking dollar bill out of his pocket).

At the end of the scene, the third American journalist, Acheman, stands behind as the others exit, shakes the hand of the Russian colonel and congratulates him on his wit:

"I should like to shake hands, Colonel Kusmin, you were right in all you said."

Sleuths Beating Bushes for New Picture Talent

By Thornton Delehanty

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 15 (NYHT).—Despite retrenchments and a general tightening of the lines, the studios have been far from lax in the search for new faces. English pictures have gradually impressed the fact on Hollywood producers that star names are not indispensably linked with box office returns, and talent scouts, as a result, are busier now than they have been in months.

A check reveals that at least 20 recently acquired players have been selected by the studios for either leads or prominent featured roles in top productions. Some of these have had stage or radio experience; others have worked in cafes, behind soda fountains or in modest posts in the buisness world.

Rory Calhoun, a forest fire fighter in his vacation time, was spotted in a riding stable by a prominent actor whose sister-in-law was an agent. Calhoun was taken to David Selznick, who put him under contract and has now lent him to Pine and Thomas for the lead in "Adventure Island."

Washed Dishes at Mocambo

ANOTHER newcomer is DeForest Kelly, under contract to Paramount. Before the war Kelly was attending dramatic school and appearing in Little Theater plays. At night, he washed dishes at Mocambo. Studio executives saw a training film in which Kelly appeared in his Army days, and the contract was the result. He was given a role in "Fear in the Night."

Warner Brothers have what they consider a good bet in Jim Davis, who has the leading role opposite Bette Davis in "Winter Meeting." There is a story that Jim was discovered by a talent scout while working out in a Los Angeles gymnasium. This made a good publicity tale, but Davis says it isn't true. Actually he had come to Hollywood in 1942 as a salesman for an oil company and decided that as long as he was in the selling business he would apply his talent to crashing the movie industry. He went to an agent, sold himself as a potential actor, then quit his oil job and went to dramatic school.

Metro-Goldwyn gave him a contract and tested him with Esther Williams in a scene from Clarke Gable's picture, "Test Pilot." Davis is a big, rugged fellow of the Gable type, and the studio had plans for him along those lines. The war, however, interfered with those plans. When Davis got out of the service he asked for his release from Metro and went to Republic for a role in "The Fabulous Texan." Warners then spotted him and decided he was the man they wanted for "Winter Meeting."

Hitch-Hiked Plane Ride

MARY STUART is another new face on the Warner lot. A Tulsa girl, she hitch-hiked a plane ride to New York and after trying various jobs she took up photography and went around to the less fashionable night spots flashing bulbs at the patrons. She figured that was the best way to get experience. She finally landed a job in the supper room of a big hotel, where she caught the notice of Joe Pasternak, who signed her for Metro-Goldwyn and gave her the part of the bathing suit model in "The Hucksters." She spent a year at that studio and was signed by Warners last July.

Robert Preston's wife, Catherine Craig, appeared with her husband on the stage before they were married. When Preston enlisted in the Army she took on her own acting career. After a few small parts she got the starring role in "Seven Were Saved."

Independent producers have developed more new actors than the big studios because they cannot afford to compete in the star bracket and are forced to look for unknowns. Pictures like "A Walk in the Sun," and "G. I. Joe" launched a group of players who have since made names for themselves. Orson Welles, when he produced "Macbeth" at Republic recruited most of his cast from the [illegible]

Canadian Miss Plays Countess in 'Norway'

DOREEN WILSON, who sings the featured role of the Countess Louisa Giovanni in "Song of Norway," the Edvard Grieg operetta now at the National Theater, began her theatrical career across the border to the north.

MISS WILSON

Born in Victoria, B. C., she had acquired a Canadian reputation—first as a ballerina and then as a singer before she was 18. Her mother, a well-known dancer and choreographer, gave her basic foundation in ballet, but taking voice lessons wasn't Doreen's idea.

In Canada, Miss Wilson sang frequently over the Canadian Broadcasting Co. on various symphonic prgorams, and she both sang and danced with the Vancouver Light Opera Company in such light operas as "The Chocolate Soldier," "The Country Girl" and "The Arcadians."

About five years ago, Miss Wilson met Edwin Lester, general director of the Los Angeles Civic Light Opera Association. He later engaged her for "Song of Norway" company, which had its world premiere in Los Angeles, June 12, 1944.

Policy Worth 100 'Gs' Protects Skater's Legs

DONNA ATWOOD, appearing with the Ice Capades of 1948 which will open at Uline Arena December 1 to run through December 14, says her shapely legs are her fortune.

The 22-year-old skating lead of the show exhibits a policy guaranteeing her $100,000 in protection. She worked the policy out with Lloyds of London, the English indemnity firm, after previously being rejected as a bad risk by American companies.

"This is one policy I sincerely hope I never collect on," Donna says.

'Firefly' Next at National

A REVIVAL of Rudolf Friml's "The Firefly" will be the next attraction at the National Theater. Otto Harbach's 35-year-old operetta will play Washington for one week, beginning November 24.

There will be a special Thanksgiving Day matinee at 3 p. m. on Thursday and the usual Saturday afternoon performance.

Mrs. Wiggs' on Next Saturday

THE STAGE of the Lisner Auditorium will be transformed into Cabbage Patch next Saturday, when the Children's Museum of Washington brings the Clare Tree Major Children's Theater of New York in a play version of Alice Hegan Rice's "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch."

Seats for both 10:30 a. m. and 2 p. m. performances are available through the Children's Museum, Western ave., at Military rd. nw., Washington 15.

These Take Time

THE cheering possibilities are the country's university drama schools, well-filled with GI vets enabled to see their works performed on well-equipped stages. But these truits will take time to mature.

And Equity's Library movement is another hopeful sign.

Which brings us back to Washington, where a former bank is being turned into sister-theater to the Little and where one former theater is in use as an office. Crazy? Well, Washington's like that.

How, then, about the Belasco? The National's full schedules, ballet sell-outs, the ability to find only a makeshift house for Virginia's Barter Theater visits are some signs. Another is the fact that Gertrude Lawrence's "Tonight at 8:30" (another revival!) had to content itself last week with medium audiences in Baltimore though had it been able to get two weeks at the National, those empty seats in Ford's balconies and orchestra wouldn't have happened here.

A demand for the Belasco among the producers, despite their cold feet about new productions? You bet there is. Some are set to dicker if they can be assured that once having made the investment necessary to turn the Belasco back into a theater (at least $200,000), they won't be turned out before they've had a reasonable chance to pay off.

The business acumen of the producers may be quaking—and you can't blame it—but there's gold in this World Capital! Come and get it, boys.

Vocalists Take 'Too Many Liberties'

Singer Must Be Musician, Too

By Paul Hume

OPEN letter to "A Disgusted Reader" who sent us this card: "Why force Mr. Paul Hume to go to Constitution Hall to hear concerts when he is so terribly bored that he sees no good in any person who has appeared there this season? He blasted Stevens, now Melton, yet other critics, far superior in ability to criticize, say they were good. Maybe what he needs is a good dose of salts and then maybe he could see some good in the singers, or perhaps he could do better than they and should be on the concert stage. All of his reviews recently have thoroughly disgusted readers—can the applause of the people be wrong and his right, or is it the other way around?"

MISS RETHBERG

* * * *

Fortunately, my dear reader, the art of singing depends neither upon Rise Stevens nor James Melton. We conceive of the art of song as one of the highest achievements in the musical world, but it is not often served in that manner these days. Singers, often pushed by parents, managers, teachers and other zealous or profit-seeking agents, rarely stop to consider some of the true requisites of their profession.

So serious has the illness of bad singing become lately that just one week ago, a local soprano, rehearsing for a Constitution Hall appearance with orchestra, scolded the conductor when he corrected her, with this gem of true learning: "I am not a musician, I am a singer." And she sounded proud of the distinction, though it is a difference of which any singer should be ashamed.

Never a Paragon

THERE is, as far as we know, no perfect singer before the public today, nor do we know that there have been any such paragons. But there are certain standards which may be taken as a minimum for singers. These were strongly suggested in a recent article by Jennie Tourel, who approaches as closely to vocal perfection as any artist we know.

Miss Tourel says, "When a person with talent for piano is serious about making a professional career, it's taken for granted all around that at least six hours of every day must be devoted to the perfection of his art. A singer must realize that she must do no less and perhaps much more. The control a vocalist must develop to perfect a truly masterful technique, to approach the virtuosity of a Szigeti or a Serkin, takes more than talent, more than vocal equipment—it takes almost superhuman effort."

"In order for the voice to be developed into an instrument of such technical control that it can express at your bidding any passage of any length, breadth, height or color of feeling, not only once but at any time under almost any conditions, the greatest kind of detail, plus lengthy, hard, heart-breaking and back-breaking work is demanded." That from one who knows, and practices her preaching.

A Dual Duty

BY THOSE words Miss Tourel suggests the kind of singing which is necessary if a vocalist is going to fulfill his duties to both composer and audience. And that dual obligation is one too often neglected in both directions.

The merest mechanics of song taken for granted by the composer of songs presupposes a singer who can sing any note in his range either loudly or softly, rapidly or slowly, and with any combination of vowels and consonants. Anything less immediately places limitations upon the singer's effectiveness as an interpreter of song.

But a literal delivery of what a composer has set down on paper gives neither composer nor auditor artistic satisfaction. The singer must be sensitive to the mood of the text, and the style of the music to which it is set. This is the second step to be taken, and cannot be approached until one has acquired the physical ability to project the necessary tones and words.

There's More Than Riches

FINALLY, and of equal importance, is the whole matter of what the singer selects to present to his audience. Naturally there are songs which fit various voices particularly well, and no one would suggest that a singer ought to be able to do all kinds equally well. But the singer, in common with every other musical artist, does have a responsibility to give the listening world something different from time to time, rather than to resort to the same old war-horses year after year.

There is more to creative art than the making of every possible cent, or heaven help all who love the arts.

In his obligation to the audience, the singer has in many ways the same responsibilities as toward the composer. But there is a subtle difference in emphasis. The singer must put over a song. If he does not succeed in this, he has wasted the time required to sing it. But do not think that the phrase "put over" implies anything but an acute awareness of the real essence of each individual item on a program. Singing of one kind is necessary to put over Gabriel Faure's cycle, "La bonne chanson" and of a complete opposite character for proper delivery of one of the moving arias of Handel. The great realm of Russian song requires a peculiar sympathy, and that of classic or modern Italy still another, or rather, two others.

These are things which ought to be considered inviolable. Any orchestral musician who took the liberties taken at this fall's song recitals in Constitution Hall by some of America's most "popular" vocalists would be fired, with enthusiasm, by self-respecting conductors.

Greater Obligation

NO SIR, a singer may easily pull down $50,000 a year or more. He is not by that miraculous feat entitled to carte blanche in singing as he pleases. As a matter of fact, if such a singer had a moral sense of his artistic duty, he would realize how much greater his obligation to set himself high standards since his public takes what he presents as right.

"Disgusted Reader" ought to be astute enough to know that these days a good publicity agent can make a sow's ear look suspiciously like a silk purse through judicious application of radio contracts, phonograph records and sufficient throwing of kisses to audiences during songs.

In last Sunday's New York Times, Olin Downes emphasized the present state of singing in describing the current year as having "fewer exceptional singers than in any previous period of which we know in Metropolitan history."

But because we have fewer good singers than before is no reason to rescale our standards and start calling those whom we now hear "great, superb, perfect," unless they show some of the unmistakable signs of such talents.

We do not despair, but we do miss sopranos who sang as did Ponselle, Muzio, Bori; contraltos such as Schumann-Heink, Onegin; tenors of the McCormack, Gigli school, and so on. We are in grateful remembrance of today's Bjoerling, Anderson, Kipnis, Pinza, Tourel, and others, but they are fewer than before. And can "Disgusted" tell me one, just one dramatic soprano, to touch Rosa Raisa, Rosa Ponselle, Elisabeth Rethberg, Florence Easton, or of the older school, Destinn, Nordica and Fremstad. Our best in that field today simply cannot sing the notes which are written for them without tonal spreading, failing in intonation, and otherwise falling short.

It is a time to call unceasingly for better singing, not to temporize with mediocrity, especially from those who have rare talent and great opportunity.

Record Player

Ravel Works Well Done By Monteux

RAVEL: Daphnis and Chloe, Suite No. 1; also: Ravel; Valses Nobles et Sentimentales; also: Debussy-Ravel; Sarabande. San Francisco Symphony Orchestra, Pierre Monteux, conductor. Victor 1143. $4.85. Not long ago English Decca released a superb performance of some of this Daphnis and Chloe music, with the Paris Conservatory Orchestra under Charles Muench. Happily, this set presents excerpts omitted from the English-French recording, and does not duplicate all that the earlier set included. Therefore with the two we have a fine sampling of the hitherto unfamiliar first suite. The recording is, as in the case of the Muench, a wonderful example of the perfection of a great French conductor in music of his own land.

Monteux, first conductor of the Daphnis and Chloe music 30 years ago, leads his men through a rich sounding parade of notes, with the assistance of an unidentified chorus which handles the wordless offstage music we did not know Ravel had composed. The music is persuasive in the extreme, and belongs in your Raveliana.

But more than the Daphnis and Chloe, you should have the composer's own orchestration of his witty Noble and Sentimental Waltzes. Forecasting much that is to come later in La Valse, these are some of the most charming pages in the realm of French orchestral music, and their beauties are made manifest without ceasing under Monteux's magic hands.

Only in the matter of surface noise is this set less attractive than the splendid English Decca. And for an added bonus, you have Ravel's orchestral version of the Sarabande from Debussy's suite, Pour le piano.

LISZT: Concerto No. 1 in E Flat for piano and orchestra. Artur Rubinstein, with the Dallas Symphony Orchestra, Antal Dorati, conductor. Victor 1144. $2.85. It is something of a surprise to us that this concerto, for so many decades one of the great war-horses of bravura pianists, has not been more prominent in record catalogs. In any case, here is a recording to last for years, for Artur Rubinstein is in many ways the outstanding man now playing the piano to do right by this kind of music. By turns melodramatic and lyrical, it needs a big technique joined to a fine singing tone. Rubinstein has both, plus a poetic vein a yard wide, which never hurts Liszt.

The only other recording which might rival this, for very different reasons, is the interesting version by Emil Sauer, himself a pupil of Liszt, from which one gets a different and somewhat more leisurely account of the music. And Sauer was also a great pianist.

The Dallas Symphony is becoming one of my favorites for the caliber of their work, and the kind of engineering Victor gives them. But the surfaces are getting extremely noisy again. Recent batches have been almost impossible.

SINGLES: Home, Sweet Home; and: Flotow: The Last Rose of Summer. Dorothy Maynor, soprano, with George Schick, pianist. Victor 10-1340. $.75. The surface noise on this record is so bad that it is almost unplayable after four or five hearings. Maynor's voice is lovely and well-recorded, but the juiced up harmonizations in the accompaniments to what are extremely simple songs are inexcusable.

Flotow: Martha: M'appari; also: Bizet: Carmen: Flower Song. James Melton, tenor, with orchestra. Victor 10-1329. $.75. Fortunately, James Melton sounds better on records than he sometimes does in public. These arias are better sung by many tenors on records than in this disc.

Gould: Guaracha: also: Lecuona: Malaguena. Whittemore and Lowe, duo-pianists. Victor 11-9759. $1. Brilliant playing, and fine recording. The Guaracha is especially fun.

Taking Pictures

F. D. Once 'Rooked' Thompson Out of a Buck for News Pose

By Ollie Atkins

PRIZE winners of the White House News Photographers Association annual photographic competition last night received awards from President Truman at a banquet in the Statler Hotel. Grand prize winner was John S. Thompson, syndicate press cameraman here, whose dramatic picture of a distressed woman calling for help during the Texas City fire was entitled "Hell on Earth."

Other stories today will tell of the presentation and newspapers all over the country will publish the winning pictures. But I'd like to tell you about Johnny Thompson, my personal friend and one of the few old-time photographers still making pictures.

Twenty-two years ago when Johnny was a lanky 18 he got his first job as a photographer. His equipment was one of the then popular 4 by 5 Graflex cameras with the hood you peered down into for sighting and focusing. Flash bulbs were unknown and even flash powder was sparingly used because of the explosion danger and smoke it created.

JOHNNY and the advances in photographic technique and manufacturing grew up together. He covered the routine picture assignments of the razzle-dazzle middle twenties. But photographers in those days were not accepted by society and a fellow had to have plenty of brass and wit or his picture didn't amount to much. This was no problem for Johnny; his is a quick mind and he has a remarkable ability to put faces and prominent names together.

When the White House finally allowed photographers to come onto the grounds regularly, Johnny got the assignment for his organization. For 17 years he daily recorded Executive Mansion doings and made all the press trips with the Presidents. He is known to people all over the country.

Other photographers admire his respectful but casual manner of asking Presidents to pose certain ways. Probably the best known story of him is the time President Roosevelt asked the tardy Thompson to hand over a "buck" for a Red Cross fund drive when the President had to pose again in pictures to accommodate Johnny.

Giant Lens on Display

A lens what is a lens is the Carl Zeiss Triplet F/7 telephoto on display currently at the Brenner Photo Co. Standing about 2½ feet high and 8½ inches across the barrel, it was used on a German observation camera for scientific purposes. One of the rarest lenses in the optical industry, it cost about $10,000 to produce.

Facts Given On Electronic Flash Light

MORE and more emphasis is being placed on the importance of high-speed electronic flash lighting.

There are about 18 portable, three semiportable and a half dozen or so expensive studio models of various kinds of electronic high-speed photo flash lights on the market today. The prices run from $120 to $500, with an average of $175.

Bill Buford at Ford Photo Supply has had several of the outfits tested at the Johns Hopkins Research Laboratory and he says his favorites among the popular priced models are the Electroflash made by Sylvania Electric and the unit selling for $120 by Burke and James. The high voltage involved in working with this gear makes it wise to get good equipment and to use it with great care.

Locally several of the units are being used in everyday photographic work. Jackie Martin uses one instead of flash bulbs for her news and feature photography. The syndicates use them for sports and special effects work. Baby photography studies find them wonderful for capturing toddlers' expressions without use of glaring hot flood lights.

Flash duration of these speed lights varies, but a happy medium brings them to about 1/10,000th second, which will freeze any action in everyday life. New bulbs for the equipment run around $22, but they last a long time with proper care.

Katharine Hansel Sings Thursday at Arts Club

Harry Wayne, left, with Lemonade Opera Company, and Patricia Griffin, who will perform with Washington Civic Orchestra. Both artists will appear Tuesday

CONSTITUTION HALL will be strangely silent for a Sunday afternoon today, due to the illness of Jussi Bjoerling, Swedish tenor. Mrs. Dorothy Hodgkins Dorsey received word that the same trouble which prevented Bjoerling's appearance at the opening of the Met earlier this week would prevent his filling his Washington date. But he will be here on Thursday evening, March 4, and tickets for today will be honored on that date.

American composers do well in town this week, with Samuel Barber's fine violin concerto this afternoon at the Phillips Gallery and William Bergsma and Virgil Thomson on tonight's National Gallery concert. The evening concert is another of the free programs presented to Washingtonians this year through the generosity of the local chapter of the American Federation of Musicians. And, although we are not sure, we would guess that Marvin Paymer, whose Sonatina is listed for the Mauro-Cottone program tomorrow night at the Arts Club, is also native born.

Tuesday evening, Ronald Arnatt, local citizen by adoption, and winner of Washington's Carnegie Hall contest, will hear his orchestral rhapsody "On the Malvern Hills" played by the Washington Civic Orchestra. That orchestra's program, which also presents Patricia Griffin, local pianist, is only one of four scheduled for 8:30 that night. Greatest music of the evening is Mozart's Don Giovanni, introducing Lemonade Opera to Washington.

BY FAR the outstanding program of the week and one which can have few, if any, rivals in the entire season, is that of Katharine Hansel, soprano, singing Thursday at the Arts Club, with Theodore Schafer as her accompanist. Seldom seen is so brilliant an array of perfectly chosen songs.

The Baltimore & Ohio Railroad is restoring a prewar all-expense tour to New York, designed to take you up and back, landing you at the Met for the Saturday matinee. All expenses, including meals, tickets for train and opera, $21.60. One such tour is being sponsored November 22 by the Business and Professional Women's Club of the District of Columbia. Mail or telephone reservations to Mrs. Florence Orr, HO. 3297, or Miss Irene Neikirk, EX. 0770.

Student membership of the Friday Morning Music Club opens its third season Monday evening, November 17 at the Women's City Club, 8:15. Public invited.

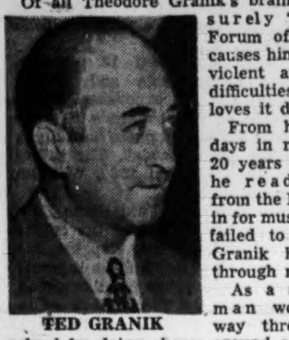
The Troubles Begat Love

At a Ripe 19, Forum Rolls On

By Sonia Stein

THERE'S an old adage that a parent loves best the child which causes him the most grief.

Of all Theodore Granik's brain children, surely "American Forum of the Air" causes him the most violent and public difficulties, yet he loves it dearly.



TED GRANIK

From his early days in radio some 20 years ago, when he read chapters from the Bible to fill in for musicians who failed to show up, Granik has been through much.

As a shy young man working his way through law school by doing chores around a radio station, Granik once found himself sloshing ice water on a chief magistrate who had fainted dead away with mike fright on his "Law for the Layman" program.

He's Had Some Others

GRANIK has gone on the air with one of the participants still circling the airfield trying to land. He has suffered through a broadcast with a nervous woman who, having spilled water down her decolletage as she tried to take a drink, dripped throughout the show. He has met up with a daylight saving time emergency when Senator Claude Pepper arrived in the middle of a broadcast, snatched his prepared speech from the hands of a colleague who had gamely read most of it for him, and started to read it all over again.

Just three weeks ago when "American Forum" went commercial for the first time in its 19-year history, only one of the participants was able to attend the dinner preceding the broadcast, to which sponsor and network brass had been invited.

Granik might as well not have been there, since he was busy worrying whether Participant Clare Boothe Luce would be able to leave her ailing husband's bedside and whether another participant, who had promised to arrive on the stroke of airtime, would make it.

Small wonder that 40-year-old Granik takes two swigs of bicarbonate of soda before each broadcast and two afterwards. Small wonder that Granik's briefcase holds, along with program notes, a change of shirt, undershirt and tie. For all his experience on radio's oldest forum, Granik still perspires freely during the broadcast.

Can't Bear to Leave

IN SPITE of all the emergency problems, and the normal wear and tear of lining up speakers, Granik can't tear himself away. Occasionally, his law practice takes him out of town on broadcast night and a guest moderator takes over. But Granik has to get to a radio wherever he is.

Returning early from a recent business trip to Hollywood (where he joined some motion picture people in plans for a five-station television network to be announced soon), Granik tried desperately to go to the theater like a civilized person. But he wound up in dark glasses in the last row of the forum audience.

Granik almost lost the show in 1937 when he left New York (where he had broadcast over WOR) to become counselor for the Housing Authority in Washington. Fortunately, WOL became affiliated with Mutual Broadcasting at that time and the show, by changing its name from "WOR Forum" to "American Forum", and originating in Washington, was able to continue undisturbed.

Strictly Homemade

THE GRANIKS, who were childhood sweethearts, still prepare most of the show themselves over the weekend. Ten-year-old Bill, who puts out a Granik Gossip Sheet for his friends, is a new member of staff.

A producer and a secretary who handle details of the show for Granik have their headquarters in Granik's law offices in the Heurich Building, a few flights down from WOL and the Mutual offices.

"American Forum of the Air" broadcasts are open to the public each Tuesday night at 10 in the new ballroom at the Shoreham Hotel, and are broadcast over WOL-Mutual. Questions from the audience are permitted after the show is off the air.

Almost every room in the suite shows some evidence of the show and most of the mementoes give a clue as to why Granik goes on with the program no matter how much work and worry are involved.

There are pictures of Granik with Mrs. Roosevelt, Senators and labor leaders who have been on the forum. There is a pen used by President Roosevelt to sign the Smaller War Plants Act which Granik helped write when he was a $1 a year special assistant to Donald Nelson.

There are copies of the Congressional Record into which the entire contents of the American Forum are read almost automatically each week by some interested Congressman.

Likes 'Em Important

GRANIK admits that one of the reasons he loves the program is because it has permitted him to become friends with important people whom he admires, and to "be a part of the news." Basically, however, he thinks he started the show because it's where he could choose the topic to be discussed and make sure there was plenty of fight from both sides.

Whatever the reason, American Forum has received a number of awards for its excellence and President Truman, then Vice President, sent glowing congratulations to the program on its seventeenth birthday.

This week's broadcast, the first in Washington after several months in New York, was the third sponsored by Pilotuner, the gadget that turns any radio into a combination AM and FM set. Pilotuner sponsorship in 21 key cities covers expenses incurred by Mutual, which has been carrying the show for all these years on a sustaining basis. Money brought in by possible cooperative sponsors in other cities will be used to help combat juvenile delinquency.

Granik will not accept a talent fee for himself, and wants the money put in a trusteeship to help build young people's canteens where they are needed.

To help towns raise money to match the money the American Forum would give, Granik would be willing to originate the forum from that area as a special stimulus to the fund.

Television Takes 2 Big Steps: One Forward, One Backward

TELEVISION took two giant steps this week—one of them forward and one backward.

The one in the right direction was made by WMAL-TV, which telecast for the first time congressional committee hearings. Tuesday's hearings before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee were fed to WTTG and WNBW, and to WNBW on Wednesday in that nice fraternal manner that television and FM stations seem to have while they are getting the industry on its feet.

RASH

Being almost entirely without action, except for wagging jaws and glasses slipping down noses, the hearings didn't seem like television's best bet, and, of course they aren't. But with their schedules almost wide open, television stations are currently able to present history in great hunks if we have the patience to watch it, while radio with its numerous prior committments can spare only brief intervals for special events.

The necessary commentaries were made by WMAL's distinguished-looking special events director, Bryson Rash (also radio columnist for the Evening Star), who is radio's gift to television, in the opinion of Burke Crotty, WMAL-TV's director.

ON THE debit side was a premiere presentation last Sunday of a new once-a-month series of dramas being offered by NBC television (WNBW locally) and the Theater Guild. Even Niles Trammell, NBC president, admitted dimly after it was over that perfection was not yet evident.

Choosing the guild's first successful production, "John Ferguson," for its first television show, was the thudding mistake of the year. St. John Ervine's elderly play deals with an Irish family about to be sent to the poorhouse because the villain threatens to foreclose the mortgage.

With Thomas Mitchell wheezing into the mike and acting for the gallery in a medium that is strictly front row center, the play emerged quite ludicrous in spite of the sometimes excellent acting, and the technical proficiency of the whole production.

Preceding the hour-long show, was one of those horribly embarrassing things which television stumbles into with unerring aim. Ben Grauer, a polished radio announcer, interviewing a number of Theater Guild and NBC television bigwigs, managed to sound 100 per cent charming to one woman while he was propelling her off the stage, all unmindful that the camera was catching the contradictions between his words and acts. WOL's Congress Series Starts Tomorrow Night

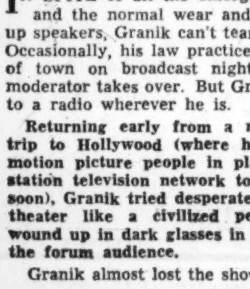
FOLLOWING in the tracks of the historic special session of Congress which begins tomorrow, WOL's news chief, Albert Warner, begins a new series of "Congress Today" broadcasts from the House Radio Gallery.



WARNER

A Monday-through-Friday series, beginning tomorrow night at 6, the Warner commentaries will report legislative action, important committee hearings and human interest stories about national leaders.

Wire recorded material from the committee hearings will be used occasionally on the 10-minute show.

A Washington correspondent since 1930, Warner has been president of the White House newsmen's association, and the radio correspondents' association. During the war, he was Chief of Public Relations for the War Intelligence Division, with the rank of colonel.

DISAPPOINTED artists who couldn't get fitted into the busy audition schedule of "The Big Break" program, which was talent hunting in Washington this week, might be interested in some other doors to fame and fortune which are slightly ajar.

Both "Arthur Godfrey's Talent Scouts," which is broadcast Monday nights at 8:30 over WTOP-CBS, and Paul Whiteman's "On Stage America," which is a Monday night feature over WMAL-ABC at 10:30, take outstandingly good amateur talent as well as professional talent in need of a showcase.

To get a chance on the Whiteman show, bring a transcription of your act to Gordon Hubbel, director of program operations at WMAL, or if you are outside the city send it direct to Whiteman at American Broadcasting Co., 30 Rockefeller Plaza, New York City.

Godfrey's show is auditioned "live" in New York. Bessie Mack, who handles the auditions, cautions people not to come to New York especially for that purpose, but if you are in New York and care to call her at WIckersham 2-2428, she will try to give you an appointment for one of the Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday or Friday afternoon audition periods, or the Friday night audition.

Eddie Dowling's "The Big Break" program uses talent from different cities each week (Washington, December 14) but will repeat the circuit and undoubtedly get back to us eventually. Only professionals are eligible.

For visual talent—magicians, dancers, etc.—there's a local opportunity opening immediately. Sidney Wolfe, I. T. Cohen Advertising Agency (EX-2235) will audition talent Monday and Tuesday of this week for the tryout broadcast of an amateur talent show scheduled for telecasting this Thursday at 7:30 p. m. over WTTG, and for possible later shows.

"YOU and the Russians" will be the subject of five broadcasts to be presented this week beginning tomorrow night at 11:15 over WTOP—CBS.

Lyman Bryson, CBS counselor on public affairs, will interview experts on Russian culture, history, strategy and aspirations, on these nightly broadcasts.

First authority to be interviewed will be Ernest J. Simmons, professor of Russian language and literature at Columbia. Cyril Black, assistant professor of history at Princeton; Percy Corbett, professor of political science at Yale; Phillip Mosely, professor of international relations at Columbia, and Walter Mills, editorial writer for the New York Herald Tribune and author of several books on war and peace, will be heard later in the week.

NOT SURE whether even time-honored classics are fit consumption for children since there's been so much fuss about children's programming, radio is turning to the Good Book.

Every Monday, Wednesday and Friday at 5 p. m., WMAL offers Bible stories dramatized for youngsters. Written by Loye Minor, the series features Lee Dayton, Jackson Weaver and Ross Martin among the actors.

Folk Music on WWDC Returns to the Air

American folk music, featuring the songs of the South, West, mountain regions and other sections of the United States, are being aired again on the revived "Rhythm Roundup" on WWDC, every weekday evening at 7:15.

Excellent One-Man Shows

Gates, Baker Set High Mark

"End of Summer," by Robert Gates, now on display at the United Nations Club

By Jane Watson Crane

IF SUBSEQUENT one-man shows live up to the standard set by Robert Gates and Sarah Baker, we will have a record season.

The Gates group, shown at the United Nations Club through arrangement with the Whyte Gallery, is all new work completed during the past year. For those who know Gates only through his work of the '30s it will be a revelation. The present collection by his own admission is the result of considerable trial and error. Here he seems to have struck a pace which suits him and he sustains it throughout the show. It is not often that one finds a group, even by the same artist, that forms as harmonious an orchestrated whole as this.

Landscape is his forte. It seemed to us the best things here are those, like "From Ridge to Ridge," which might be seen from a distance or from the air. The old familiar subject matter of the local landscape is present—"K Street Relic," "Potomac Gorge," "Difficult Run." The vision is quite personal. As in his earlier paintings, color is for the most part dark to the point of gloominess, but in several of these, as in "Cows in Moonlight," he uses the device of light breaking through. Also a number of works are in red and orange tones. Perhaps the closest to abstract patterns is "Fireflies." Where the human figure is introduced at all, it is incidental and sometimes clumsy. "Sunday Reader," however, which features a girl reading a colored comic section, is a real tour de force.

The paintings, all carried out in tempera or water color, are imaginative, but they are also disciplined. Behind the seemingly casual compositions are carefully worked-out designs. These are sophisticated paintings, without concession to any tastes but the artist's own. Content may or may not appeal to the spectator, but none can deny that this is a highly distinguished performance.

SARAH BAKER, who is exhibiting at the new gallery of Bush and Weeks, 2010 S st. nw., used to have shows at least once a year and had built up considerable following. Her circus and flower paintings, her whimsical portraits of children, were always in demand.

Last year, while she went on painting, she skipped exhibiting. The result is that the current show appears as something quite fresh, and indeed most of the work is new. The light touch is still here, but she is aiming for greater simplicity and abstraction. Many are still-lifes. Included are a landscape, a small self-portrait, and "Humoresque," a study of clowns' heads. Subtle color combinations prevail in the work of this remarkably lucid painter.

Like Gates, Sarah Baker devotes a good part of her time to teaching. This summer she paid tribute to the French painter, Georges Braque, in an article published in Right Angle, issued monthly by American University. Defining his work, she said, "Through the simplest means and the minimum of objects he expresses the universal spirit of art." In these remarks on another painter, she has given a key to her own aspirations and attainments.

ALTHOUGH not intended primarily as an art gallery, the recently opened Chequire house in Alexandria has some good wall space for exhibitions.

The first show to be held there is an informal display of water colors by Phoebe Hyatt, a pupil of Eliot O'Hara. Landscapes predominate in a pleasant group which bears many of the characteristics of the teacher. The opening show had a good reception and it is hoped will be the forerunner of many others.

Art Notes

National To Present Navy Show

THE National Gallery, which has not run a special exhibition in some time, next Sunday will open a show of portraits and drawings by official Navy combat artists, executed in the principle theaters of operation during and since the war.

November lectures at the gallery include a discussion of Poussin's painting by Dr. Erwin Panofsky of the Institute for Advanced Study at Princeton University, to be held next Sunday at 5 p. m. On Saturday, at the same hour, Dr. Wolfgang Born of Louisiana State University will discuss "Still Life Painting in America."

This Tuesday at 9 p. m. Maxim Elias, Washington sculptor, will give the lecture in the art appreciation series at Community Education, Inc., 914 20th st. nw. His subject will be "Art in Three Dimensions."

The Baltimore Museum of Art, through its new executive assistant, James W. Foster, jr., has launched a campaign for closer collaboration between the art institutions of that city and the Capital. First step is to bring about systematic exchange of publications and general information.

New exhibit at the Baltimore Museum is a group of paintings by the late Alfred Maurer, son of a successful Currier & Ives illustrator, and himself one of the first Americans to come under the influence of the French abstractionists. The show will be on view in the Theater Gallery through November 30.

THOMAS M. HEATON, formerly of Pittsburgh, is showing portraits and landscapes in his studio at 1516 H st. nw. daily from 2 to 5:30 p. m. and on Sundays from 2 to 6.

Opening this afternoon at the Artists Cooperative, 1820 M st. nw., is an exhibition of paintings by Ernest L. Daly, which will continue through December 1. Daly is a graduate of the Catholic University School of Architecture. He studied painting with Nicolai Cilcovsky and at the Corcoran Art School.

Paintings by the late Margaret Loughborough will be shown this afternoon at the home of her sister, Miss Caroline Loughborough, 2700 G st. nw., Apartment 303-A, and through next Thursday.

French Painters See Their Own Works in N. Y.

New York, Nov. 15.—Paintings by four Frenchmen, Guy Arnoux, Lucmarie Bayle, Roger Chancel and Herve Baille, are being shown in the Associated American Artists' headquarters, and three of the four artists, who came here aboard a French man-o'-war, were present for the opening.

Their government believes, they explained, that, war or no war, it is important to keep on painting, and as part of this official sponsorship the ministry of marine has a list of about 40 artists from whom it selects men to picture its action scenes or decorate its warships.

Their stay will be long enough to allow Bayle to arrange in Washington for the loan of American Navy paintings for a Paris show next winter.

Guion's Tryin' To Double Up On Everything

By Bill Gottlieb

NEW YORK, Nov. 15.—Having gotten nowhere with his favorite psychiatrist, orchestra leader King Guion consulted a witch named Matilda in hopes of discovering a new gimmick that would set his music apart.

"Double, double, toil and trouble; fire burn and cauldron bubble!" began Matilda, shamelessly stealing her lines from one W. Shakespeare.

"Double, double," she repeated, getting into a groovey mood.

"That's it!" screamed Guion, scaring the witch. "I'll make it double. I'll have two of everything. A double orchestra."

As it happened, the best Guion could con his backers into was a double rhythm orchestra instead of a completely double orchestra. "It isn't so much the expense," they alibied, "as the effect on the customers. If only part of the orchestra is double, they'll accept it. But if it's all double, they'll think it's the whisky and check out."

. . . double double

In the end, Guion settled for the doubling of only three rhythm instruments: drums, bass and guitar. (He agreed to only one piano.) However, he named his revolutionary combo, "King Guion and His Double Rhythm Band," and opened with double fanfare out on the West Coast, presumably Walla Walla.

King's promotion, ever since, has been built on this double business . . . double rhythm, double time, double your money's worth and, in nimble moments, double Guion (see cut). When he eventually tried to get his men double pay so that they could eat enough to get double chins, his backers backed out. So King Guion decided to come East.

About a month ago, Guion reorganized his double rhythm orchestra and began a long breaking-in period at the Rustic Cabin, over in New Jersey. In addition to having a flair for promotion, King has a feel for solid music.

LOCAL LORE, D. C. Dept.: Ray Anthony, opening next week at Kavakos, not only looks and makes like Cary Grant but also features a flying leap and walking on his hands . . . Sarah Vaughan, whom musicians consider today's most exciting singer, opens uptown tonight at the Club Bali.

THE DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

Local Musician Meets British Royal Family

An American musician has given his tacit approval to the marriage of Princess Elizabeth to Philip Mountbatten.

Louise H. Puleo of 1312 Tuckerman st. nw. tells me that her brother Johnny is currently appearing in London with the Harmonica Rascals.

Last week the Rascals were summoned to a command performance at the Palladium, and the entire royal family attended. Johnny was introduced to Elizabeth and her Philip, and reports back that Philip seems to be an okay guy.

So, unless a difference of opinion develops between Johnny and Mr. Petrillo, it is presumed that the marriage will take place as originally scheduled.

VARIATION

I still don't know the origin of the quotation, "Today is the tomorrow that you worried about yesterday, and it didn't happen—did it?"

But I have discovered that F. W. S. Evans, assistant treasurer of the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co., has for many years posted this one in his office:

"Today is the golden tomorrow that you dreamed of yesterday. Today, then, is your day of opportunity."

SCOOPED!

Russell Roller of 7135 Chestnut st. nw. wonders if we've missed the biggest housing news since the turn of the century.

One of our afternoon contemporaries carried the item in the "pets" category of its classified columns recently. It said:

MALTESE CROSS KITCHENS—Beautiful, $2 each; others to give away.

I'll take one of those kitchens. Now, how much for a couple of bedrooms?

HOYA!
PRETTY GOOD, HOY-U?

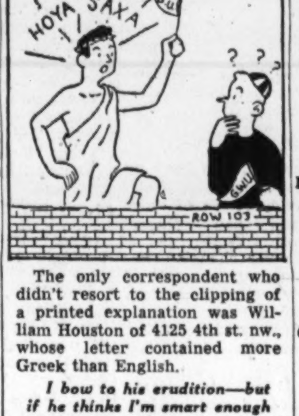
Our recent inquiry into the derivation of the term Hoya, as applied to Georgetown University, has brought in about four pounds of coated paper.

The paper is in the form of clippings from Georgetown football programs, pamphlets, and handbooks.

Among my correspondents are James S. Ruby, executive secretary of the Georgetown Alumni Association; Murray L. Mayeux of Catholic University, M. E. Garrett, Philip A. Gruccio of Georgetown University, and John Jay Daly of Georgetown's "Hoya."

They all submit the official explanation that hoya is from the Greek word hoia, meaning "such a," or "what a," and saxa is a Latin word meaning "rocks."

Changing an "i" to a "y" we have hoya saxa, indicating that some Georgetown gridmen of the past stood "like rocks" in the path of an enemy eleven. For the sake of brevity, hoya saxa became "Hoya."



The only correspondent who didn't resort to the clipping of a printed explanation was William Houston of 4125 4th st. nw., whose letter contained more Greek than English.

I bow to his erudition—but if he thinks I'm smart enough to give you a digest of a lesson in Greek, he's mistaken.

OUR "BOYS"

I've just come across a copy of the "Post Bowler" for January 25, 1909.

It appears to have been a bowling club paper put out by and for Washington Post bowlers. From its columns I've clipped the following list:

INDIVIDUAL AVERAGES.

	Games.	Pins.	Ave.	St.	Sp.
Bradley	42	[illegible]	102.7	16	73
Knapp	42	4,201	100.1	11	65
Wolfe	39	3,790	97.10	9	67
Warner	42	4,060	96.8	32	64
G. Brandt	[illegible]	3,916	[illegible]	[illegible]	65
Smith	42	3,910	93.4	13	38
Crammond	6	560	93.2	7	[illegible]
Embser	12	1,094	91.2	8	[illegible]
W. Williams	27	2,435	90.5	8	[illegible]
Stocker	24	2,148	89.12	3	24
Bensler	[illegible]	2,922	88.18	7	41
Huston	36	3,727	[illegible]	6	[illegible]
Willey	36	3,144	87.12	3	[illegible]
Suess	42	3,646	[illegible]	7	[illegible]
F. Brandt	[illegible]	2,877	86.22	7	[illegible]
S. Williams	42	3,602	85.22	4	34
Walsmith	37	3,110	84.2	3	[illegible]
Poole	20	[illegible]	82.18	3	[illegible]
Doyan	32	[illegible]	[illegible]	3	16
Feeney	43	3,090	73.27	2	35

Investigation reveals that, more than 38 years after those standings were published, three of the bowlers are still working for The Washington Post. They are:

George W. Brandt of 4808 Bradley blvd.; Joseph S. Walsmith of 900 Longfellow st. nw. and Anthony W. Suess of Hyattsville, Md.

They're still putting out a good newspaper—but I wonder if they can still bowl as well as they used to.

ADD STREETS

T. O. Conti of 238 35th st. ne. advises:

"If you ever make an appointment to meet somebody on the corner of 35th and Clay ne., better specify which one you mean. There are two such intersections, about a half-mile apart."

After studying our office map for a half hour, I find one, but not the other. The one I located is just across the Benning rd. bridge.

So couldn't we just meet at Benning rd. and Minnesota ave. ne.? It would be ever so much simpler.

PERSONAL NOTES

In answer to many inquiries: Back issues and extra copies of The Washington Post may be obtained from our circulation department, 1118 15th st. nw. Ask for Mr. Mackay.

GIVE-AWAYS

"A beautiful, healthy puppy." (Michigan 5631).

"Female, ebony black cat, about 1 year old, loves children." (Randolph 5977, before 6 p. m.).

"Female terrier, about 6 months old. Good home only." (Hobart 8636).

STILL MORE ABOUT BIMS

Here's another reaction to Nancy Kenaston's piece about British war brides.

Margaret Elliott of 523 Bashford ln., Alexandria, Va., writes:

"I've called Mrs. Kenaston to tell her that there is another club for overseas brides—The International Wives Club. Any District Liners who are interested may call Temple 5790."

THIS WILSON DIDN'T KEEP OUT OF "WAR"

Earl Wilson's intemperate remarks about Washington secretaries leads D. Miller of 3337 5th st. se. to wonder what might have prompted such an outburst. Three possibilities are suggested:

1. Ulcers.

2. Sour grapes

3. Maybe he had just gotten his face slapped.

The Washington Philatelist

Unsolicited Stamps Bother Collectors

By William M. Stuart

THE unsolicited approval sheet again is causing concern in national philatelic organizations. There seems to be no method by which postal authorities can prevent this nuisance.

Dealers are willing to take the chance of loss in sending unsolicited sheets of stamps on approval, because, in the long run, there seems to be no loss. Some of those who receive these sheets return them, or pay for them, when threatened by a collection agency.

According to postal authorities, the only way in which the practice could be prevented would be for Congress to pass a law penalizing the sending of unsolicited sheets through the mails. Meanwhile, national philatelic societies are asking members to send in the names of dealers still following this practice. The material generally is cheap and of no use even to a beginner, much less to the mature philatelist.

Everglades Commemorative

THE 3-cent Everglades National Park commemorative stamp will be released first-day on December 5, at Florida City, Fla. Only the postmaster there will service first-day cancellations. The stamp will be sold at the Philatelic Agency on December 8.

The stamp is arranged vertically, .84 by 1.44 inches in size, and the central design is an outline map of Florida showing the Everglades. In the foreground and partly covering the map is a great white heron, below which is a dark panel with the wording, "United States Postage," in white Gothic. In Roman at the top of the stamp is the wording, "Everglades National Park," and below it the denomination, "3c". The stamp will be issued in sheets of 50.

The 50-cent carmine air mail stamp, which was placed on sale February 15, 1937, was removed from the sales list at the Philatelic Agency November 5. The stamp was issued when a revised rate for the extension of trans-Pacific air mail service became necessary. The plate numbers used were: 21 624, 21 625, 21 628 and 21 629.

Philatelic meetings on Thursday evening: Government Printing Office Stamp Club, Harding Hall; Pentagon Philatelic Society, General Officers Dining Room, Pentagon, and Silver Spring Philatelic Society, Board Room of County Building, Silver Spring, Md.

The All Boro Collectors Club of New York has requested the Postoffice Department to issue a stamp honoring those who have died in the service of the country. Another request for a stamp is in commemoration of the famous race horse, Man O' War, who died recently.

The Progressive Philatelic Society, Chicago, is again making up free Christmas packets of seals and stamps for shut-ins. Washington collectors long have taken part in this donation. Mrs. A. C. Westphall, 3008 North Whipple st., Chicago 18, Ill., is in charge, and will supply seals for six for 10 cents.

Air mail service will be inaugurated December 1 at Minneapolis-St. Paul, over Route A M 4 and at Charlotte, N. C., on Route A M 51. On December 3 air mail service will be inaugurated at Pittsburgh, Cleveland and Washington, D. C., on Route A M 3 and will be resumed at Charleston, W. Va., on Route A M 25. On December 15 air mail service will be inaugurated at Wilmington, Del., on Route A M 25. No official cachets will be provided at these offices as they have already been serviced, but covers mailed will be dispatched on the first flights if properly forwarded.

The Collectors Club, Branch 5, S. P. A., met in Pythian Temple on Tuesday evening. Ellery Denison presided and exhibited several frames of the stamps of New Zealand. At the meeting Tuesday in Pythian Temple, 1012 9th st. nw., the usual auction sale will be held and all collectors are invited. Members of the club journeyed to Baltimore Friday evening as guests of the Baltimore Philatelic Society.

The Woodridge Stamp Club will meet Thursday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Heise, 1818 Rhode Island ave. ne., at 8 p. m.

Forever Changing

Paris Place Names Keep 'Em Guessing

It's a good trick these days to keep up with the names of Paris streets. Sketch by AP Artist Milt Morris shows how the French take it

By Mel Most

PARIS, Nov. 15 (AP).—It is no use trying to keep up with Paris' 6000 names of streets, avenues, boulevards, alleys and dead ends, or the hundreds of other names of "places" (which are squares) and "squares" (which are small greens), in Paris.

For one thing, the names are forever changing—result of a tradition that the street directory is a sort of pork barrel of honors from which municipal councilors can pull names that bring joy to their parties.

For another, the number of names is forever growing—result of new construction and the efforts of officials to preserve the old names.

They do this by deciding a street is really two streets (easy enough, since many do not run in a straight line) and renaming only half of it, or by deciding a crossing is really a "place" that needs a name of its own.

The system causes unhappiness to city officials, post office, taxi drivers, businesses that have to reprint their letterheads, and ordinary people, practically all of whom have to own a special street guide.

It brings joy to the municipal councilmen, political parties, stationers, printers and publishers of guide books.

80 Since Liberation

SINCE the liberation of France, 80 new names have been put down on the city directory. Fifty-six of these were those of heroes or martyrs of the resistance under the German occupation. Almost all of the others were names of writers, philosophers and international figures whose ideas jibed with postwar leftist trends.

Among the exceptions is Rue George Eastman, named after the American camera manufacturer and philanthropist, a new street cut through near a clinic Eastman endowed.

Others include Place du 25 Aout, 1944 (August 25, 1944 Square), the date of Paris' liberation; the Avenue de la Division Leclerc (changed from Avenue du Marechal Petain), after the first French army force to enter it; the Rue de Stalingrad and the Rue de Leningrad. The last had borne Leningrad's prerevolutionary name as the Rue de Petrograd, which the French wistfully allowed to ride until now.

Still another is the Avenue de New-York (spelled with a hyphen in French), one of the two most important thoroughfares renamed. It used to be the Avenue de Tokio. The second is Avenue Franklin D. Roosevelt, formerly Avenue Victor Emanuel III.

Somebody Forgot

AMONG the 80 new names is even a piece of a boulevard which it was discovered somebody had forgotten to name.

The part-renaming is making officially designated thoroughfares shorter and shorter. The Quai d'Orsay now shares with two other "quais" the length of riverfront it once designated. The part removed in the latest amputation was named after Anatole France, French liberal writer considered insufficiently honored because he had had only a street without any houses on it.

Sometimes the Germans changed a name and it had to be changed back. Rue Henri Heine was named for the German Jewish poet Heinrich Heine who lived as an exile in Paris. The Germans changed it to Rue Jean Sebastien Bach, after the Christian German composer.

In spite of the changes, people go right on calling streets by the names they knew, so that a street may be referred to by two or three entirely different names, depending on what generation the speakers belong to.

Central Virginia Meet Opens Next Weekend

By Marian H. Barre

NEXT out-of-town trip for local tournament enthusiasts will be to Lynchburg for the Central Virginia championships next Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

The following Saturday the Winter National Championships open in Atlantic City at the Chelsea Hotel with an "early bird practice game." Six national titles will be in competition and the tourney will close on December 7.

Master points may be had for the winning in the Washington Bridge League's monthly match on Wednesday, beginning at 8:15 p. m. in Hotel Burlington. Team games will not be held that night, all entrants will play in duos. In the league's last contest for pairs, on November 5, Section A was won by Miss Mary Monighan and I. H. York in one position, by E. D. Harris and Robert Bierly in the other; Section B going to Mrs. Dora Schwartz and Dr. Saxton, W. M. Lingley and David Murray.

Mrs. T. M. Boyle-Mrs. Roy Hackett, Dr. and Mrs. A. J. Steinberg, Mrs. M. Boschan-John McDermott, R. Ashton-H. Steinbach, were runners-up.

An executive committee meeting was held last Wednesday for a final report of the recent D. C. Championships. Among other matters that came to light was the disposal of the President's Plaque. (This trophy goes to the organization whose members make the highest cumulative showing in the Metropolitan Pair event.) "It was won by the Washington Bridge League," President W. H. Gorton announced proudly. Lengthy checking is necessary before this trophy can be awarded.

BRIDGE'S top-ranking expert, Charles H. Goren, will deliver the second lecture of a series being given at the Bridge Studio of Washington, 1614 Rhode Island ave. nw., on Wednesday from noon to 1 p. m. Having covered the point-count in notrump bidding in his first lecture, Goren will continue in logical development of his theories.

Second and final session of the pair contest for the Victor Smith Trophy will be played on Thursday evening at the National Press Club. Dr. A. F. O'Donnell and W. A. Poissant led the first round, with Mrs. P. E. Golden and William Hogan, jr., second, Mr. and Mrs. David Sentner, third.

Winners of national awards at the Capital City Chess Club's duplicate game on November 8 were: Mrs. J. V. Waits and Miller Roberts, 190 match points north-south; east-west, J. G. Stone and G. L. Dickerman, east-west, 186½. There was a tie for second place between Mrs. J. R. Belt-Mrs. Lester Gibson and Mrs. Alma Byrne-Dr. Gregg Custis, both pairs having 184 points; Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Byrns were runners-up with 180 points in the other position. Chess Club kibitzers will note that Mrs. Waits has built up an impressive record.

The bimonthly meeting, luncheon, and duplicate game of the Women's Auxiliary will be held on November 22 at the Dodge Hotel, Mrs. C. E. Meissner and Mrs. N. Olmstead serving as hostesses. Mrs. Roy Hackett will preside at the business meeting, which begins at noon. Among items to be discussed are the plans for Christmas donations to various charities. A report of the auxiliary's annual tournament to benefit Children's Hospital will be submitted by Cochairmen Mrs. Frederick Vosburgh and Mrs. W. H. Gorton. The tourney was held on October 11.

Travel Books Make Good Yule Presents

TRAVEL books make good Christmas gifts, and offer ideas for travel, too. Here are recent suggestions:

"Now In Mexico," by Hudson Strode, with photos (Harcourt, Brace); "Saint Croix, the Sentinel River," by Guy Murchie, with maps and pictures (Duell, Sloan & Pearce); "San Francisco, Port of Gold," by William Martin Camp (Doubleday); "Natchez on the Mississippi," by Harnett T. Kane (Morrow).

"Halfway to Heaven, a Guatemala Holiday," by Jean Hersey, with photos (Prentice-Hall); "Cache Lake Country," by John J. Rowlands, illustrated by Henry B. Kane (Norton); "Introduction to Iran," by Elgin Groseclose, with photos (Oxford).

"It's An Old Pennsylvania Custom," by Edwin Valentine Mitchell (Vanguard); "Italy," by Elizabeth Wiskemann, with photos (Oxford, World Today Series); "Canadian Spring," by Florence Page Jaques, illustrated by Francis Lee Jaques (Harper).

Seek 'Unspoiled' Natives On African Expedition

New York, Nov. 15 (U.P.).—A new expedition to explore what was termed "the last remaining bastion of unspoiled native Africa" has sailed aboard the S. S. African Rainbow for Cape Town.

Dr. James L. Clark, head of the department of preparation and installation of the Museum of Natural History, headed the expedition.

The group hoped to encounter two tribes of "unspoiled" natives, the Dinkas and the Nuers. They wear their hair piled on top of their heads in elaborate coiffures and when tired they rest by standing on one foot and holding the other in the air.

The expedition also hoped to photograph for the first time a white rhinoceros.

Aged Danish Couple Take Long Walk

Naestved, Denmark, Nov. 15. (AP). The proprietor of the Naestved Youth Hostel could hardly believe his eyes when late one night he heard a knock at the door and admitted Mrs. P. Volch, 83, and Mrs. C. Brinch, 82, both of Copenhagen, who asked for accommodations. They said they were on a hiking tour around Zealand, Denmark's main island.

They had walked from Copenhagen, a distance of some 50 miles, and said they spent the previous night in a barn. They said they intended to walk several hundred miles and were having the time of their lives.

7 in 100 to Bermuda Hail from D. C. Area

BOAC (cryptic for British Overseas Airways Corp.) solemnly reports that 7.2 per cent of all travelers to Bermuda come from the District, Virginia and Maryland. . . . American Export Lines wants everybody to know that the D. Bent Lane whose paintings are on exhibition at the Ferargil Galleries in New York is the wife of Clayton Lane, formerly commercial attache in Beirut, Lebanon. . . . A special flight was dispatched by KLM Royal Dutch Airlines from Amsterdam to Tehran recently and may be followed by regular service soon.

FLORIDA, as everybody knows, goes in for the big, expensive bauble every time. Latest project is an 11-mile, 15-million-dollar bridge and causeway to span Tampa Bay and link St. Petersburg peninsula with the rest of Florida near Bradenton . . . Tennessee says its tourist travel reached an all time high the past summer. Scenes of bloody Civil War encounters drew many of the curious—Shiloh, Fort Donelson, Chickamauga, Lookout Mountain . . . Joe Bursey writes from Santa Fe that skiing is one of the fastest growing sports in New Mexico. Would you believe it? Joe further says Taos, N. Mex., is the only city in the country, except Washington, where the flag flies 24 hours a day.

AMERICAN dogs won all events at the annual cover dog trials in Fredericton, New Brunswick. And finished second in 14 out of 16 . . . Harvey Toy has been reelected president of the California Mission Trails Association, Ltd. . . . The new ship Stockholm, largest ever built in Sweden, has made a trial run which, according to the Swedish American Line tub beaters, was "eminently satisfactory." That means better than satisfactory, of course.

SOMEBODY'S going to get hurt if what the American Express says is true: that more than 300,000 hunters are at large in the big-game hunting States of Idaho, Montana, Colorado and Wyoming (How about Utah, Amer. Art Keil writes from West Palm Beach that the annual South Florida tennis championships will be staged there in February.

PARK FIGURES: National Park Service says 25,265,229 people visited areas administered by it this year. Best drawing area was the Lake Mead recreation area in Arizona and Nevada with 1,342,204. Second best was the Lincoln Memorial in our city with 1,326,770. All this prompts the NPS to observe that "developments in the National Park Service have fallen far behind public need." Great Smoky Mountains headed the National Parks this year with 1,186,748 visitors.

Prof. John H. Frederick of the University of Maryland won $350 for his book on commercial air transportation; James J. Strebig of 8315 16th st., Silver Spring, an Associated Press reporter, won $250 in the newspaper class, and Eric Bramley of Alexandria took $100 second prize money in the magazine class.

Philippine Railroads Cut Rates Drastically

Manila, Nov. 15 (AP).—Land transportation rates have been slashed up to 50 per cent in the past month on Luzon. The latest cut was made by the government-owned Manila Railroad Co., which dropped fares 40 per cent to compete with parallel bus lines. The bus rate is comparable to prewar.

Despite enormous destruction to roads and rails and to rolling stock land transportation on this island is rapidly approaching normal.

Bureaus Have Line On Bermuda Type

GOING to Bermuda? If you are, the travel bureaus have a "morning line" on you as good as any published in the daily racing sheets.

For example, it's a good wager that you're going on your first trip to the Western Hemisphere's leading vacationland—70 per cent of all Bermuda tourists are on their first trip to the island. And if you have been there before, 15 per cent of you also went there last year.

It's also a good bet that you're planning to go by air. Through September 1, over 73 per cent of all Bermuda-bound tourists went by plane—another indication that a speedy trip counts, and that you want all the time you can get on Coral Beach.

At least 14 per cent of all tourists will be honeymooners, less than 3 per cent will be traveling on business and 80 per cent will wish to "rest," "rest and play," or just "play." On the way down to Bermuda you'll tell your fellow-passengers that you're most interested in holiday swimming (81 per cent say that), but on the way back 72 per cent will admit that "loafing" was their leading Bermuda sport.

But no matter your preference, all your activities will be healthy outdoors sports—loafing on the beach, swimming, cycling, sailing, golf and fishing rank in that order, and while you'll prefer one or two you'll participate to some extent in each.

And why are you going to Bermuda? Well, for one thing 45 per cent of you have been influenced by friends who claimed there was no better vacationland in the world. Travel agents can claim 25 per cent of the Bermuda trips, while magazine and newspaper articles influenced 33 per cent of the tourists in their selection of Bermuda.

What are you looking forward to in Bermuda? Climate is placed on top by 78 per cent of Bermuda tourists, with "natural beauty," beaches" and "sports" following closely. Nevertheless, and despite these protestations, you'll visit most of the island's clubs and cultivate a taste for Cuba Libres.

Incidentally, 19 per cent of all tourists will assert that Bermuda's "romantic atmosphere" is the big drawing card. Considering that only 14 per cent of the travelers are honeymooners, there's a 5 point "bulge" in favor of romance, only 3 per cent of which can be charged to those claiming "business" as their reason for travel, says British Overseas Airways.

War-Born Fuel Station Helps Globe Girdlers

SHEMYA, pinpoint island of the Aleutians visited by America's flivver-plane globe girdlers, Clifford V. Evans of 1416 N. Abingdon st., Arlington, and George Truman of Los Angeles, is way station for all and destination for none who in peacetime fly the great circle route between the United States and Japan.

All but overlooked by prewar chartmakers, Shemya lies east of Attu Island, last of the 1000 miles of Aleutian stepping stones that string out from Alaska toward Siberia and Japan.

Army Air Forces strategists saw in Shemya a well-anchored flat top at a very useful spot. The business of converting its two-by-four-mile area into a big landing field plus the necessary buildings for a complete plane-servicing and weather-predicting outpost was one of the engineering triumphs of World War II.

Other place names, such as Massacre Bay on Attu, tell of troubles in this part of the world long before the Japanese attempted to gain a foothold in the Western Hemisphere.

Over the peaks and volcanoes of the Aleutians, where Americans fought storms as well as Japanese, planes of commerce now follow the most direct route to Japan.

On flat maps, the Aleutians seem far north of a direct route between Chicago and Tokyo. By stretching a string on a globe, however, it becomes obvious that Shemya is directly on the great circle route between United States and Japanese cities.

Winter in North Carolina

WINTER in North Carolina is not as much a slackening of recreational pursuits as it is a shifting of emphasis. Resorts, moribund or sluggish in the summer, come to life; the fisherman turns from one species of fish to another, and hunters take up where the surf-bathers left off.

Conventional winter resort activities are centered around Pinehurst, Southern Pines, in the Sandhills, and Tryson and Sedgefield, with emphasis at these places on golf, horses, tennis. The "season" at all these and nearby places begins in the fall, continues into May, but Tryon, in the foothills in southeastern North Carolina also enjoys a summer season.

Winter in the mountains of North Carolina is not severe. Ice and snow are comparatively rare except on the higher peaks, and roads are kept clear throughout the season. An increasing number of tourists come to the Blue Ridges and Smokies in the winter, where many hotels and inns remain open the year around. Other thousands go South or North via the mountain highways. Rates are generally lower now.

Bear, deer and wild boar hunting proceed in season, with much of the hunting being done in organized parties under supervision of the North Carolina Wildlife Commission on National Forest refuges. Would-be participants should write the North Carolina Wildlife Commission, Asheville, N. C.

All mountain lakes are open for year around fishing.

Salt-water fishing proceeds off the North Carolina coast just as long as sportsmen will go out. There are records of channel bass being caught in December, of blues being taken in January, and of many other winter catches.

The beaches, particularly in the southeastern section, have year-around places, and sunshine prevails at the same rate as it does in Florida, according to weather records. Swimming is not feasible throughout the winter, but many visitors pick warm days for dips, and behind the strands they find calm water for small boating.

Head of Roosevelt Park Chosen

Chief Ranger Allyn F. Hanks of Grand Teton National Park has been promoted to the position of superintendent of Theodore Roosevelt National Memorial Park in the badlands of western North Dakota.

Hanks, born in Logan, Utah, entered the National Park Service in 1928 as a park ranger in Yellowstone National Park. He was promoted from the position of district park ranger in Yellowstone to chief ranger, Grand Teton National Park, in September, 1932, and has held that position to the present time.

Making 97th Trip Across Atlantic

Liverpool, Nov. 15 (AP).—Crossing the Atlantic is getting to be a habit with Maurice Ireland of Belfast.

He is on the way over now in the Empress of Canada on his ninety-seventh crossing.

Ireland started his commuting back in 1911 and has been doing it ever since as representative of the Irish Linen Guild.

On the present trip Ireland will meet the Irish Linen Guild of New York and then make a three-month sales swing through British Columbia.

Dean of Park Heads Retires

The retirement of Col. John R. White, superintendent of Sequoia and Kings National Parks, Calif., and dean of national park superintendents, has been announced by the National Park Service.

White's retirement became effective on October 10, his birthday and the anniversary of his entrance into the Park Service in 1919 as a ranger at Grand Canyon National Park in 1920. He became superintendent of Sequoia and General Grant National Parks in 1920. The latter now is part of Kings Canyon National Park.

Between 1939 and 1941 he was chief of operations in the Washington headquarters of the service. He served as regional director at Sante Fe, N. Mex. and in San Francisco, Calif.

In 1941 he returned to the superintendency of Sequoia Park and in 1943 also took over the superintendency of Kings Canyon.

Time Stands Still

Green Bay, Wis. (UP).—Workers here had a good excuse for being late. Two pigeons, perched on the hands of the courthouse clock, stopped the mechanism for nearly an hour.
